Police Seek Keene Case Witness in Washington

Testimony of Missing Mrs. Loper Sought by Officers.

Surprise Due at Today's Hearing

'Silent Stranger' Also Sought as Quiz Drags Along.

The mysterious "Mrs. R. L. Loper," who occupied the stateroom next to Charles F. Keene, Washington real estate man believed murdered, may be in Washington, police indicated last night.

On the eve of a hearing unique in Department of Commerce annals, Maryland State police received word that the missing key witness in the steamboat mystery of last Thursday may be a "tall, slender blonde woman," believed to be a resident of Washington.

Detectives Marlin Brubaker and J. J. Cassidy were investigating this latest development in the case.

Steamship line officials have revealed that cabin 77, next to cabin 79—from which Keene vanished—was occupied by a woman registered as "Mrs. R. L. Loper."

Key Witness.

They wish to question the woman to determine what she overheard in the cabin next to hers last Thursday night somewhere on the Potomac. They also would like to have her testimony at a hearing this morning at 10 o'clock, at which all available witnesses will testify before the Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation.

The hearing will highlight exactly seven days of mystery, during which numerous clews have been found, but during which the body of the missing man, the person of the principal witness, and the motive are absent.

Commerce Department investigators are hinting at surprises at this morning's hearing. Working under cover for a week, they were gathering information for four days during which other authorities were debating the question of who had jurisdiction.

Police kept their information regarding "the tall, slender blonde" cloaked carefully, as they did not wish to frighten her. It was learned, however, that they had spent a large part of yesterday searching Washington for her. She was also described as "attractive."

Unusual Name.

It was also learned yesterday that Maryland police intend to scour Norfolk for the missing "Mrs. Loper" in the event the woman sought here does not prove to have been a passenger on the steamer District of Columbia last Thursday night.

Detective Leon Nowitzky at Norfolk said last night that he was carrying on his search at the Norfolk end of the Potomac mystery, and that he would question again a man there named Billy Loper, to try to discover if the missing witness is related to him, or if he knows her.

Police say that the name Loper is unusual, and from what they can gather, almost all of the people of that name in this vicinity are related, although they do not link kinship between the Billy Loper in Norfolk with anyone here.

Richard C. Daniels will act as counsel for Charles F. Keene, jr., son of the missing man, at the public hearings this morning. The son

2 Fliers Are Rescued After Leap on Desert

March Field, Calif., May 20 (AP).—Two Selfridge Field, Mich., Army fliers, in California for the Air Corps maneuvers, were brought here today after "bailing out" of a disabled plane and spending a chill night in the Mojave Desert wrapped in parachutes.

Corpl. Carl C. Summer and Cadet J. C. Schoch parachuted out of their pursuit plane yesterday when mechanical trouble developed at 6,000 feet. The plane, which had slipped into a tight spin, was demolished.

Mundelein 'Reflection' on Hitler Draws Protest of Reich Envoy

Informal Representation Made to State Department; Incident Held Closed; Jews and Protestants Back Cardinal's Views.

By the Associated Press.

A new diplomatic incident flared yesterday between the United States and Germany over an attack on Chancellor Adolf Hitler by George Cardinal Mundelein, Catholic Archbishop of Chicago.

It quickly was extinguished officially, after the German Embassy had lodged informal representations at the State Department against the prelate's characterization of Hitler as "an Austrian paperhanger, and a poor one at that."

Northwest leaders of the Catholic hierachy Thursday night lined up in St. Paul behind Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, in his attack Wednesday on the Nazi regime.

Led by Archbishop John Gregory Murray, of St. Paul, Minnesota and North Dakota bishops joined in condemning Chancellor Adolf Hitler and his government for terrorism against the Catholic Church in Germany.

They urged all followers of Christianity to "unite in solemn protest against the diabolical methods being pursued to eliminate every vestige of Christianity" in that country.

The representation marked the third time in less than 2½ months that Germany had voiced objections to reflections on the Reichfuehrer.

In March formal protests were made against anti-Nazi utterances by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, who in two separate addresses referred to Hitler as a "brown shirted fanatic" and "a man without honor."

Secretary Hull tendered formal apologies in both instances.

Unlike those incidents, the latest German representations were informal. During a routine call at the State Department Wednesday, Dr. Hans Thomsen, embassy counselor, directed the attention of James Clement Dunn, chief of the department's western European division, to press accounts of Cardinal Mundelein's remarks.

Thomsen said he deplored the incident because it could have no other effect than to place a strain on German-American relations. Dunn merely thanked his caller for presenting the information.

Secretary Hull said yesterday that the representations did not call for a reply, such as would have been required had they been of a formal

Soviet Executes 44 for Plotting Train Wrecks

By the Associated Press.

Moscow, May 20.—The execution of 43 men and 1 woman for plotting railway wrecks in Siberian military areas became known here today from a terse communique published by the newspaper Pacific Star at Khabarovsk in Siberia.

The communique said the military collegium of the supreme court determined that the 44, all Russians, acted at "the orders of the Japanese secret service" and that they were followers of the exiled Leon Trotsky, one-time war commissar, now in Mexico.

Details Secret.

The entire zone east of Baikal is considered of vital military importance to Russia, and agents arrested the group after investigations throughout that area.

The execution by firing squads were at Svobodny 11 days ago.

Officials here said they could add no details.

The executions were the largest in number within the past three years (130 were executed in 1934, after the assassination of Sergei M. Kiroff, chief aide to Joseph Stalin).

They were the first also since the government's unprecedented drive against oppositionists began two months ago.

Thousands of suspects are believed, however, to be under arrest throughout the nation and the Russian press has been enlisted in the drive to warn citizens to guard against supposed secret agents.

Citizens Cautioned.

Citizens are cautioned against discussing industrial information, to avoid foreigners, and to guard carefully important papers and official seals or stamps, if they are government employes.

The press has directed the brunt of its charges against Germany and Japan whose agents are alleged to swarm the country.

Numerous foreigners have been expelled from the Far East on suspicion of espionage.

The current drive began shortly after Stalin's exhortation to greater vigilance in detecting spies last March, and followed hard upon execution of 13 persons February 1 after treason trials in Moscow. Sixteen were shot last August 25 upon conviction of plotting to kill Stalin and overthrow the government.

Admits Cheer

Morrow Kin Confesses Costly Navy Yell.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 20.—Drawing a will can be fun.

Take Gen. Jay Johnson Morrow's last testament, for example.

"I bet Jay had a lot of fun writing that will," Richard B. Scandrett, jr., a nephew of the general and a New York lawyer, said today.

Scandrett laughingly confessed that he was the fellow who cheered the wrong team at an Army-Navy game a few years ago and caused his mother, Mrs. Agnes Scanrett, of Washington, to be left out of the distribution of Gen. Morrow's mementoes.

Scrandett yelled for Navy, or so it was alleged by Gen. Morrow, an Army man, to the full capacity of his lungs, who was sitting beside him.

The general, one-time Governor of the Panama Canal Zone and a brother of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, was a football man and coach at West Point.

Fascists Dent Munguia Lines Close to Bilbao

Basques Again Retreat as Planes, Italian Tanks Join in Attack.

By the Associated Press.

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, May 20.—Spanish insurgents smashed ahead tonight to new conquests along their slowly contracting semicircle of steel around Bilbao.

Gen. Emilio Mola's troops concentrated their thrusts against two points in the Basque defense while insurgent planes bombed the valley of the Nervion River in which the Basque capital lies.

The ground forces rammed a great dent in the government fortifications at Munguia, 9 miles northeast of Bilbao, on the Bermeo road, and they claimed capture of Mount Gondramendi and six villages just north of Amorebieta, 9 miles east-southeast of the besieged city.

200 Dead Abandoned.

The insurgent report on the capture of Mount Gondramendi said Bilbao's defenders abandoned 200 dead on the battlefield and lost 100 men and 30 deserters.

Meanwhile insurgent oratory indicated the Basques could expect no halt in the two-month insurgent advance.

Gen. Millan Astray, in the name of the insurgent regime, broadcast a warning anyone in the insurgent ranks who "pronounce the word armistice will be considered a traitor."

"In red (government) Spain and abroad it may be possible to speak of armistice," he said, "but nationalist Spain is fighting for its existence, its independence, its civilization and its grandeur."

This pronouncement was taken as the insurgent answer to Franco-British efforts to effect a temporary truce in the civil war in order to clear all foreign troops from Spain. This plan is before the International Nonintervention Committee.

Only on the Amorebieta front did the government troops make claims of successful resistance to the advance of the insurgents. Bilbao commanders said they had stalled one section of Mola's troops a mile northwest of Amorbieta.

It was evident the besiegers were concentrating against the estuary of the Nervion River. Bilbao stands on the river, five miles southeast of the mouth.

Today the insurgents captured Basigo, 11 miles east of the Nervion's mouth on the Biscay coast, and insurgent reports said insurgent air raiders wrecked "scores of ships" in the river.

Domination of the river would block passage of refugees from the Basque capital and passage of food to the besieged city.

Maija May Head All Armies.

Madrid, May 20 (AP).—Authoritative quarters indicated today one of the first acts of the new cabinet of Dr. Juan Negrin may be to unify the command for all government troops in Spain, with Gen. Jose Miaja as commander in chief.

Powerful elements have been agitating for the elevation of Gen. Miaja to such a command since he proved his worth as leader of the six-month defense of Madrid. He is now commander of government forces in central Spain.

Merrill, Mattern To Race to Paris

Chicago, May 20 (AP).—Jimmy Mattern, noted speed flier, announced tonight he and Dick Merrill, transatlantic pilot, had begun negotiations to start the proposed New York-to-Paris air race from Canada, and that both he and Merrill would compete in it.

He disclosed upon his return here tonight that he and Merrill conferred today with a group of prominent Canadian business men in Toronto, and said they appeared to be greatly interested in the proposal to launch the flights from Canadian soil. Mattern said if his plans went through the race probably would be held in August.

Costs Block Lower - Age Retirement

Civil Service's New Plan Backed in Principle by President.

Full Approval Lacking Because of Added Expenses.

By William V. Nessly.

The Civil Service Commission's own plan for lowering retirement ages for Government employes was presented to President Roosevelt yesterday and was reported to have received his approval in principle.

However, the estimated added cost of the plan, placed by actuaries at som $8,000,000 yearly, was said to be operating to block full Presidential indorsement of the proposal.

Members of the commission, President Harry B. Mitchell, Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin and Leonard D. White, visited the President and discussed with him various proposals, they said, for improvement of the Civil Service, most of the discussion centering on provisions of the retirement act.

Retirement ages at present are fixed at 70 years, 65 years and 62 years for various classes of workers. Optional retirement is provided two years earlier in each class.

Can Retire at 60.

The commission proposes permitting all to retire at 60 with 30 years' service, or at 62 with 15 years. Retirement at 70 would still be compulsory, but the retirement in advance of age would be optional with either the employe or the Government. Should an employe reach 60 with 30 years of service and choose to continue working, the Government would be given an opportunity, under the commission's plan, to decide whether in the interest of efficiency he should retire. No such provision is in the present act.

Revelation that actuaries estimate that the commission plan would add $8,000,000 yearly to the retirement costs was made yesterday for the first time.

In previous annual reports, the commission, in advancing its plan, had said:

"The ultimate cost of the proposed changes will depend upon the average retirement age which develops in practice, but it is not anticipated that the added cost to the Government will be great."

President Mitchell said yesterday that when the commission had started working on the plan he had felt it would cost practically no more than the present regulations. He still expressed the view few employes will be inclined to take advantage of the earlier retirement age, pointing out that practically all are eager to retain their jobs as long as possible.

"No One Wants to Quit."

"No one wants to quit his job," he remarked.

The commission head also took occasion to criticize provisions in the substitute railroad retirement bill relating to civil service status of employes of the Railroad Retirement Board.

"The most vicious attack on the civil service in its history," was his characterization of provisions that employes of the board, after one year of service, could be given a noncompetitive examination by the board and thereby acquire civil service status.

Formal protest against the provisions have been prepared by the commission and will be submitted to the Budget Bureau in conformity with regular procedure.

The commission's plan tentatively has been put in the form of a bill. Mitchell said he understood the President wants the legislation, but the matter of cost, in view of the current drive for economy in the Government, was an important factor to be considered.

The commission is opposed to the bill now before the Senate, offered by Senator Neely (Democrat), of West Virginia, and providing optional retirement at ages of 64 years, 60 and 58, with 30 years of service. The commission feels that 58 is too low an age for such retirement, and objects to the bill on the further ground that no provision is made for the Government to exercise an option on whether the employe shall retire when he becomes eligible for an annuity.

House Fights Relief Needs Of Roosevelt

Senate Approves Plan for Permanent CCC Appropriation.

Woodrum Leads Drive on $1,500,000,000 Estimate.

By Robert C. Albright.

After two economy setbacks at the White House and in Congress, the House yesterday swept into fevered debate on the President's $1,500,000,000 relief estimates, and attempted to reduce it by $500,000,000.

The setbacks came when the President told a House committee chairman he favored a flood control program hitherto opposed, and when the House approved an Interior bill $2,390,060 above budget estimates.

Senate Approves CCC.

Meantime the Senate recouped a House Administration defeat on the President's CCC bill. The Senate voted CCC a "permanent" program, and sent the bill back to the House, which had limited the agency to two years. As in the House, a $2,000 salary cut was ordered for CCC Director Robert Fechner.

Over leadership and committee opposition, Representative Clifton A. Woodrum (Democrat, of Virginia, appropriation sub-committee chairman in charge of the relief bill, opened his drive in the House to hold the relief appropriation to $1,000,000,000.

Woodrum took immediate issue with the claim that the President is "insisting" on $1,500,000,000.

"I think I might assume," Woodrum told the House, "if the President has anything to say about this matter other than what he said in his message, that he would say it to the acting chairman of the subcommittee that is handling the resolution."

Cannon's Attitude.

Representative Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, ranking member of the House Appropriations Committee, asked Woodrum if he was "aware" the President had expressed his views to Speaker Bankhead and the majority leader, Woodrum said he was not.

"The newspaper headlines said the President would insist on $1,500,000,000, but not a living word came from our distinguished Speaker or our leader to the press as to what the President had said," declared Woodrum. "Of course, these gentlemen can speak for themselves."

The first test will come today on Woodrum's $1,000,000,000 sub-committee proposal. If that fails, Representative Sam D. McReynolds (Democrat), Tennessee, will offer an amendment for $1,200,000,000. The House extreme liberal bloc will propose an increase to $3,000,000,000. But leaders still confidently predicted $1,500,000,000 will be approved.

Veto Threat.

Earlier, warnings of a possible Presidential Interior bill veto were heard in the House, as the chamber again broke its retirement front to approve increases over budget and committee recommendations. As approved, the bill carried $123,002,754, which is $7,131,500 more than the committee recommended, $1,357,584 over current appropriations.

Auto Workers Burn Stack of 'Fordisms'

Kansas City, Mo., May 20 (U.P.).—A jeering mob of United Automobile Workers tonight heaped a bonfire high with cards and pamphlets called "Fordisms" issued by the Ford Motor Co. to express Henry Ford's views on unionism.

The demonstration occurred in a park opposite the windows of Ford Co. officials here. The plant recently was the scene of a brief sit-down strike in protest against alleged discriminatory discharges.

Five Representatives to Plead With Roosevelt for Jordon

By Edward T. Folliard

Five members of the House of Representatives yesterday resolved themselves into a "mercy committee" and voted to go to the recue of Thomas Jordon, 31-year-old short order cook, now awaiting electrocution at the District Jail.

They made plans to call on Attorney General Homer Cummings and ask him to urge President Roosevelt to save Jordon from the chair. The condemned man is scheduled to die June 14.

The five Representatives, members of a "crime sub-committee' appointed by the House District Committee to investigate complaints in the Jordon case, are Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland, chairman; Edwin M. Schaefer (Democrat), of Illinois; Herbert S. Bigelow (Democrat), of Ohio; Leon Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, and George J. Bates (Republican), of Massachusetts.

So far as old-timers on Capitol Hill could recall, it was the first time in history a group of Representatives ever voted to go to the aid of a penniless individual sentenced to die.

Representative Schaefer revealed after the final meeting of the "crime sub-committee" late yesterday that he and his colleagues were agreed that the Washington police were "terribly lax" in their investigation of the Garden T-Shoppe holdup and murder—the crime for which Jordon was sentenced to die.

He revealed also a suggestion was made in the sub-committee to "whitewash" the office of the United States attorney, but that this was voted down.

The sub-committee, after a hearing lasting three days, met late yesterday to adopt its report. This was turned over to Representative Mary L. Norton (Democrat), of New Jersey, chairman of the House District Committee. Mrs. Norton explained the report could not be made public until the full committee has received it Wednesday.

Neither Schaefer nor any of the others would comment on the report. However, The Post learned that the substance of it was this:

That the full House District Committee discharge the sub-committee.

That the record of the sub-committee's three-day hearing be turned over to Attorney General Cummings, together with a recommendation the Department of Jus-

Robinson Court Boom Gives Him Long Lead For Van Devanter Post

Senate for Third Time Votes For Repeal of D. C. Red Rider

House Defers Action Until Next Week; Favorable Ballot Expected by Kennedy on Conference Report; Only One Change Made.

The Senate yesterday for the third time at this session voted for repeal of the District's "red rider."

Action in the House was postponed until next week, however, by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, because of an agreement with Representative Taber (Republican), of New York, who is out of the city.

Kennedy predicted the conference report will be adopted when presented. He said it is agreeable both to Taber and to Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts, author of the "pink rider."

Senator Black (Democrat), of Alabama, submitted the conference report to the Senate and asked for immediate approval. There was no debate.

The only change in the legislation recommended by the conferees and that adopted twice previously by the Senate was the addition of a proviso stating that the repeal could not be construed as advocacy of communism.

The Senate first passed the repeal measure after it had been reported by the Senate Education Committee. Second approval came after the House had adopted the McCormack amendment. The Senate rejected the "pink rider" and sent the bill to conference.

Chairman Mary T. Norton yesterday complimented Kennedy on the manner in which he has brought about the compromise between the Senate and House.

Steel Workers Balloting on Joining C. I. O.

Results of Election Available Today; 27,000 Involved.

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 20.—Brawny men of the mills turned from slabs of white-hot steel to ballots today to decide their economic future in the Nation's largest collective bargaining election.

They cast their votes in a holiday mood at the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corporation plants.

But their numbers lined up before the polls indicated the significance of the election results for the 27,000 corporation employes.

By their ballots they will decide whether they are for or against the union—the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, affiliated with the John L. Lewis Committee for Industrial Organization.

Results Today.

The majority will rule. If that majority goes to the union, the company has agreed to deal with it as the exclusive bargaining agency for all of its men.

The result will be announced tomorrow by the National Labor Relations Board.

Victory, union leaders predicted, would signal a new future for all the 570,000 workers in the steel industry.

Specifically, it will chart the course of the union drive against five major producers employing 193,000 men, said Philip Murray, chairman of the Steel Workers Committee.

Many old-time steel laborers were silent as they waited their turn in the voting lines. For more than 30 years "J. & L." as the corporation is called by the workers, has run independent of unions.

Here they were taking part in the first labor-board supervised election in any major steel mill, which Murray predicted would give the union its first big exclusive bargaining contract.

Tense Situation.

While peace and good-natured rivalry ruled inside the mill properties at Pittsburgh and Aliquippa, where the men were released from their work in shifts to go to the polls, there were signs of tenseness ouside the gates.

Justice of the Peace John Lynch, of Beaver Falls, Pa., had issued warrants against seven employes of the Republic Steel Corporation charging conspiracy to commit assault and carrying concealed weapons.

Chairman Murray declared yesterday the men were in Aliquippa to "interfere" with the election. But other union members said all of the men had left the mill town and the warrants probably would not be served.

Samuel Cooke Dies On Retirement Day

Death yesterday claimed Samuel Fillmore Cooke, 80, of Townsend, Md., on the day he was to have retired after serving as town postmaster for more than 50 years.

In ill health for the last four months, Cooke announced Tuesday that he had submitted his resignation, effective yesterday. But when his daughter, Miss Bertha Cooke, who had been caring for him during his illness, arose yesterday she found her father dead in his bed.

Besides Miss Cooke, he is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Edith Feaster, 417 Hamilton street northwest, and Mrs. Clara Tippett, of Brandywine, Md., and two sons, Samuel F. Cooke, jr., of 457 H street southwest, and Elmon Cooke, of Waldorf, Md.

A. F. L. Leaders See Roosevelt On PWA Jobs

Protest Order Banning Employment of Those Not on Relief.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor yesterday protested to President Roosevelt against a WPA order that excludes from PWA employment jobless workmen of the building industry who are not on relief.

At the same time they took a stand in favor of the Beiter bill in the House to provide an additional $300,000,000 for PWA, or amendment of the relief appropriation bill to provide additional funds for public works without the restriction in the executive order complained of.

William Green, president of the federation; Harry Bates, president of the Bricklayers Union, and M. J. McDonough, of the building trades department of the federation, visited the President.

Green said "thousands of building trades workers are in the "twilight zone," out of work but supported by organizations or individuals and not actually on relief, "though they should be." Because they have been able to avoid Government aid up to this time, he said, they are barred from PWA work.

He said the trio of labor leaders had urged "substantial" appropriations for PWA to give employment in which such workers could participate.

Asked what was meant by "substantial," McDonough replied $300,000,000 was favored, and added that the bill by Representative Beiter (Democrat), New York, including that sum, was approved by the federation.

Green reported the President was in sympathy with the aims of the federation officials but pointed out that the demand for economy was a stumbling block.

The President is represented as feeling PWA should be able to get along on the $300,000,000 in its present revolving fund. Proponents of

'Pappy' Dies

By the Associated Press.

New Bern, N. C., May 20.—Father Time caught up today with George Isaac Hughes, the gaunt old veteran who made mock of years and amazed the scientific world by becoming a father when nearly 95, and doing it over again a year and a half later.

Lacking a few days of being 97½ years old, Hughes died peacefully this morning in the little cabin home where he lived with his 29-year-old second wife, and the babies whose births brought him Nation-wide publicity — Franklin Roosevelt Hughes, 29 months, and Mary Gertrude, almost 1 year old. The infirmities of age proved too heavy a burden for his failing heart, his physician said.

Hughes had 16 children by his first wife. The span of time between his eldest and his youngest was 63 years.

Two Left in Race For Senate Post

Barkley, Byrnes Remain Key Contenders to Head Majority.

By Sidney Olson.

The belief that Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, is slated to fill the present Supreme Court vacancy spread downtown from Capitol Hill yesterday, as some of the President's close advisers were understood to have agreed Robinson's selection "is inevitable."

A member of the much-thinned ranks of the Brain Trust was said to have admitted that the grim-mouthed Arkansas veteran had "the inside track and a long lead."

Out of the Congressional hurly-burly, meanwhile, there emerged yesterday a two-man neck-and-neck race for the majority leadership of the Senate, even though Robinson has not yet been promoted from this post to the highest bench.

Two candidates were left in the running, Assistant Floor Leader Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, and Senator James F. Byrnes, of South Carolina, close personal friend of Mr. Roosevelt.

Unusual Situation.

Byrnes' support, for unexplained reasons, came largely from foes of the President's court reorganization bill, who were tentatively lined up en bloc behind him. One Senator declared there were 38 votes—half of the Senate Democrats, who number 76—behind Byrnes right now.

Robinson was believed to be maintaining a "hands off" attitude in the matter, although he personally picked Barkley for assistant leader long ago.

The post also was being regarded as a Presidential stepping-stone by gossiping Senators yesterday, and three new titles were rolled around tentatively on the statesmen's tongues — "President Barkley," "President Byrnes" and "Mr. Justice Robinson."

The situation was without precedent. Justice Willis Van Devanter resigned only Tuesday, a few hours before the Senate Judiciary Committee rejected the President's court bill by a 10-to-8 vote.

The Robinson boom, gathering Tuesday night, exploded Wednesday with such force that leaders and members of both parties alike laid plans to assure his speedy confirmation to the Supreme Court—and, going farther, began to battle for the post he has not yet left. They further predicted no other name the President might send up would be confirmed without a thwacking struggle on the floor.

Fight May Go On.

The Virginia delegation is scheduled to take similar action today.

The court bill of the President awaited the adverse report now being drafted by a sub-committee of three opposition members, Chairman William H. King, of Utah; Pat McCarran, of Nevada, and Joseph C. O'Mahoney, of Wyoming, all Democrats. They prepared to file it by the end of next week.

One odd development of the day was that President Roosevelt definitely denied through a secretary that his Senate advisers were urging him to withdraw his court reorganization bill or accept a compromise.

The President said through this channel that there was not a word of truth in such reports emanating from Capitol Hill. He was represented as saying Senate advisers were urging him to continue to

President Asks Reorganization Passage in '37

Favors Splitting Program Into Four Measures, House Action First.

President Roosevelt yesterday told six Democratic members of the House Reorganization Committee he wants his entire reorganization program approved at this session of Congress, it was learned last night.

The President, it was said, favored splitting the comprehensive program into four separate measures, and their passage through Congress separately, with action originating in the House.

Confirming an exclusive account of the plan in Sunday's Post, it was determined to hold one more meeting of the Joint House and Senate Reorganization Committee, before convening the House group as a separate unit to consider the plan.

Chairman John J. Cochran, of the House Reorganization Committee, led Democratic members to the White House. Cochran is expected to confer with Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, chairman of the joint committee on the plan.

Wants Immediate Action.

The President is understood to favor pushing ahead with Government reorganization immediately, on the theory that Congress will not adjourn at earliest before August 15.

The joint committee, which has held widely separated meetings, and has made little progress on any feature of the program except projected reorganization of the General Accounting office, has virtually been at an impasse.

Authority for the President to appoint six secretarial assistants to aid him in his increasing executive functions.

Even in the House committee there is strong sentiment for revision of some of these proposals, and significant changes are expected before they are reported.

Accompanying Chairman Cochran to the White House were Representatives Lindsay Warren, of North Carolina; Fred Vinson, of Kentucky; J. W. Robinson, of Utah; Harry Beam, of Illinois, and Frank Kniffin, of Ohio.

A majority of the Senate Reorganization Committee has apparently been only lukewarm toward the proposals. A bipartisan group in the Senate committee, led by Senator Harry Flood Byrd, of Virginia, has sharply criticized basic features of the program, and countered these with specific reorganization proposals of the Brookings Institution.

Byrd already has released several chapters of the Brookings report, all in conflict with the President's proposals, and is about to make public the Brookings Civil Service recommendations, also widely varying from the President's plan.

Would Meet Separately.

Procedure discussed yesterday with the President involves convening the House Reorganization Committee, apart from the Senate group, for the purpose of drafting the reorganization program in four separate measures.

Roughly, these would include:

Power for the President to reorganize Government agencies, through shifts, mergers and eliminations, and possible authority for two new departments of Government—Welfare and Public Works.

A new Civil Service setup, under a single Civil Service administrator, with the existing Civil Service Commission abolished, and provision for "covering in" under Civil Service of all Government workers by noncompetitive tests.

Reorganization of the general accounting system, with a new Auditor General taking the place of the present Comptroller General, responsible to Congress, but with power only to make "post audits."

Purvis Heads for Europe After Cracked Romance

The famous sleuth, whose romance with Janice Jarratt, Hollywood movie actress, recently cracked up, slipped aboard the liner a few minutes before its departure yesterday.

The reason for his trip abroad remained Purvis' secret, although it was intimated that he was seeking to get " away from it all" as an aftermath of his broken love idyll.

New Faces in Congress

Rep. Bradley Frankly Asserts Economy Means Little to Him

REPRESENTATIVE MICHAEL J. BRADLEY.

Pennsylvanian Feels Industry Tries to 'Squeeze' Individual Workers, Urges Their Need of U. S. Aid; Is All for the Administration.

Michael J. Bradley (Democrat), of Philadelphia, is a vigorous man who looks the game of politics straight in the eye and says: "I don't care anything about the ways of politicians." By this, Bradley means he always will say exactly what he has on his mind.

Yesterday he said he had something to say, and it was this:

"Nothing has been done by industry itself to correct the evils which caused the depression. The urge for unlimited and exorbitant profits still continues. In fact, during the depression and since the recovery, industry has developed new methods designed to squeeze more production from the individual worker and thereby has aggravated the conditions which were the cause of the depression."

To this blast the Representative appended: "Until such time as industry either by its own efforts corrects these conditions, or until it is possible to have legislation enacted regulating profits and production and we have a Supreme Court which will interpret the Constitution as it should be interpreted—namely, from the viewpoint that human rights are superior to property rights—I feel that the Government has an obligation toward those who wish to work and who are deprived of it.

"For that reason I favor the continuation of Governmental activities to provide for WPA employment and for relief, and I will vote for the maximum amount that it is possible to obtain without much regard for the cries of economy."

Bradley recalled that politics hasn't been easy sledding for him. At the beginning, he was a Democrat in the Republican land of Pennsylvania. It was something like being a Republican in South Carolina.

"They used to say, 'He's a good fellow, but he's a Democrat,'" Bradley recalled. This was the state of affairs before the Roosevelt landslide.

He tried unsuccessfully for Congress in 1934. His friends wanted him to contest the election, but Bradley thought it wouldn't be sportsmanlike. He ran again. His opponent was famed as an orator and was pushed by the G. O. P. national committee. The battle was waged largely over the radio. Bradley won by a majority of 27,784.

He sees things 100 per cent with the Administration.

His career, in sketch, runs as follows: He was born in Philadelphia May 24, 1897. He was educated in the parochial schools. He enlisted in the Navy in May, 1917, served overseas from December, 1917, to December, 1919. In private life, he engages in the investment security and brokerage business, and has been deputy insurance commissioner for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

He was a little doubtful about an answer—when asked what his hobbies were. "I guess I take it out in reading; I like mystery things," he said.

Last year the youngsters were greeted on the White House lawn by President Roosevelt.

Formal welcome from the sponsors of the safety demonstration will be extended by Thomas P. Henry, of Detroit, president of the American Automobile Association.

With Congressional leaders and a number of other dignitaries in the reviewing stand, a parade will be staged tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Supreme Court Asked to Settle TVA Problem

By the Associated Press.

The Tennessee Valley Authority appealed to the Supreme Court yesterday to settle quickly and definitely a challenge now pending in a lower court against the constitutionality of President Roosevelt's "yardstick" power policy.

James Lawrence Fly, TVA solicitor, filed with the court a petition for a review of last week's decision of the Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals, insofar as that decision sent the suit of 17 private utilities back to the Federal district court in Tennessee for trial.

Contending nothing could be gained by delay, Fly's petition sought to obtain permission to argue the case in the Supreme Court next fall for final disposition. He asked that this permission be granted before the court adjourns June 2 for the summer.

Should the justices agree to the request, Fly said, it would in effect permit the TVA to continue expansion of its power development without the threat of further delay in lower court proceedings.

Fly emphasized the TVA is satisfied with the Circuit Court decision dissolving an injunction granted by Federal Judge John J. Gore in eastern Tennessee, but at the same time believes there is no reason for trying the case on its merits in Judge Gore's court.

He told reporters the TVA feels a Supreme Court verdict in the Ashwonder case handed down February 7, 1936, covers all basic points in the present legal attack on TVA. The Ashwonder judgment held that the Government has the right to market surplus power from dams built for a constitutional purpose, such as flood control.

He said the Circuit Court decision sending the case back for trial is in direct conflict with the Ashwonder decision.

5 Valuable Taney 'Original' Letters Lost on Car Here

Five original letters written by Roger B. Taney, former Chief Justice of the United States, were lost on a street car yesterday while being taken to the Library of Congress, where they were to be presented.

The loss was reported to police by Thomas P. Martin, chief of the manuscript division of the library, who said the papers belonged to Mrs. William Anderson, of Charlotte, N. C.

Martin told police Mrs. Anderson was bringing the letters to him when they were misplaced on a street car "somewhere in the northwest section."

The papers were described as "very valuable."

Unidentified Body Found; Knifed, Shot

With a knife stuck in his chest and a bullet wound in his head, the body of an unidentified colored man was found late Wednesday by police investigating a reported larceny.

The body was discovered under a bed in 1508 Twelfth street northwest by Detective Sergt. Robert Bryant and Detective Frank Smith when they went to investigate a telephone call complaining of a theft in the house.

Homicide Squad Lieutenant George Darnall said the death undoubtedly was a suicide. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald had not issued a certificate last night.

22 Firms, Individuals Get AAA Payments of $10,000 or More

By the Associated Press.

The AAA made public yesterday a list of 22 firms and individuals who received Federal payments of $10,000 or more for participating in the Government's 1936 soil conservation program.

Officials said publication of the list carried out a policy announced last year after the Senate requested publication for such payments previously made.

The largest payment to date for 1936 participation, it was announced, was $60,388 to the Delta Pine and Land Co. in Bolivar County, Miss.

The manager of the Delta Pine and Land Co. is Oscar Johnston, formerly finance director of the original AAA and later manager of the Government cotton producers' pool, which has been liquidated. Johnston now is a director of the Government-controlled Commodity Credit Corporation, from which, officials said, he has drawn no salary or expenses.

A payment for $13,906 went to the Delta Planting Co., also of Bolivar County, Miss.

The Mississippi State Penitentiary, Sunflower County, Parchman, Miss., received $37,488, while $25,576 went to the Breece Prewitt Sheep Co. in McKinley County, Ariz.

In addition to checks not yet mailed, about 280,000 payments are under suspension in State offices or in Washington. Most of these, Administration spokesmen said, involve "violations of the technical procedure set up to safeguard payment of funds under the program."

After a recheck, they said, "an overwhelming majority of the suspended cases are paid."

Only a few cases of fraud have been discovered, the officials reported, and these have been "turned over to proper authorities for appropriate action."

D.C. Court Jury Acquits Rice of Senate Charge

Railway Audit Official Is Freed; 'Anger' Behind Action, Says Defense.

L. Douglas Rice, vice president and general manager of the Railway Audit & Inspection Co., was acquitted of a charge of contempt of the United States Senate in a ruling by a jury in District Court late yesterday.

Rice was charged with having failed to appear in answer to a summons and with having destroyed or failed to produce records which the Senate committee investigating civil liberties had demanded. The jury, sitting before Justice Peyton Gordon, was out only 45 minutes before bringing back its verdict.

Defense attorneys previously had stressed the fact that while the Senate summons was awaiting action, Rice and five others also indicted had filed civil suits to restrain the Senate from taking their files, their suits being injunctions to restrain the committee because of a disputed validity of the summons.

In final arguments to the jury, Defense Attorneys Leonard Weinberg and A. L. Newmyer asserted "it has become the fashion here in Washington to browbeat and intimidate anybody who does assert his rights. It is because this defendant so dared that this action is brought by petulant and angry men."

The charge against Rice was one of the first of the type brought here. He and his colleagues were charged with having failed to respond to Senate summonses which called for their testimony and for the production of records of the company which were wanted for scrutiny. There was testimony Senate observers had taken scraps from the waste baskets of the company and had pieced together torn papers so that the entire record would be available.

No word was forthcoming late last night as to whether the remaining defendants would be placed on trial.

America's Cup Challenger Proceeding to Newport Under Own Sail.

By the Associated Press.

Newport, R. I., May 20.—After snapping her tow line and losing her convoy in a 65-mile gale, Endeavour I, possible British challenger for the America's cup, tonight was believed far out on the Atlantic proceeding under her own sail for Newport, scene of the approaching international sailing contest.

First news of the mishap, which occurred Friday about 1,000 miles off Newport, was received when the convoying yacht Viva arrived here alone today.

Capt. Wallace Grint of the Viva said he entertained no fear for safety of the racing sloop and her crew of 19.

"I expect she will poke her nose in her late Saturday or some time Sunday," he said.

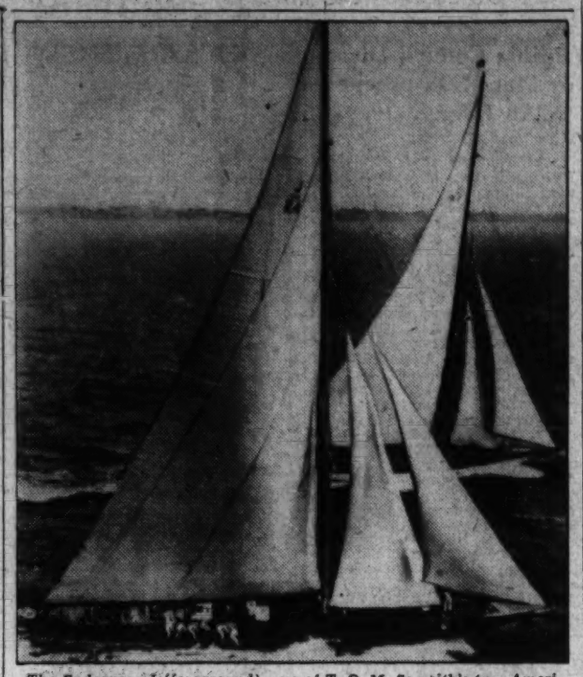
Endeavour II Here.

Endeavour I was defeated by Rainbow, sailed by Harold S. Vanderbilt, in 1934. Endeavour II, the sloop built by T. O. M. Sopwith in his second quest for the famed trophy, arrived Tuesday after an uneventful voyage from Gosport, England. Spowith has said he would not decide which he would send against an American defender, yet to be selected, until he held trials between the two Endeavours in local waters.

Last word from Endeavour I, received by Viva Saturday night shortly before radio communication failed, was "all well," and that she was proceeding at six knots on a south westerly course.

Trial Races Postponed.

The storm which parted Endeavour I's tow line was believed to be the same that cost Harold S. Vanderbilt's newly launched defense aspirant Ranger her 165-foot duralumin mast last week. Ranger's rigging snapped Friday night while she was being towed from Bath, Me., and the towering spar broke off about 35 feet above the deck next day and plunged into the sea.



The Endeavour I (foreground), one of T. O. M. Sopwith's two America's Cup contenders, which parted her towline 900 miles off Newport and was fighting a gale somewhere in the Atlantic.

The accident to Ranger caused the New York Yacht Club, custodians of the cup, to postpone trial races between the three defense aspirants today. The preliminary trials will begin June 2 instead of May 29, and the observation races June 19 instead of June 12. The final trials will open July 3, as originally scheduled, and no change was made in the date for opening the international contest July 31.

Capt. Grint said he spent more than 40 hours searching for Endeavour I after the tow line snapped. The entire voyage, members of Viva's crew said, was rough, and once, previously, the tow line parted, but on that occasion it was picked up again.

The Viva, Capt. Grint said, would not put out to look for Endeavour I unless he received a call for assistance. An offer from Coast Guard to assist in a search was not immediately accepted. The captain said he saw no necessity for such a search.

Capt. Ned Heard, veteran of the late Sir Thomas Lipton's long campaign to lift "the battered old mug," is in command of Endeavour I.

Lindbergh Reticent as Nations Celebrate 10th Year of Flight

Flier Spurns Numerous Festivals Commemorating Solo Hop to Paris; Lone Eagle Once Pegged Down General's Tent in Camp.

By the Associated Press.

St. Louis, May 20.—Ten years ago tonight, Charles A. Lindbergh, alone in the "Spirit of St Louis," sped through the blackness of the mid-Atlantic—New York hours behind him; Paris even farther ahead.

The world, which had waited tensely for news of the intrepid flier, remembered the long, anxious hours in the mellowing memories of a decade.

Little Falls, Minn., St. Louis and New York recalled informally today the drama of the "Lone Eagle's" take-off on his epic flight. Paris will remember tomorrow the landing at Le Bourget. But the anxiety of the black hours from dusk to dawn, May 20-21, 1927, gave little cause for celebration tonight.

Lindbergh himself, in seclusion in England, avoided any of the fuss of celebration. "I am not!" he said emphatically to a friend who asked him if he planned to observe the anniversary of his flight.

A picture of Lindbergh in his air-mail days, contrasting sharply with his present reticence, came from Maj. Albert Bond Lambert, one of the nine St. Louisans who helped finance the spanning of the Atlantic.

Lindbergh, then a member of the 110th Observation Squadron of the Missouri National Guard, attended the militia's annual encampment at Lambert Field in St. Louis in the fall of 1926. The adjutant general of the State reached camp on a hot night and a tent was raised for him.

"The general awoke about 2 o'clock in the morning in a pool of perspiration," Lambert said. "He tried to leave the tent and couldn't. Someone had pegged the tent down on all sides. His struggles brought the guard, who released him. Infuriated, the general aroused the captain and had the entire camp assembled. The culprit who pegged down the general's tent was ordered forward. A man stepped out of the ranks. It was Lindbergh."

Air Show at St. Louis.

St. Louis, home of Lindbergh's collection of trophies, which more than 5,000,000 persons have seen, planned its chief tribute to "Slim," its air mail pilot who won the world's honors, May 29-31, when an air show will be held.

Little Falls, which is converting Lindbergh's boyhood home into a State park, dropped plans for a dedication ceremony because the work has not been completed. Residents hoped Lindbergh would return from England for the dedication at some future date.

Paris will hold an anniversary reception tomorrow night, with a toast scheduled for 10:21 p. m. (4:21 p. m. Eastern standard time), the exact moment when the "Lone Eagle" landed 33 hours and 29 minutes after he left New York.

The most ambitious commemoration of the flight—a proposed New York-to-Paris race—met with the objections of United States Department of Commerce officials. The French air ministry and the Aero Club of France, co-sponsors of the race, were considering a substitute race route.

New York Celebration.

New York, May 20 (AP).—Hundreds gathered tonight to commemorate the most famous flight in the history of American aeronautics.

Met to do honor to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, the monosyllabic flier who wanted credentials when he flew to Paris so he could establsih his identity at Le Bourget Field, his acquaintances and admirers were favored with no greeting from him which they deigned to make public.

"Yes," conceded one man who knew "Slim" when he was flying the mails in the Middle West, "he did communicate with a few of us today, but he wasn't very enthusiastic about the idea of a luncheon and a dinner in his honor."

Notables Attend.

Across town from the serpentine thoroughfare called Broadway, a concrete-walled canyon up which Lindbergh rode in triumph on his return from Paris in 1927, placecards were scattered on long rectangles of white linen for the dinner at which Thomas W. Lamont, the financier, was invited to be the principal speaker.

Among his hearers were French and American diplomats from Washington; Col. George W. Burleigh, executive vice chairman of the dinner committee and president of the France-America Society; Raymond Orteig, donor of the $25,000 prize wrich Lindbergh received for his flight; Col. Norbert Champsaur, air attache of the French embassy, and Charles Lawrance, inventor of the air-cooled radial engine which carried the flier to his destination.

Leaders in aeronautical, industrial and civic fields also were present.

50 Flee Fire Safely.

Boston, May 20 (AP).—Fifty children, 15 of them less than 2 years of age, were led to safety by kindergarten teachers and nursery workers today as a two-alarm fire swept two floors of the six-story Morgan Memorial Building in Boston's south end. Some 400 building employes also were forced to flee.

British Royalty To Meet Duke OnHoneymoon

Barred From Ceremony by Government, Family Plans Rendezvous.

By the Associated Press.

Monts, France, May 20.—Members of the British royal family will meet the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Warfield on their honeymoon, a friend of the former British monarch said today.

Although none of the duke's relatives will be at the wedding, set for June 3 at Monts, several of them will see the couple during a three-day stay at Biarritz, French resort on the Bay of Biscay, this informant said.

He did not disclose what members of the House of Windsor would be there, but it was thought probable that Edward's favorite brother, the Duke of Kent, would be one of them.

Kent, the youngest of the four brothers, won't attend the wedding ceremony, as he had once contemplated—the British government saw to that, in its effort to let Britain forget the abdicated king.

But he and the Duchess of Kent make frequent visits to the Continent, and it was thought he would take advantage of one of these excursions to show that the whole family is not snubbing Mrs. Warfield.

There was some belief the Princess Royal Mary, sister of Edward, also would visit the couple soon.

From Biarritz, the duke and his bride will embark on a yacht for Yugoslav waters, visiting the Dalmatian coast, where their romance flowered last summer.

Seek Religious Wedding.

Then they will go to Wasserleonburg Castle on the southern border of Austria, to remain three months, his friends said.

The duke and Mrs. Warfield are not completely satisfied with having merely a civil ceremony and are seeking an ecclesiastic of the Church of England to marry them, said Herman L. Rogers, their spokesman.

The civil service is to be held in the music room of the Chateau de Cande, where the two are staying, with Mayor Charles Mercier of Monts officiating. If an Anglican churchman is found who will perform a religious wedding, it will immediately follow the civil rites, Rogers said.

Five in House Will Plead for Jordon's Life

Palmisano Heads 'Mercy' Group; Police Called 'Terribly Lax.'

tice continue its investigation of the Jordon case—an investigation that already has brought a 30-day postponement of the execution.

Representative Schaefer explained the decision of the sub-committee to call on Attorney General Cummings and urge Jordon's life be spared had nothing to do with the formal report.

"Individual" Action.

"We did that as individuals," he explained. "A majority of us felt that if Jordon had been given the benefit of all the evidence in the case, he never would have been convicted. All of us agreed to do what we could to save him from the electric chair, and Chairman Palmisano was directed to make an appointment with the Attorney General."

The sub-committee felt, Schaefer said, that the Department of Justice already had done a good job in uncovering evidence helpful to Jordon, and that it was in a better position than the House to help him further.

The sub-committee was appointed a week ago last Wednesday after John M. Holzworth, who had just been "fired" as Jordon's attorney, appeared at a meeting of the House District Committee and made sweeping charges against the police, the United States attorney's office and the District Court for their handling of Jordon's case.

Record Examined.

The sub-committee was directed to make an inquiry and then recommend to the full committee whether there should be a general investigation of the law-enforcement machinery in the National Capital. No such general investigation will be held.

"We confined ourselves to the Jordon case," Representative Schaefer explained. "We not only heard Holzworth's charges, but we examined the record in the case. We read Jordon's confession and the testimony of the prosecution witnesses.

"Today we heard the story of Mr. Schneider (F. C. Schneider, of 1363 Iris street northwest). He and his wife and two neighbors were eating in the Garden T Shoppe the night that Mrs. Lizzie Jaynes was shot during the holdup. They all saw the two holdup men. Yet they were never asked to identify Jordon or called to his trial.

"Probably there were others in the restaurant that saw it and were not called. Why didn't the police get the names of everybody in the place? It looked to us as if they were terribly lax in their investigation.

"A motion was made at our meeting that the office of the United States attorney be 'whitewashed' for its handling of the case. We didn't see any reason why we should either praise or criticize that office.

"We all did agree that it would be a great wrong to electrocute Jordon while there was such a cloud of doubt over his case. At least three of the five of us are convinced that he would have been acquitted if all the evidence in the case had been used at his trial."

Study Police Lookout.

The unused evidence is now in possession of the Department of Justice. It includes a police lookout, broadcast on the Good Friday night in 1931 that Mrs. Jaynes was mortally wounded, which described the two holdup men as 6-footers.

Jordon is 5 feet 6¼.

The police lookout, based on information given by Mrs. Jaynes herself, also says the 6-footer with the "gray eyes, fair hair * * * held the gun."

Jordon has dark eyes and black hair.

The sub-committee members saw a copy of this lookout, and also copies of statements given to the Department of Justice by policemen and others with a knowledge of the crime who were never called as witnesses.

Raskob Takes Stand, Tells of Stock Dealings

Sales Between du Pont and Self to Set Up Losses Are Described.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 20.—As a result of a conversation on Fifth avenue, John J. Raskob testified today, he and Pierre S. du Pont sold each other approximately $6,000,000 worth of securities shortly after the stock market crash of 1929.

Later they repurchased the stocks, he said, but he denied there had been any agreement to do so at the time of the sales.

Raskob, former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, testified at a Government hearing on charges that the transactions were designed to establish a bookkeeping loss for income tax purposes.

The hearing is on the Government's claim that du Pont owes an additional $617,316 on his 1929 income. A claim for $1,026,340 against Raskob is pending.

Raskob Describes Sales.

Raskob, who wore a trim blue suit, was called to the stand by his own attorney, Joseph M. Hartfield.

After recalling how he became associated with du Pont in 1900 as his stenographer and bookkeeper, later becoming his friend and business associate, the witness was asked about a conversation they had on November 12, 1929.

"We were walking down Fifth avenue," he began, "and Mr. du Pont told me he had established large profits in the sale of securities. He also had losses in other blocks of stocks and he wanted to sell these stocks to establish losses. But he didn't want to sell them in the open market. He asked me if I was in a similar position. I told him I would let him know in the morning."

"Why," interjected Hartfield, "didn't he want to sell in the open market?"

"He didn't want to be in a position of depressing the market further," Raskob said. Du Pont testified yesterday he spent $20,000,000 to protect brokerage accounts of relatives and friends and to try to rally the market when it was crashing.

Prepared List of Stocks.

Next morning, Raskob continued, he prepared a list of stocks which he wanted to sell to establish losses. Asked what he meant by establishing losses, he said:

"I mean that I had blocks of securities in which I had a loss in comparison with values before the crash. I could not deduct these losses until I sold the stocks to establish the loss."

He then described two transactions, the first taking place on November 13, when he gave du Pont a check for $4,582,750 for stocks purchased, and received a check for $4,600,000 for stocks sold.

The following month, on December 26, he said, he sold $1,569,000 worth of securities to du Pont and purchased $1,560,000 worth.

The stocks involved in these cross sales were repurchased by their original owners on January 6 and 27, 1930.

"Mr. Raskob," said Hartfield, "did you have any understanding with Mr. du Pont that you would buy back the stocks you sold to him?"

"I did not," the witness replied.

"Was there any understanding that he would buy back the stocks he sold to you?"

"There was no agreement of any kind."

The Government has sought to show the two industrialists had agreed to repurchase each other's stocks within 30 days, contrary to tthe revenue law of 1928.

Senate Will Get Spy Resolution, Nye Forecasts

Expects Favorable Report on Investigation Into Spanish Activities.

A new Congressional spy hunt appeared to be just around the corner today.

Senator Gerald P. Nye (Republican), of North Dakota, was quoted by the United Press as asserting his resolution calling for an investigation of espionage activities in the United States by agents of both sides in the Spanish civil war, will be reported favorably to the Senate.

The resolution now is before the Senate foreign relations committee, which Wednesday rejected another resolution of Nye's which would have requested Ambassador to Germany William E. Dodd to name the man who Dodd says controls a billion dollars and wants to spend it to install an American dictator.

Nye was quoted as declaring that he had been assured his espionage investigation measure will be reported shortly and that it will possibly be broadened to include an inquiry into the activities of Italian Fascist and German Nazi agents in this country.

Introduction of the resolution by Nye followed sensational charges of assistance to Spanish rebels by Juan Cardenas, former Spanish Ambassador in Washington, and others.

A demand that Secretary of State Cordell Hull use his "good offices" to "mitigate the sufferings of thousands of noncombatant Basques now enduring the calamity of war in defense of their native land" was circulated yesterday by Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the New York Methodist Episcopal diocese.

McConnell is chairman of the North American committee to aid Spanish democracy. Included among 16 new signers of that group's "appeal to the conscience of the world" were eight Senators, among them Nye and Borah.

New Death Story Revealed in Trial

Jersey City, N. J., May 20 (AP).—A new version of the hatchet slaying of Mrs. Helen Macknight—one in which she was pictured as discovering her daughter in an embrace with her red-haired sweetheart and advancing toward them with a knife—was given today in the murder trial of 17-year-old Gladys Macknight and Donald Wightman, 18.

It came near the end of the State's evidence in a statement by the girl herself, the first purported confession she was said to have made to police.

Her counsel insisted upon its introduction after the State had put into the evidence separate later statements by both Gladys and Wightman which quoted them as saying she hacked her mother to death while Donald held her arms because the mother "wouldn't hurry" dinner so they could play a game of tennis.

Virginia Clubs To Ballot Upon Birth Control

Women's Federation Also to Consider Service on Juries.

By the Associated Press.

Lynchburg, Va., May 20.—Delegates attending the annual meeting of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs here will vote tomorrow on resolutions indorsing birth control, immigration restrictions and jury service for Virginia women.

The 200 delegates listened today without comment to the reading of the resolutions. Some delegates believed the birth-control resolution might produce a storm of controversy.

The convention was addressed tonight by Dr. Richard R. Brown, of Washington, deputy executive director of the National Youth Administration, who spoke on "Youth and Your Community," and by James V. Bennett, also of Washington, director of prisons, who spoke on "The Family and Crime Prevention."

The convention adopted the legislative committee's report calling for the following activities in 1937-1938:

Support of Dr. Sidney B. Hall's minimum program for education, seeking higher pay for school teachers, nine-month school terms and expenditure of more State money per pupil.

Raising of funds for a new building to house the Virginia State Library.

Restriction of billboards in cooperation with the associated clubs of Virginia for roadside development.

Approval of practical and constitutional old-age pension act when one is found, and indorsement of intermediate sentences for criminals and stricter control over prisoners after their release from prison.

The delegates heard an address by Dr. J. Shelton Horsley, State chairman of the American Society for the control of Cancer, and another by Dr. Wright Clarkson, vice chairman, on the cancer-control work now in progress in Virginia.

The convention will end tomorrow.

Galleher Resigns NEC Post, Maps Attorneyship Campaign

Virginia Council Director Plans 50 Speeches All Over State.

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., May 20.—Relinquishing his post as National Emergency Council director for Virginia, John Galleher, of Leesburg, candidate for attorney general, planned a State-wide campaign today in his contest with Attorney General A. P. Staples and former State Senator W. Worth Smith, of Louisa.

Galleher announced yesterday he had resigned the NEC position in order to devote the major part of his time until the August primary in behalf of his candidacy.

"I am mapping my campaign itinerary and expect to make at least 50 speeches all over the State," he said. "What's more I shall have a platform and be prepared to discuss all the issues frankly, because I think that is what a candidate should do."

He said he planned to open campaign headquarters here by the end of the month. His wife, vice president of the Young Democratic Clubs of America, will campaign with him, he said.

The NEC office will not be filled at present, Galleher said, but the work will be handled by Lee Stevens, of Roanoke, as acting director. Stevens was Galleher's assistant prior to the resignation.

The state office of the NEC is responsible for co-ordinating the activities of all the Federal agencies in the State.

Ex-Ziegfeld Star Starts Style Row

Oklahoma City, May 20 (AP).—Faith Bacon, former Ziegfeld Follies beauty now "glorifying the nude" in vaudeville, withdrew as lingerie model for a style show tonight under charges her performance would be a "strip-tease."

Miss Bacon explained she was to appear in a trailing robe, abandon it to disclose a nightie—then stepins.

"I didn't know she was planning a strip-tease," said Mrs. Lou B. Paine, Camp Fire Girl executive, in announcing her organization would not accept any proceeds from the show if Miss Bacon modeled. "You know, lingerie can get pretty close to the natural."

Mayor Frank C. Martin said he had received 60 protests against Miss Bacon's initial stage performance tomorrow. He has not acted.

Indignantly, Miss Bacon countered: "I really dance. It isn't just displaying my body," and explained she appears in orchids—then tosses them.

Kidnaping Bride, 14, Laid to Spouse

South Bend, Ind., May 20 (AP).—Local and county authorities launched a widespread search tonight for Robert Yost, 20-year-old filling station operator, whom they accused of abducting his 14-year-old bride, Catherine Mazeo Yost, from the home of her parents.

Officers said Yost, apparently angered by an annulment suit filed by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mazeo, in circuit court this morning, broke the glass in the rear door of the Mazeo home and beat his mother-in-law when she attempted to prevent him from leaving with his child-bride.

Those charged gave their names as Charles A. Wyles, 67, of 900 block U street northwest, and Philip H. Cobbs, 32, of 1700 block Fifth street northwest. The others were released.

The raids, participated in by Policemen Carl Serk, H. H. Hodge and Marshal Clayton Gasque, were staged at 905 U street northwest, 632 and 634 T street northwest and 1721 Fifth street northwest. Gasque said "numbers" slips were seized in all places.

Noted Arbiters To Call Strikes In Press Game

Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations; WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins, John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, and Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas, majority floor leader, will head the list of honorary umpires who will officiate at the baseball game between Congress and the Press Galleries, a feature of the National Press Club outing Saturday.

The Supreme Court of Umpires has been "reorganized" since the 1935 game and the actual work of calling balls and strikes will be performed by two Marine officers from the barracks.

The Marines, detailed to the job by Maj. Gen. Charles Lyman, commandant of the Quantico base, were assigned following protests that the contest between the lawgivers and the newspapermen would be a serious affair.

Meanwhile, it was decided that Fire Fighter, the District's old fire boat, is too old to go to parties, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen said yesterday.

Hazen, after listening to the advice of Fire Chief Charles E. Schrom, refused a request of the National Press Club for Fire Fighter's presence at the outing.

With Vice President Garner as their guest, the newsmen will go to Quantico aboard the S. S. Potomac. They wanted Fire Fighter to hail their departure with a water salute from all nozzles.

Schrom, however, declared that the 32-year-old boat is in too poor condition to indulge in such frivolity and should be sent into action only when necessary. He said that both boilers might break down should all water-throwing equipment be turned on at one time.

Man Wanted Here Faces Death Trial

New York, May 20 (AP).—Federal authorities indicated tonight that Jewell Ashby Gould, 33, holder of an extensive police record and wanted in Washington for a $5,000 jewelry theft, might be turned over to police here in connection with the 1934 jewel robbery slaying of Max Silverstein.

Witnesses produced by New York detectives said they identified Gould as an associate of a jewelry "firm" at 83 Canal street where Silverstein, answering a call for samples, was found beaten and suffocated by gags, his $6,500 in gems gone.

Gould was arrested here May 6 in connection with the Washington robbery, in which Maude W. Hodge, Ruth C. Macadow and Eleanor V. Fitchen were the losers.

Eula Mae Bennett, companion of Gould who was indicted with him in the Washington case, was in the line-up here today but was not connected with Gould's activities here.

Farm Bureau Head Is Opposing Tariff

By the Associated Press.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, said yesterday a tariff provision was not essential for successful operation of the proposed "agricultural adjustment act of 1937" drafted by his and other farm organizations.

His statement was made before the House Agriculture Committee after Secretary Wallace had expressed the opinion the provision might interfere with reciprocal trade agreements with other nations.

Pacific Air Bases Urged by Swanson

By the United Press.

Secretary of the Navy Claude A. Swanson informed the House Naval Affairs Committee yesterday expansion of "inadequate" air defenses in the Pacific is "an urgent, immediate requirement."

The need for more and better airplane bases on the West Coast, in Panama and Hawaii should be filled before any plans are made for additional air bases on the Atlantic Coast, Swanson said in a letter to Committee Chairman Carl Vinson (Democrat), of Georgia.

Cardinal Mundelein's Attack on Hitler Draws Reich Protest; State Department Plans No Reply to Informal Representation

Third Complaint Is Made in 3 Months; Incident Held Closed.

character. He offered no other comment.

Dr. Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, just beginning his tenure here as German Ambassador succeeding Dr. Hans Luther, told newsmen the matter was presented to the State Department in the usual friendly manner and that so far as he was concerned the incident was closed.

(The German press headlined the action as "energetic German protest in U. S. A.")

The cardinal's address Tuesday, which precipitated the incident, also was devoted to an attack on what he declared was Nazi Germany's "malicious propaganda" against the church. Protestant and Jewish leaders in Chicago voiced their support of his charges today.

(In Berlin the official German news agency labeled Cardinal Mundelein's remark as "silly and tactless insults to the Fuehrer and Reichchancellor," while Nazi newspapers termed them "a shameless campaign of lies by Roman Catholic international."

(In reply to the press attacks, which called upon the Holy See to repudiate Mundelein's speech, Vatican City churchmen said the cardinal had a right to speak his own mind and that the Holy Seee would not interfere.)

Rally to Mundelein.

Chicago, May 20 (AP).—Powerful churchmen — Catholic, Protestant and Jewish—rallied to the support of George Cardinal Mundelein today.

The Rev. Edward V. Dailey, editorial writer for the Catholic publication, the New World, asserted the cardinal's recent denunciation of the German government's attitude toward the church sustained the position of the Pope.

"Every bishop since the Roman Catholic Church was founded has come out against heresies and neopaganisms," he said. "The Popes of Rome constantly fought the heresies of the day in their encyclicals. The present Pope wrote an encyclical * * * and Cardinal Mundelein, by his speech, merely stands behind him."

Stand Side by Side.

Dr. Ernest Graham Guthrie, general director of the Greater Chicago Congregational churches, commented:

"Absolutely. Protestantism and Roman Catholicism have the same profound interests when it comes to the question of religion controlled by a state. Then they stand side by side in protest."

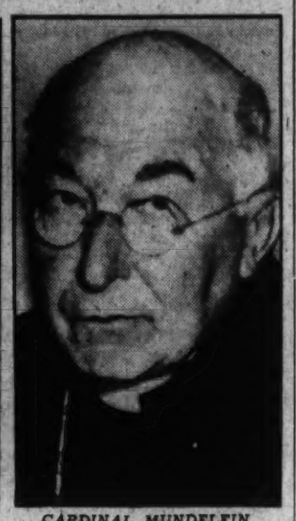
Methodist Episcopal Bishop Ernest Lynn Waldorf said he assumed the cardinal was in "possession of the facts" and added:

"As his fellow citizens, we believe he is thoroughly justified in making these facts known."

Dr. George Fox, president of the Chicago Rabbinical Association, declared the cardinal was "right in saying this thing in Germany must be stopped now."

"I hope that all religious forces, both Christian and Jewish," he said, "will unite in upholding Cardinal Mundelein's hand because all religious forces are in imminent danger."

AMBASSADOR DIECKHOFF.



CARDINAL MUNDELEIN.

Persecutions Assailed.

Protestant Episcopal Bishop George Craig Stewart stated:

"What religious liberty means may easily be seen by the insufferable treatment of the Jews in Germany. The Roman Catholics find themselves in the same position, harassed, embarrassed and tormented with trumped-up charges against large numbers of secular and religious clergy. The German nation's attitude toward religion under Adolf Hitler is a recrudescense of the persecution of the Christians by the Caesars."

The Rev. George L. Scherger, pastor of St. Paul's Evangelical Reformed Church, expressed "regret that the cardinal resorted to personalities by calling Hitler a 'paper hanger' because in doing so he ignored such historical facts as that Abraham Lincoln was born in a log cabin."

Cardinal Mundelein, in seclusion in his villa in suburban Mundelein, was informed of fresh developments anent his address to clergy of the archdiocese last Tuesday, but withheld further comment.

Morality Is Assailed.

Berlin, May 20 (AP).—The recent conviction of a number of Catholic priests and lay brothers of immorality is "clearing the way for the Germanic faith (Deutscher Gotterkenntnis)," declared today's issue of Gen. Erich Ludendorff's neopaganist fortnightly magazine.

An article by Dr. Mathilde Ludendorff, the general's wife, who shares his leadership of the Germanic god movement, was headed: "The Roman Church destroys itself."

Dr. Ludendorff said she wrote from experience as a physician and blamed the immorality cases on the institution of celibacy among the Catholic clergy.

So long as this prevails, she predicted, fresh evidences of immorality will develop.

"Long after the worst scapegoats have vanished into monasteries abroad the same perversion, like an epidemic of plagues, will break out again," she wrote.

Because, she contended, the Church refuses to abandon this system, "which treads underfoot the idea of perpetuation of a nation," it is "destroying itself through its cloisters and involuntarily helping to clear the way for the Germanic faith."

Castel Gandolfo, Italy, May 20 (AP). The Pope has told a group of German pilgrims from Muenster and Cologne that he is praying for them daily in their fight "against a hard and unjust battle directed against your religious conscience."

The audience took place yesterday, it was disclosed today.

The Nazi press tonight renewed its attacks on Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York.

The official news agency, Deutsches Nachrichtenburo, under the caption, "Hair-Raising Immorality in New York Schools," distributed throughout Germany a New York news item describing alleged conditions in Brooklyn.

It said the board of education was investigating wholesale bootlegging of contraceptives among students of six Brooklyn high schools.

"This action by the board of education," the agency's item said, "is further evidence of what unheard of things are possible in this city under the eyes of the Jew LaGuardia.

"There long have been rumors to the effect that something unusual has been going on in six schools in Brooklyn Borough. Finally there is open talk of very immoral behavior among pupils of both sexes.

"When the New York district attorney investigated these rumors it was found that high school pupils were working hand in hand with gangsters who supplied them with contraceptives."

The agency emphasized that Brooklyn is inhabited "chiefly by Jews and Catholics."

Churchman Wins Wide Support of Jews, Protestants.

London, May 20 (AP).—The Catholic magazine The Universe said tonight the government had refused to submit to King George VI an address in which Roman Catholic archbishops and bishops of Great Britain reaffirmed the loyalty of British Catholics to the throne.

The publication declared Home Secretary Sir John Simon, through whose hands the communication had to pass, said he was "unable to submit" to the monarch an address in which the archbishops and bishops, in their signatures, used "territorial designations which cannot be recognized in official communications."

Press Sounds Warning.

Rochester, N. Y., May 20.—The Catholic press of this country sounded warning here today that it will fight communism and dictatorships with every legitimate weapon at its disposal.

Each of four executives who made up the speaking program for the opening of the three-day session of the twenty-seventh annual meeting of the Catholic Press Association was liberal with anticommunistic material.

Represented here are a majority of the 313 Catholic publications which total 8,000,000 in circulation.

In the day's most comprehensive attack against communism, the Rev. Dr. George Johnson, head of the department of education of the Catholic University of America, in Washington, D. C., declared that communism is a peril to "everything that makes life worth while."

Hutton Denies Owning, Sponsoring Atlas Tack

New York, May 20 (AP).—J. M. Hutton, of Cincinnati, testified before a Securities and Exchange Commission examiner today that neither he nor any other partners in the brokerage firm he heads ever owned stock in the Atlas Tack Corporation or recommended purchase of the stock to a single customer.

Hutton appeared as the final respondents' witness at a hearing of a complaint based on what David W. Peck, chief counsel for W. E. Hutton & Co., described as "this piddling, penny ante Atlas Tack transaction." The S. E. C. charged that the Hutton company and its members manipulated stock of the Tack corporation through the circulation of unfounded favorable rumors.

Dr. D. Clay Lilly Gets Church Post

Montreat, N. C., May 20 (AP).—Commissioners of the Presbyterian Church in the United States tonight elected Dr. D. Clay Lilly, of Reynolda, a suburb of Winston-Salem, N. C., moderator of the seventy-sixth General Assembly.

Democrat Unit For Bargaining Favor 'Spoils'

Party Workers Group Opens Drive for 250,000 Membership.

"We're 100 per cent spoilsmen, but we want the spoils to go to the people who deserve them."

This is the official description of the National Union for Collective Bargaining of Democratic Party Workers, according to its president, Walter L. Williams, an employe in the United States Engineering Office. The union, which announced itself ten days ago, last night began its first drive for membership, circulating 10,000 membership blanks in Washington and sending another 4,000 to Buffalo, Niagara Falls, New York City, Philadelphia, Providence and Baltimore.

The idea behind the union is to give the "small party worker, through collective bargaining, a voice in all party matters commensurate with his value." Local, State and national party workers are eligible for membership.

Williams, a former Democratic worker in Philadelphia and a native of Tennessee, has as his goal "250,000 members before the snow flies." He says the American Federation of Labor was unsympathetic when affiliation was discussed, but that the Committee for Industrial Organization is definitely interested.

2 Men Returned From Winchester Held on 2 Charges

Two men returned Monday from Winchester, Va., were held under bond yesterday — one on two charges involving narcotics, the other as a fugitive from justice.

William Fine, 45, of New York City, was held for the grand jury under $500 bail when arraigned before United States Commissioner Turnage on charges of violating the Harrison and the Jones-Miller narcotic acts.

His companion, George Bozell, 45, also of New York, was ordered held under $1,000 when he demanded 30 days in which to fight extradition to Nassau, N. H., where he is wanted on a grand larceny charge.

Police Chief Frank S. W. Burke of Nassau requested that Bozell be held.

Detective Sergt. Charles Mansfield, who investigated Fine, also charged Mrs. Sally Fine, 30, with the same narcotic counts last week after more than an ounce of heroin was found in her room in a downtown hotel.

Doughton Introduces Measure To Continue 'Nuisance' Taxes

By the Associated Press.

A $450,000,000 revenue measure was dropped into the House bill hopper yesterday in answer to President Roosevelt's budget message request that "nuisance" taxes be continued.

Introduced by Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, of the Ways and Means Committee, the legislation would extend the 19 levies for two years. They expire at the end of next month.

They apply to a variety of commodities ranging from matches to trucks. The rates, which vary with individual items, would not be changed.

Introduction of the extension legislation has been delayed purposely in the hope its consideration would not lead legislators to open up the general field of tax legislation.

Congressional leaders have united in expressing a desire to avoid new taxes this session if possible.

The gasoline tax would provide the largest amount of revenue—an estimated $190,180,000 in the fiscal year starting July 1.

Mrs. Clara Sevier Files for Divorce

San Antonio, Tex., May 20 (U.P.). Mrs. Clara Sevier, wealthy ranch owner and national Democratic committeewoman from Texas, filed suit today for a divorce from Hal H. Sevier, former United States Ambassador to Chile.

The couple have been married 30 years.

The suit was filed by her attorney in Corpus Christi, while Mrs. Sevier was in San Antonio with her husband.

Her husband immediately went to her room to see her, but came out a short time later and said his remonstrance was futile.

RobinsonBoom For Court Post Is Growing Fast

Appointment Certain, Say White House Advisers.

Senator Robinson, however, was known definitely to favor a compromise on the court bill. Further, Senator Matthew M. Logan (Democrat), of Kentucky, offered in the Judiciary Committee Tuesday a compromise which he said Robinson favored, and Robinson has never denied such preference. This compromise, along the lines of a previous amendment offered by Senator Carl A. Hatch (Democrat), of New Mexico, would set up a Supreme Court of nine, with the President to increase it temporarily by appointing one additional justice per calendar year for every justice over the age of 75.

Opposition Strong.

The situation, observers held, was that while the White House has not yet agreed to any compromise, the Administration leaders, on their own initiative, unable to convince the President of the stiff caliber and wide extent of the opposition, have decided to secure a compromise and present it to the President as the best that can be expected.

Even a compromise appeared as somewhat doubtful yesterday. One opposition leader said: "Joe Robinson and the other leaders have sounded out every soft spot in the Senate today on an addition of two justices to the court. So far, they can't even get that."

Six Senators of the opposition interviewed during the day, representing a rough cross section of opinion, both geographic and as to depth of feeling, agreed on but one thing—the President's court bill is dead and even the mildest of compromises stands but little chance of successful passage.

An opinion by the Supreme Court invalidating the Social Security act, either next Monday or on the following Monday, is held out as the final hope of the bill's proponents. If, as expected, the act shall be held Constitutional, some opposition Senators believe that such Court action would be "the coup de grace to all the crushing blows this bill has suffered."

Continued reports that other Supreme Court Justices will follow Van Devanter into retirement were denied in part.

One Concrete Report.

There remained but one concrete report of a pending retirement, the word of an opposition Senator, who a month ago predicted Van Devanter's retirement, that he had "positive assurances" Justice Sutherland would retire after the court bill "has been withdrawn, abandoned or defeated." This checked with a report from another source, close to the court, that Justice Sutherland may retire in the fall, before the October term of the court begins, and after the present Congress has adjourned.

Yesterday Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, court bill foe and chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, clashed several times at child labor hearings with L. E. Oliver, vice president of Labor's Nonpartisan League.

Wheeler charged "the league has been trying to get six new judges for the Supreme Court so you can get whatever labor legislation you want." Oliver answered that the league wanted a "more modern" court.

During the day several of the younger Western Senators endeavored vainly to get Pittman to race for the leadership, in an effort to secure what they termed a "more even" distribution of committee assignments. They said that on all but two committees, at the present time, either a Southern Senator was chairman, or another Southern Senator acted as "a stopper" in the seniority list.

Pittman smilingly declined, however, and threw his support to Barkley for the post.

Wisconsin Passes Bill For State Power Plants

Madison, Wis., May 20 (AP).—The Wisconsin Assembly passed and sent to the Senate today an administration-sponsored Wiscinsin development authority bill which would permit a State-wide system of public ownership of utilities.

The system would be developed under a privately incorporated organization, known as the development authority, which would do its own financing. The State, prohibited by law from engaging in works of internal improvement, would appropriate $60,000 for the development authority under the bill, but the mone ywould be used only for promotion. Sponsors of the bill said they would seek early consideration in the Senate.

More Arrests Are Predicted In Vice Inquiry

Baltimore Evidence Will Go to Federal Grand Jury Next Month.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, May 20.—United States Attorney Bernard J. Flynn said today he will present to the Federal grand jury next month the evidence collected by the Government's vice investigation in Baltimore.

The Federal prosecutor predicted that the trials of the persons indicted by the grand jury will probably get under way during July. The Federal agents have taken into custody 14 persons on charges of transporting women across State lines for immoral purposes and 17 more listed as witnesses.

Flynn said he was concerned with other aspects of the vice conditions in addition to the alleged violations of the Mann act. He said information has been submitted to the Government concerning activities of various characters.

T. Barton Harrington, assistant district attorney, said "we will undoubtedly make a number of arrests in the future. We cannot say now what the number will be, but there will certainly be a number of them."

Flynn said the agents were not making a special investigation of the Baltimore department, although he has been informed by anonymous sources that "four or five" Baltimore policemen were alleged to be connected with the vice activities here.

Two police officers, Lieut. Edward L. Hitzelberger and Sergt. August Bierman, were suspended from the force after their names had been mentioned during hearings before the United States commissioner. No charges have been placed against them, and their suspension was ordered pending the completion of the Federal investigation.

Self-Denial Plea.

Montreat, N. C., May 20 (AP).—Dr. B. Frank Price, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States, appealed for a spirit of self-denial in place of love of luxury in his sermon tonight at the opening session of the church's seventy-sixth general assembly.

Special Plane Takes 29 Fish to Roosevelt

Ossipee, N. H., May 20 (AP).—Just to show he meant what he said, Erborn W. Wood, 57-year-old sportsman, went to Mystery Pond today, swished 29 trout from its 75-foot depth and started off with them to Washington and President Roosevelt.

A few days ago Wood engaged a plane for the trip, leaving the matter of catching the fish until today.

Killed 82 Tigers; Fall Kills Maharaj

Paris, May 20 (AP).—The Maharaj of Alwar, sportsman and prince of India, died yesterday in a Paris hotel. He was 55. The Maharaj stumbled on a stairway while leaving a squash court Saturday, sustaining hip and shoulder fractures, and complications set in which caused his death.

A secretary said the prince divided his time between Bombay and Europe during the four years since Great Britain placed a financial controller over Alwar. The Maharaj traveled with 24 servants, including an orchestra, and with baggage comprising 400 trunks. A noted hunter, he had 82 tigers to the credit of his marksmanship.

Alwar is a state of 3,135 square miles and a population of 750,000.

Youth's Release Sought From Miss. Chain Gang

Los Angeles, May 20 (AP).—Juvenile Judge Robert H. Scott asked Gov. Merriam's aid today toward obtaining release of Leon Bertrand, 14, of Los Angeles, from a Mississippi chain gang at Tupelo. Judge Scott inclosed a letter from the boy to his mother, Mrs. Vera Bertrand, saying he was forced to wear chains and sleep in filth on a floor with drunken men.

Judge Scott's letter to Merriam described treatment of the boy as "uncivilized and disgraceful."

Leagues' Poll Indicates Social Law Neutrality

Chicago, May 20 (AP).—A second straw vote of delegates to the association of Junior Leagues of America, Inc., taken today indicated they overwhelmingly favored continuation of the present policy of non-sponsorship in regard to social legislation.

Although the action cannot be binding until tomorrow, when the annual business session will be held, a roll call of leagues, suggested by Mrs. Peter Harvie, of Troy, N. Y., president, indicated the Washington and Philadelphia plans, permitting leagues to actively indorse legislation and lobby for it, would be rejected.

House Fights ReliefDemands By Roosevelt and $2,390,060 over budget figures.

The principal increase was $7,241,500 for vocational education, or a total of $14,463,000 for that purpose. Under leadership of Chairman Robert L. Doughton of the House Ways and Means Committee, funds for the Blue Ridge parkway, which runs through his North Carolina district, were increase $2,000,000.

These were partly offset by reduction of $1,230,000 for the Gila reclamation project; $110,000 for Virgin Island municipal expenses, and $750,000 in administrative expenses on reclamation projects.

Flood Control Plan.

It was Chairman William M. Whittington, of the House Flood Control Committee, who brought word from the White House back to Congress that the President indorsed some $25,000,000 in emergency flood control projects in the recently inundated lower Ohio Valley.

The President recently had asked Whittington to hold up until January a start on his $800,000,000 flood control legislation. Whittington said the President would approve expenditure of some $11,000,000 in the next fiscal year, in addition to the Budget Bureau's recommendation of $30,000,000 to start the 1936 flood control act. His committee plans to start hearings at once.

The flood control projects are expected eventually to tie into the proposed subdivision of the country into eight power and flood control "TVA" districts, to be outlined in the next few days in a Presidential message.

Senate, House Split.

The recent House revolt against a "permanent" CCC program was turned back in the Senate, which refused by a 42-to-26 vote to follow the House lead in limiting the life of CCC to two years. The limiting amendment was offered by Senator Harry Flood Byrd (Democrat), Virginia. Only 17 Democrats lined up with Republicans behind the motion.

The CCC bill in the end was passed by a 67-to-2 vote, with only Senators William E. Borah (Republican) Idaho, and William H. King (Democrat), Utah, voting "No."

The Senae restored civil service requirements for CCC employes, knocked out by the House. It also restricted CCC enrollment to 315,000 youths, but eliminated a provision that they must be "needy."

Committee Balks.

As the relief battle opened in the House, Woodrum lost little time in flinging down the economy gauntlet. Woodrum, who failed to get full committee approval of his $1,000,000,000 relief restriction, is the author of a committee amendment he thinks will save more than that amount. By apportioning relief funds throughout the year, it would prevent WPA from coming back for deficiency funds.

"Gentlemen," said Woodrum, "do we not have any rights at all in this House? I do not think the President is going to be mad at me because I undertake to exercise my legislative prerogatives here as to the amount that ought to be appropriated for relief. I do not believe anybody will come here and say to me that he will, because I do not believe he would undertake to usurp the prerogatives of this Congress."

Democracy First.

The Virginian admitted the President asked $1,500,000,000 in his budget message, but he insisted the committee increased budget estimates by $223,000,000 by reappropriating unexpended balances.

The fight for a $3,000,000,000 appropriation was led by Representative Gerald J. Boileau, Wisconsin Progressive, who said that amount was necessary so that relief allotments could keep pace with the rising cost of living.

"There is something more important that balancing the budget," said Boileau, "and that is preservation of democracy in this country."

Representative Frank L. Kloeb (Democrat), of Ohio, proposed that WPA activities in rural areas be closed except from November to May. He said farmers are unable to compete with WPA in employing farm workers.

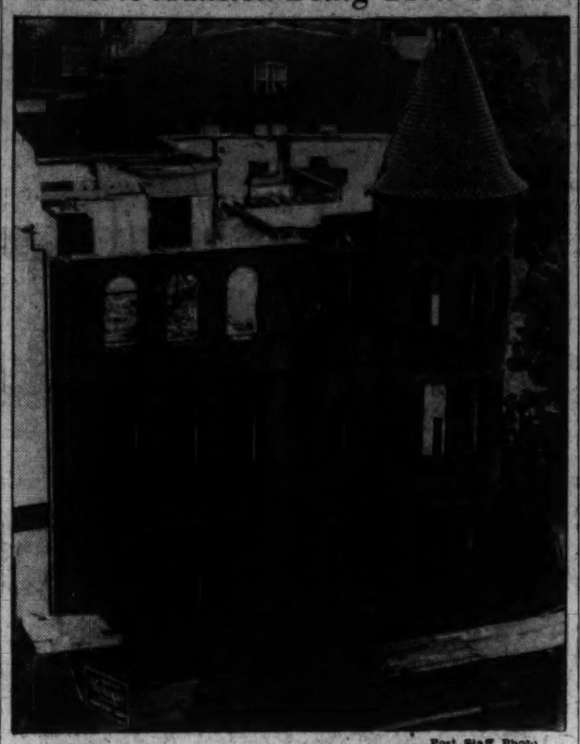
Historic Mansion Being Torn Down



Post Staff Photo

The last of the famous homes that once lined Connecticut avenue, the Marye mansion at Connecticut and N, is being torn down to make way for a commercial building. It was the scene of many brilliant parties, including the debut of Mrs. William D. Thomas, the former Helen Marye, and daughter of the wartime Ambassador to old Russia, the late George Marye.

Prestige Bows to Commerce As Society Stronghold Topples

Marye Mansion, Last of Connecticut Avenue's Famous Homes, Being Razed; Once Scene of Brilliant Parties.

Making way for a commercial building, the last of Connecticut avenue's famous society homes is being torn down. Workmen already are at work on the Marye mansion, at Connecticut avenue and N street, and its demolition is only a matter of days.

The Marye home was the last to succumb before the advance of apartment houses, office buildings and stores. Until six years ago the old British Embassy stood beside it, but workmen demolished it to make room for a filling station.

One of the last houses to go, which like the others was the scene of Washington's most brilliant parties, was the old Edson Bradley mansion at Dupont circle, two blocks from the Marye home. This brick mansion had its private theater. Here official Washington would hold its gayest balls, its most glittering receptions.

The Marye home has been unoccupied for several years. Its owner, Mrs. George T. Marye, is reported to have returned to Washington after several months' absence, noticed with disgust the filling station across the street, and promptly moved to a hotel. The house has not been used since then.

One of the most brilliant parties held within the gabled Marye mansion was the debut of Miss Helen Marye, the present Mrs. William D. Thomas. She was married in 1925, a few months after breaking her engagement to the young Italian nobleman, Count Lambert, Negri Arnald. Her father gave the bride a check for $1,000,000 as a wedding present.

It was in this house that social Washington watched boyish-bobbed Helen Marye, with her athletic figure, set the pace in styles.

George Thomas Marye, who died in 1933, was a former ambassador to Russia, appointed in 1916 by President Wilson. A San Francisco and Nevada City banker, he was high in Democratic Party circles.

Workmen already have torn off the roof of the old house, and the interior has been gutted. No announcement has been made of the type of commercial building that will replace the mansion.

a new appropriation for PWA, however, declare that sum is insufficient to meet the demands for assistance from that organization.

They point to the many local bond elections that have been held in order to authorize projects bearing PWA approval, many of which will become a waste of time and money unless funds are made available to provide the Government's share of the cost of projects approved.

Regarding the Wagner housing bill, which federation officials have supported energetically, Green declared labor "cannot understand what is holding up the bill in committee."

He said backers of the bill will continue to work for it.

The bill first met a stumbling block when Treasury officials objected that its cost was not provided for in the budget, and that the bill itself provided no means of financing. Protracted conferences have been held over the Treasury objections.

Oil Fire Blasts Derricks, Imperils Calif. Homes

Huntington Beach, Calif., May 20 (AP).—Fire destroyed two oil derricks here tonight, endangering residences in a two-block area from burning oil carried by a stiff breeze. Park and Planning Group to Accept Condemnation Award for Parkway.

Detailed studies made by the office of Maj. Walter D. Luplow, Army engineer for this district, for improvement of the Washington water front were approved in principle yesterday by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The plans, which provide for a new river boulevard and replacement of the antiquated public and private structures along Washington Channel, were submitted personally by Maj. Luplow.

The commission voted to accept a condemnation award which completes land purchases for the Glover-Archbold Parkway. A house and outbuildings are located on the lone outstanding site, which the commission had been trying to acquire for eight years. It is at New Mexico avenue and Fulton street northwest.

At the morning session, the commissioners approved the King-Norton bills to abate nuisance industries in the Capital, following which three of the members urged their passage before the McCarran Senate sub-committee.

In the afternoon the group made an inspection tour to view progress in development of the Mall; Judiciary Square, where a new Police Court building is being erected; the Municipal Center site, whose southern portion is being considered as the location for a civic auditorium; the Southwest tract near the Capitol which may be used for new Federal buildings, and to K street in Georgetown, whose development as a traffic bypass has been recommended by Lieut. Col. Dan I. Sultan, Engineer Commissioner.

The commission will conclude its May meeting today.

Alfonso Disowns Covadonga; Cites His 'Deep Grief'

Rome, May 20 (U.P.).—Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain today publicly disowned his eldest son, the Count of Covadonga, in a formal statement that told of the exiled monarch's "anguish and deep grief."

The 51-year-old Alfonso's denunciation of his son, who was divorced recently from a Cuban beauty and is about to marry another Cuban commoner, was revealed three days ago.

The former king was enraged because the Count of Covadonga announced his aspirations to sit some day on the now non-existent throne of Spain.

Steel Workers Balloting on Joining C. I. O.; 27,000 Pittsburgh Employes Are Involved

nied its men had planned any interference and said only a few observers had been sent in view of strike threats against Republic.

Clerks' Campaign.

New York, May 20 (AP).—A campaign to unionize 3,000,000 men and women who sell goods across the counters of the nation's retail stores was heralded tonight by the newly formed United Retail Employes of America which announced it had been given a charter by the Committee for Industrial Organization.

The erstwhile new era retail clerks unions of America, rebel organization from the American Federation of Labor, unfurled the C. I. O. banner to inaugurate the campaign on the heels of another C. I. O. drive to unionize the bookkeepers, stenographers and accountants of the country.

Garment Workers Out.

Los Angeles, May 20 (AP).—Two thousand workers in the men's garment industry went out on strike shortly before noon today, demanding a 12 per cent wage increase, a 36-hour week, and a closed shop.

Film Workers Back.

Hollywood, May 20 (AP).—The Studio Utility Workers Union, part of whose members were on strike, returned to work today under an agreement with the major motion picture producers which gave them a closed shop and increased their wages from 60 to 75 cents an hour.

Meanwhile, the striking federated motion picture crafts awaited a reply from 27 independent film producers to their demands for a union shop. The federation had served an ultimatum that unless these demands were granted by midnight (4 a. m. Friday E. D. T.) the 21-day-old picketing of the major studios would be extended to the independents.

Power Parley Opens.

Lansing, Mich., May 20 (AP).—Conferees seeking a settlement of issues in the strike of Consumers Power Co. employes in the Saginaw Valley agreed today to resume negotiations at Saginaw at 10 a. m. tomorrow. Gov. Frank Murphy, who brought them together here, said he was "positive" there would be no further strikes.

D.C. Alcohol Death Rate Third in U. S.

Only two States had higher alcoholic death rates than the District from 1910 until 1935 according to a special report made public by the Census Bureau yesterday.

The report showed that during the period the District had a death rate from alcohol of 4.4 per 100,000 as compared with 2.6 for the Nation as a whole.

Small But Important.

President Roosevelt's veto of a joint resolution authorizing an appropriation of $5,000,000 for Federal participation in the New York World's Fair is a timely reminder to Congress that economy is the order of the day. The saving which may result from the President's demand for reduction of the fund will make only a tiny dent in the deficit, but it is not for that reason unimportant. On the contrary, it may stiffen Congressional resistance to other and more serious Treasury raids.

No doubt the President enjoyed the opportunity afforded him to remind Congress that its encroachment upon the executive branch of the Government is quite as disruptive of constitutional safeguards as the exercise of too much discretionary power by the Chief Executive. Certainly he was amply justified in objecting to the appointment of a commission composed largely of legislators armed with authority to supervise and direct the expenditure of Federal funds to be appropriated for the New York fair.

Even if this usurpation of administrative functions raised no constitutional issue, it would be obviously unsound policy to permit a group of Congressmen to function as dispensers-in-chief of Federal funds devoted to local uses. The unsuitability of the procedure is emphasized by the designation of both Senators from New York to serve on the proposed commission.

Unfortunately, some members of the New York delegation have been openly resentful or sarcastic in their comments upon the President's veto message. The sincerity of professed advocates of economy is subjected to an acid test when savings are effected at the expense of favored projects. Judged by that test the disgruntled New Yorkers have not scored very well. However, the country at large will have good reason to rejoice if this minor saving turns out to be a prelude to really substantial cuts in Federal expenditures.

Deserved Promotions.

In nominating Sumner Welles to the post of Undersecretary of State, vacant since the appointment of William Phillips as Ambassador to Italy, and R. Walton Moore to the newly-revived post of Counselor of the State Department, President Roosevelt has given merited recognition to two diplomats who have already won distinction. Since the two posts are equal in rank, authority and salary, the President, by his action, has avoided making a distinction between the honors thus conferred.

Judge Moore has demonstrated how little merit there is in the contention that senility necessarily goes hand in hand with advanced age. At 78 he is as vigorous and clear-minded as men many years his junior. As Assistant Secretary he has manifested a grasp of our foreign problems that makes him an extremely valuable aid to Secretary Hull.

Mr. Welles, on the other hand, deserves his promotion because of his first-rate efforts in the field of United States-Latin American relations. The success of the Buenos Aires conference which marked a great turning point in inter-American affairs, was to no small extent attributable to his untiring efforts and his real diplomatic ability.

Superfluous Inquiry.

Interest in the District of Columbia is generally difficult to arouse on Capitol Hill. The common explanation is that residents of the Capital have no votes and thus any efforts in their behalf are wasted from the political viewpoint. Another considerable reason may be that the District committees of Congress often go through tortuous and time-consuming procedure in settling comparatively minor issues.

A case in point is the investigation of the Capital Transit Company projected by the House District Committee. The inquiry was asked by Representative Dirksen, who has introduced two bills, one to prohibit one-man street cars and buses in Washington and the other to set a maximum fare of seven cents. The aim of his probe is to determine why the company "that has operating revenues of $10,000,000 a year . . . hasn't paid any dividends since 1928." He will have to wait a bit, however, for District committee members are already so busy with other investigations that none is available for this strange assignment.

Nor is it reasonable that they should be burdened with this extra task. The investigation proposed by Mr. Dirksen, to say nothing of his two bills, is not a matter that can be properly handled by Congress. Washington is provided with a Public Utility Commission that is fully equipped to regulate the street car company, both as to equipment and fares. Indeed, the Commission is now holding a series of conferences with the transit company management in an effort to settle the problem of fares. For Congress to duplicate this work would be plainly superfluous. If any further investigation is needed, that work also should be assigned to P. U. C. experts. Congress created the commission for just such purposes. Nothing could be gained from Congressional meddling in this regulatory field.

Because The Shoe Pinches.

A blast by Cardinal Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago against the anti-Catholic activities of the Nazi regime has stirred the regimented German press to new heights of fury. It has also led the German Embassy to make still another protest to the State Department against unfriendly criticisms by prominent Americans.

Now, as at the time of the LaGuardia incident, the basic grievance of the Nazis is against the continued exercise in this country of those rights of free speech and a free press which are guaranteed by our Constitution. In Germany those rights have been ruthlessly trampled under foot. In Germany truth is something to be suppressed if it runs counter to the presumed interests of the powers that be. And the business of replacing the truth by official propaganda has been developed, if not to a fine art, at least to the status of a major industry.

Thus the Nazi government would have the world believe that there is no persecution of religion in the Third Reich; that, for instance, the Catholic Church is unmolested in its rights and that the concordat of 1933 is scrupulously observed. Yet there is overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Not without very considerable provocation did the Pope in a recent encyclical protest against the repeated and cynical violations of that agreement.

In its campaign against organized religion, Protestant no less than Catholic, the Hitler government has few scruples. The charges of wholesale immorality in religious institutions which have recently been given an utterly one-sided airing in German courts are clearly motivated by the desire to discredit the Catholic Church. Organized religion, the Nazis are convinced, now constitutes the last obstacle to the final triumph of totalitarianism, and they are out to smash it.

Within Germany only a few courageous clerics have raised their voices against the unrelenting persecution of the churches and the elevation of paganism to the status of a putative state religion. It is outside the borders of the Third Reich that the truth has received its full measure of publicity. For all his efforts to make black white, Dr. Goebbels has not succeeded in regimenting the foreign press and foreign public opinion, particularly in democratic lands, as he has the German press and German public opinion.

No wonder, then, that when a LaGuardia or a Mundelein—men as far apart as the poles, but both antipathetic to Nazidom—raise their voices in criticism of Hitler and his regime, the German press and government cry out in protest.

Things have not been going any too well in the Third Reich of late. The shoe is beginning to pinch. There is, in consequence, increasing skepticism of the propaganda intended to persuade the German people that a new heaven and a new earth have been created by the Brown Shirts. That skepticism is certain to be reinforced by the increasing awareness that the Nazi regime has few friends in the outside world. The sensitivity of the Nazis to outside criticism is understandable. But it is also an admission of profound uneasiness by those who hold the destinies of a great nation and a great people in their hands.

The Minimum Wage Muddle.

After the Supreme Court handed down its recent decision upholding the minimum wage law of the State of Washington and overruling its decision in 1923—which had declared the District minimum wage law to be unconstitutional—the local law again became effective. As Attorney General Cummings has explained, a court decision affecting the constitutionality of any statute does not remove the law from the statute books. It simply makes enforcement impossible. Consequently, it is an open question whether employers in the District can be held accountable for failure to pay the minimum weekly wages set by a board that long ago ceased to exist.

Suits to test the retroactive character of the court's decision have already been brought by two employes who demand "back wages" amounting to the difference between the decreed minimum and the actual amounts paid them. It is evident that serious financial complications will arise if such claims are recognized as valid. There is also a patent injustice and lack of reason in invoking a ruling applicable to conditions existing 15 or more years ago. If a minimum wage board had been actively functioning over this long period, it would have set different minimum wage rates, no doubt, from time to time to meet changing conditions.

In the light of recent events, it seems evident that the District law should have been formally repealed following the Supreme Court decision of 1923. The failure to do so makes it possible, to be sure, for the District to set up machinery for the enforcement of the long outlawed measure, without waiting for Congress to pass a new act. But the advantages of hasty action are a very doubtful blessing if they have to be secured by reviving an act in need of revision after many years of neglect.

If possible, the legislative slate should be wiped clean of the old law and of the claims that have been instituted because of it. A fresh start could then be made with a revised minimum wage law based upon a careful study of conditions in the District at the present time.

A Sales Tax For D. C.?

The move to enact a 2 per cent sales tax for the District, along with four other revenue measures, certainly is not a pleasant prospect. General agreement seems to have been reached as to the imposition of new levies on motor vehicles, gasoline, inheritances and insurance premiums. But a general sales tax, even if staple foods should be exempted, would constitute a burden that the community would undoubtedly resent.

There is good reason to believe that the Commissioners tried to avoid a general sales tax. Before recommending this levy they favored a business privilege tax and an income tax. But each of these plans involves complicated problems. Neither proposal has been adequately studied, and the Commissioners fear that there is not now sufficient time to work out permanent tax legislation. Hence, they turned to the sales tax to meet an emergency.

On this basis, a strong argument can be made for the Commissioners' tax program. Funds must be raised to cover a deficit now estimated at $7,500,000. Hasty enactment of tax legislation intended to be permanent would certainly be undesirable. Consequently, adoption of an emergency tax seems to be the only alternative, unless Congress is more adept in finding new sources of revenue than are the Commissioners.

If the sales tax is to be accepted as the chief source of new revenue, however, a number of safeguards should be thrown around it. First, it should be temporary. If such a levy is applied for one year only, Congress will be faced by the necessity of working out a permanent tax program in the interim. As the City Fathers have pointed out, a commission of experts should be immediately assigned the task of devising a local revenue system for enactment next year.

Should the Commissioners also take advantage of this interval to work out, with the aid of a committee of citizens, a reasonable formula to govern the fiscal relations between the Government and the Capital City, delay in the enactment of a permanent tax program might prove to be a decided advantage. It is extremely difficult to devise a revenue system without knowing what contribution may be expected from the largest property holder—the Federal Government. Any tax plan adopted so long as this uncertainty remains will scarcely be regarded as a permanent solution of Washington's revenue problem.

Dodge Of Mount Vernon.

Probably a very small proportion of the 25,000,000 persons who are said to have visited Mount Vernon during the past half century knew Col. Harrison H. Dodge, who has just died in his eighty-fifth year. But for 52 years it was he who supervised the reconstructed Washington estate, acting as agent for the Mount Vernon Ladies Association.

Col. Dodge's title of superintendent scarcely revealed the scope of his activities. During his administration and in good part through his initiative, the estate more than doubled in acreage, experienced many improvements, including an effective fire protection system, and enlarged considerably its collection of Washingtoniana.

Mount Vernon was Col. Dodge's career. Born in Georgetown and educated at Columbian College here, he was first drafted by the Ladies Association in 1885 and his reappointment was unanimously voted every year following. A highly conscientious worker, he was admirably fitted to carry out the task of restoration suggested by many exhaustive researches into the original condition of the estate. But his service did not stop at that. He also took upon himself the public relations responsibilities of Mount Vernon. The harmonious atmosphere which pervades that shrine today is a testimony of his fine achievements.

Nature evens things up. A grasshopper is lazier than a bee, but he has better manners.

A woman is a person who thinks you mean her personally when you make any general statement concerning women.

Well, anyway, if your back's to the wall, you're in excellent position to face things.

The Third Degree.

From the Hartford Courant.

There is no reasonable argument that can be made for the third degree. Neither of its common purposes, to extort a confession and to punish a suspect against whom there is not enough evidence to secure a conviction, can be justified. To be sure, torture, applied long enough, will generally secure a confession, but the innocent suspect is quite as willing as the guilty to sign the prepared statement when the signature is the price of ending the torture. For centuries, both civil and canon law have recognized the unreliability of evidence produced by torture, but policemen who are either too stupid or too lazy to secure proper evidence still pin their faith on it. When the method is used, not to extract a confession but to punish a suspect, the third degree is even harder to defend, for the necessary premise of that argument is the failure of the whole legal theory.

Mr. Krock Writes An Alibi; Mr. Nessly Replies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Mr. Arthur Krock, chief of the Washington Bureau of the New York Times, has written a letter of explanation to his editor, which was published in the letter column of that newspaper today, Thursday, regarding remarks made at the White House by Postmaster General James A. Farley last Friday regarding Senatorial consciences. The remarks were not published in Mr. Krock's paper at the time they were made.

Since Mr. Krock, by implication, accuses The Washington Post, and therefore myself, since I wrote the story, of the unpardonable sin in journalism of breaking a confidence, I believe that his letter warrants a reply.

In his letter, printed by the Times under the caption, "An 'Off the Record' Remark," Mr. Krock asserts he feels that in fairness to Mr. Farley he should "recite the facts" regarding this incident, even though Mr. Krock was not present at the time and consequently his statement is based on what he has been told by persons he does not identify.

Mr. Krock correctly states that as Mr. Farley was leaving the White House he was asked by one of the newspapermen—not myself—a question which raised the subject of Senatorial consciences. He then incorrectly states that, "prefacing his reply with the statement that it was 'off the record,'" Mr. Farley "substantially and humorously" made the remarks which I attributed to him in The Washington Post of last Saturday. Mr. Krock further states, "The New York Times staff man at the White House, the press association representatives, and others understood that the remarks were neither spontaneous nor for publication. The Washington Post apparently did not. They appeared in that newspaper."

I was within close hearing range throughout the episode of which Mr. Krock writes, and at no time did I hear Mr. Farley assert he was speaking "off the record." Consequently I gave the same attention to his remarks about Senatorial consciences that I did to his statement that there would be no compromise on the court bill. I regard Mr. Farley as one of the political geniuses of our time and believe he knows what he wishes to say. There was no reason for me to presume, in the absence of a statement to that effect, that Mr. Farley was speaking "off the record," or confidentially.

Other officials who visited the White House were asked about developments or their views on the court plan fight and those who replied to questions were quoted. Mr. Farley's remarks were treated in the same manner.

Since the appearance of Mr. Krock's letter I have inquired of several of my colleagues who were present at the time whether they heard Mr. Farley preface his reply with the statement that it was "off the record." They have informed me they did not.

Mr. Krock commenced his letter to his editor by saying that "there is a bad official habit here of saying things 'off the record'" and that "frequently the device is employed for the suppression of news." On that Mr. Krock and I can agree.

Social Security Act.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: An unfortunate implication that the Supreme Court justices might be inclined to favor the social security act because such action would weaken the President's attack on the court is contained in some of the current press stories. Such a thing is an intolerable aspersion on the integrity of the present justices.

There is every reason to expect that such a patently unsound and pernicious piece of legislation would be declared unconstitutional. Just a superficial study of this act reveals several potent reasons for its basic instability.

First, its main purpose evidently is to raise additional revenue by taxing income in the lower brackets. It is clearly a "poor man's income tax." Second, it carries no guarantee that its beneficiaries ever will receive payments in dollars of parity purchasing power, since its reserves will be carried in Government bonds, the value of which would be decreased by ruinous inflation. Third, it compels citizens to participate in this scheme against their will and better judgment and constitutes un-American regimentation to a degree not even partially realized by the average citizen. Fourth, it facilitates to an alarming extent (probably not the least of its real objectives) the building up of a powerful, far-reaching political machine with committees in every county in the United States. These are a few of the very bad features of this act.

Incidentally, whomever Mr. Roosevelt may select to take Justice Van Devanter's place is not likely to command public confidence, because no matter how competent he may be, he will be generally regarded as the President's stooge. PONTIFEX.

Labor "Shop Talk."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In The Post of May 15, Mr. W. R. Gaylord, of the American Newspaper Guild, took exception to Westbrook Pegler's aspersions on "labor racketeers," principally on the ground of Mr. Pegler's inability to "talk shop" in his labor comments. Quoth Gaylord:

"Mr. Pegler has been a sports writer, and now and then does some pretty good stuff in other directions, such as Mussolini and the like. But he is evidently off his base very much when it comes to writing labor stuff."

Mr. Gaylord is on solid ground—but why pick on Pegler? None of the newspapermen can "talk shop" in their output of labor stuff. New York Times' Louis Stark is 'way out in front as a newspaper labor man, but yet has a long way to go to get where the Nonpareil was when he quit. The "Nonpareil" was Mr. John J. Leary, jr., of the late Mr. Pulitzer's late New York World.

Pennsylvania Mining.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I enjoyed your editorial about the coal industry in Great Britain but I notice that you seem to be uninformed concerning the situation in our own country.

I know nothing about the soft coal industry, but I do know that in the anthracite fields in Pennsylvania pretty much the same situation exists as in England. Natives of that section complain bitterly because a large part of the profits from their industry is being paid, even to this day, to the estate of Stephen Girard, who had the foresight to invest heavily in land in that section of Pennsylvania. Coal companies must lease their mines from that estate, or others like it, in order to get permission to mine.

Moreover, persons who rent houses or farms in that region rent only the surface and may not, lawfully, use coal found in that land, even though a surface vein should crop up in their own back yards.

Barney Neighborhood House.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A visit to the Barney Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest, is a revelation. Here is a great work.

Unstinted praise is due the workers, for by the results in evidence there is no doubt as to their ability and perseverance and their devotion to a splendid cause, demanding long hours of constant and unfaltering effort.

That genuine absorption in duty above all else here maintains, there is no question.

Allow me to add this bit of tribute. One who has worked with and for children—and parents—most deserving and most in need of such uplifting influences as these, knows that the Barney Neighborhood House is bravely fulfilling its mission in the District.

E. R. CORWIN.

WPA Worker On Relief Appropriations.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems to me that the reasoning of some of our statesmen is lacking in logic as applied to certain vital public problems. I have in mind particularly the recent reaction of Representative Woodrum, chairman of the sub-committee on appropriations, to Mr. Harry Hopkins' request for work relief funds for the next fiscal year.

Representative Woodrum seems to arbitrarily conclude that any amount of funds requested for the Works Progress Administration is too much. This principle is totally illogical, unscientific, encourages disrespect for well-prepared budgets, and encourages Government officials to cunningly overstate budgetary requirements in order to get merely the amount needed. The administrator has honestly asked for what he needs on the basis of adequate facts, figures and reasoning with no exaggeration. Had Mr. Hopkins asked for two billions perhaps the Congressman would have agreed to the one and one-half billions needed for a definite program.

This kind of statesmanship reminds one of the bygone when facts and figures were little used in support of economic and social policy. What logic is there to the implied statement of Representative Woodrum that of the eight or nine million unemployed only one million instead of two can have employment on useful projects? If he is opposed to the principle of the Government helping to create employment, why not oppose all such appropriations instead of attempting to "mess up" a well planned program at the expense of human suffering?

As a WPA worker not benefiting from the good administrative salaries, experience teaches me that most of the projects are not only of great value but the organizations for whom the work is performed get a great deal of value at little comparative cost. It is unfair to criticize administration of an organization by drying up its source of existence.

From a purely business standpoint the Federal Government, and other political units, are getting a large volume of high class necessary work done without having to pay "going wages" which results in a two-way saving to the taxpayers. If this is not conservative economy we should change the definition. Many of these workers on relief basis are sacrificing much, of necessity of course, for the pay is only a portion of their normal market value. But still the workers are very glad to get it.

The principle of Government creating useful work is here to stay for several reasons: Technological improvements resulting in a surplus of workers; underconsumption resulting in failure to take goods produced off the markets, and the failure of the larger corporations to sacrifice part of their profits to hire their fair share of the unemployed.

There is one thing certain about the WPA—it is one of the most valuable props supporting the capitalistic system while at the same time doing a great humanitarian job. For these reasons, among others, it would seem logical for Representative Woodrum to favor expansion rather than curtailment of the Works Progress Administration's activities.

Nazi Students In Cleveland

ONE HUNDRED little boys and girls of Nazi Germany, who have just arrived in Ohio to spend six weeks in Cleveland's public schools under a student-exchange program instituted by an American woman, are finding United States life exciting but confusing, according to an article in Time.

Able to identify Benjamin Franklin in a Cleveland school class where no American youngster could, the German youths, billeted in the homes of Cleveland families who in turn plan to send their own children back to Germany for a similar tour of study, are constituting a problem to municipal and educational authorities, lest anti-Nazi feeling result in untoward incidents, the publication reports.

"Up to Cleveland's Public Hall rolled three chartered buses behind a shrieking police escort," the Time article reports. "Out piled 57 sun-tanned, knickered German boys, 43 demure German girls and four solemn teachers. They had come all the way from Berlin to spend six weeks in Cleveland's public schools. Blinking at photographers and staring at reporters, the educational mission, ranging in age from 12 to 18, filed into Public Hall to be greeted by Cleveland's boyish-Mayor Harold Hitz Burton. At the door an unidentified young man created the first untoward incident, by handing out broadsheets which read: 'The next six weeks will undoubtedly be the freest weeks which you will have had. Make the most of them.'

"Beaming were the three Clevelanders who have been working more than a year to arrange the extraordinary excursion. Cleveland Lawyer Otto L. Fricke persuaded Berlin's Board of Education to select 100 likely youngsters who knew English. Mrs. Henry Gerstenberger, wife of a Cleveland pediatrician rounded up 100 Cleveland families to act as hosts, send their own sons or daughters back with their guests for six weeks of school in Germany.

"Mayor Burton, well aware that his electorate includes not only 100,000 Germans but 100,000 Jews, begged the visitors 'to refrain completely from every act, expression, or conduct that could be offensive to those of differing views.' Chairman Robert A. Good of the mayor's reception committee hopped up, asked what the guests would like to do 'for the dignity and honor of your country.' They rose, stretched out their arms in a Nazi salute, sang 'Deutschland Ueber Alles' and the 'Horst Wessel.'

"Next day when the party split to attend Cleveland's high schools they found that the Board of Education had at the last moment passed a resolution admitting them to classes only as 'visitors.' Since few teachers knew how to interpret this ruling, a number of the visitors spent their time downtown at movies and drug stores. One German girl, however, visiting a class where no one could adequately identify Benjamin Franklin, rose and did so. At Lakewood High School, Student Marygold McCauley, 17, caused a stir by writing to the school Times that 'all who welcomed the German students unfortunately do not understand the grave significance of this issue.'

"No one was certain just what Cleveland's experiment would develop besides mutual embarrassment. Of this there was plenty, most of all when Cleveland hostesses had to hide the newspapers from their young guests one morning. In Cleveland to raise $279,000 for a Jewish welfare fund to aid Jews in Germany, Great Britain's outspoken laborite peer, Lord Marley, had heard of the plan, snorted for publication: 'Every German exchange student is a Nazi propagandist.'"

The Bible Business.

Agencies seeking to promote foreign trade might profit from the annual report of the American Bible Society. Year in and year out, the society goes on with increased distribution. Depressions, hard times, wars, political upsets, industrial activity or unemployment do not disturb the distribution of Bibles. If people are in trouble, they need Bibles. If they are not in trouble, a Bible makes good reading for leisure hours.

The society's agents put a touch of zeal in their work that might be envied by a sales manager in any other business. If they encounter a tribe of a few hundred or thousand aborigines, they do not try to force Bibles by teaching the savages our language. They just settle down to a few years of study and translation and first thing you know, there are Bibles in a language of which even the name is unpronounceable.

Also, there is no waste motion in competition. The American Bible Society, finding British Bible Society agents actively at work in South America, promptly hands over Chile to the British distributors and takes Uruguay instead.

Some of the agents are paid, some are volunteer workers. Among the paid workers there are no sit-down strikes, no organized mass demands. The chief incentive is to get Bibles into the hands of people who have none. When Argentina levies a gas tax and proceeds to build roads, motor dealers think about getting into that field; oil companies see prospects of oil sales. But the Bible man sees nothing except a quick way to get to people he never has been able to reach before with a Bible.

Perhaps this helps explain why, with a distribution of 276,354,391 volumes in the 121 years of the society's existence, the Bible has held first place as a "best seller." The Bible man will insist that it is because it is the best book.

Fair Enough

By Westbrook Pegler

Definition Of 'Drunk.'

THE DELAWARE LEGISLATURE has censured your correspondent for believing that some of the statesmen were tight on the closing night of the recent regular session when the Lower House clean forgot to pass the customary appropriation for the support of the public schools. And, according to the accepted Delaware standard established in 1875, your correspondent owes the honorable body an apology, which is hereby tendered.

The accepted Delaware standard was established by a character witness in a case before Chancellor Nickerson, a historic Delaware jurist who still lives. On that occasion the witness was asked if the defendant had been drunk. He answered, "No." and the prosecution then asked, "When do you consider a man to be drunk?"

"A man is drunk," the character witness said, "when he lies on the ground and clutches the grass to hang on."

This definition differs only in minor particulars from the pre-war army definition cited by Gen. Hugh Johnson from the testimony of a sergeant before a court-martial. "The man was not drunk," said the sergeant, "because when I kicked him he moved."

• • • •

RELIABLE INFORMANTS advise your correspondent that no member of the Delaware Legislature lay on the ground and clutched the grass to hang on during the closing hours of the recent regular session when the House forgot to appropriate for the schools. It is true that some of the members lay unconscious in their chairs, but they may have been engaged in knitting the raveled sleeve in innocent slumber.

And, furthermore, nobody kicked any of them to see if they would move; so it is impossible to apply the Army standard. The lights were turned off from time to time, and a recess was taken while a number of members formed an escort to conduct a distinguished colleague to the train for New York. And, finally, in the confusion the school appropriation bill indubitably was mislaid somewhere between the Senate and the House—a curious occurrence, indeed, in a body of statesmen with nothing to do but stay awake and mumble. "Aye."

Reliable informants state that the standards of the Delaware highway police, which are much more fastidious than the old formula of the man clutching the grass to hang onto the ground, might have caught some of the statesmen on closing night. The difficulty there, however, is that while a man in a certain condition may be considered unfit to drive a car, there is no similar limitation in any American Legislature, including the national Congress.

Although legislation is a dangerous device in the hands of the incoherent, a statesman's right to legislate cannot be challenged even though he be drunk, by the old Delaware or the old Army standard—a fact which may explain some of the peculiar laws handed down at each session of the law-making bodies.

• • • •

AS TO THE CONFUSION of closing night, the Legislature has offered no credible explanation. An official of the Senate insists that the appropriation bill was delivered to the House and that a receipt was taken. The members of the Lower House, however, had no recollection of voting it through, and, with the utmost respect for the powers of confusion common to all legislative bodies, it is hard to understand how a House of only 35 members could be so thoroughly confused without artificial assistance.

And now the unfortunate mishap has caused personal ill will in the Senate toward the House, because the entire Legislature was called back at the members' own expense and without pay to correct the oversight.

The Republican majority in the Senate bitterly resented this and clamored to be paid, but were voted down and went away from Dover embittered men.

Another definition of drunkenness comes from an old English case against a bishop, whose winning witness said, "Nobody who was drunk could slide down three sets of banisters in all those robes as His Grace did."

But there, again, your correspondent is unable to apply the test, for none of the statesmen slid down any banisters. It would not be fair to assume that any of them didn't because they couldn't.

Good English

By William Lyon Phelps.

Accusative For Possessive.

There should be a difference between spoken conversational and written formal English. Slang, colloquialisms, informalities are desirable and often fitting, even necessary, in intimate talk and in general conversation; in formal addresses and in published matter, one really cannot write too well. Accuracy in print is more impressive than slangy ejaculations.

• • • •

Hearing John Galsworthy read a lecture, I observed that he did not pronounce the word "issue" as "ishue," but as "is-sue." As I had never heard that pronunciation before (or since), I asked him if he always said "is-sue." He replied, "In formal address, I do; in conversation, I don't."

I have just received an interesting letter from Thornton J. Parker, of Washington, D. C. He sends me four instances where the accusative case instead of the possessive case is used by well-known and excellent journalists; he quite properly thinks that newspaper English should be, if possible, above reproach. Here are his four cases:

"The prospect of Cascarella developing into a winning pitcher should be intriguing," etc.

"While it would be too much to say that the new Italian armament program was received with indifference in England, there is no sign of it having ruffled the composure of any responsible person," etc.

"The presumption that it was our neutral trade in wartime that led to our entrance into the war, and are designed to prevent us getting into the next war," etc.

"He left them with the impression also that he considered talk about him becoming a dictator as laughable," etc.

• • • •

These are from four different first-rate journalists; and if gold rusts, what shall iron do? Iron should be even more careful.

I am frequently asked to recommend good books for children. Well, this is not exactly in my line; but I wish now to recommend an author who writes little books for little people, filled with information on natural history, crowded with delightful pictures in color, and very inexpensive.

Any book you buy for children written by Julius King will be just what you were looking for. In fact, I think most men and women will enjoy them as much as children, and will learn even more. For these books show us how to recognize birds and flowers and trees and leaves and plants, with descriptions in elementary language, and with gay pictures in bright colors. Here are some of them: "Birds in Rhyme," "A. B. C. of Animals," "Talking Leaves," "Wild Flowers at a Glance," "Mild Animals," "Dogs," "Peter and the Frog's Eye." Most of these little books are published by Thomas Nelson & Sons, New York.

• • • •

He has just produced an entirely new garden book called "Annuals You Should Grow," and this is published by the Whitman Publishing Co., New York.

He has also written a very fine romantic novel for boys, called "Indian Nugget," which appeared a few years ago.

He has extraordinary skill in giving much information in an easy and charming manner.

China And Britain Pull Together

England's Strong-Arm Policy Abandoned In Past Decade.

By Mark J. Ginsbourg.

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Shanghai.

THERE WAS a time, about a decade ago, when John Bull was the most hated man in China.

Under the impact of ideas generated in Moscow, the entire Orient was in ferment. Great Britain, ever fearful for India and for her enormous investments in China, took the lead in combating the revolutionary movement in this country.

On May 30, 1925, the police of the Shanghai International Settlement, acting on orders of a British commissioner, shot and killed several demonstrating students. This incident was immediately seized upon by the radical elements to initiate a virulent campaign against British imperialism.

A vigorous nation-wide boycott dealt a blow to British trade from which it has not yet fully recovered. Unruly mobs forced British nationals to flee in terror from the interior to Shanghai. Thoroughly alarmed, Britain hastily agreed to the return of her concessions in Yangtsze ports to China. And as the revolutionary army rolled toward Shanghai—the citadel of British influence in China—preparations were begun in all earnestness to evacuate British nationals to safer points.

Chiang Kai-Shek Quit His Communist Advisers.

BUT, slighted by his Russian advisers, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, the leader of the revolutionary forces, severed all connections with his communist aides and, with the aid of badly frightened Shanghai bankers, established a Nationalist government in Nanking.

London lost little time in recognizing the new administration. Britain realized earlier than any other nation that Gen. Chiang was "in to stay" and that the only way to block the already apparent Japanese designs on China was to support Nanking in its efforts to unify the country.

As a result of this conclusion, the traditional British strong-arm policy toward China underwent remarkable metamorphosis shortly before the Manchurian Incident of 1931. The new policy of co-operation has been adhered to ever since with such steadfastness that the Chinese have come to regard John Bull as one of their best friends—at least in the present conditions in the Pacific.

The culminating point of Great Britain's policy of amity came in the fall of 1935, with the dispatch of Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, chief economic adviser to the British government, to help the Nanking government put its financial house in order, after the havoc wrought by the friendly American congressional silverites.

With Britain's aid and counsel, China went off the silver standard; accumulated a large portion of the country's silver stocks in the vaults of government banks; established reserve funds abroad; renovated the entire banking system; and standardized her once chaotic currency.

Rapprochement Clearly Discerned Last Summer.

SINO-BRITISH rapprochement, however, came into the limelight only last summer, following the collapse of the southwestern warlords' revolt against the Central government.

Gen. Chiang Kai-shek went to Canton to browbeat or placate the recalcitrant Kwangsi generals. During his brief stay there, he had a series of interviews with high British civil and military officials from Hongkong. Although these meetings were described by both the British and the Chinese as courtesy calls, the Japanese were quick to perceive in them new intrigues by the pernicious Albion.

With genuine alarm, Tokyo watched the British moves. One of the most experienced officials of the London Exchequer was sent to China as a financial adviser to the British Embassy. The Bank of England also dispatched a representative here, to look after the interests of the institution and to give advice, when it is desired, to the Chinese government.

Late in October, the British Export Credits Guarantee Department appointed Mr. W. Kirkpatrick as its representative in China, "not to initiate propositions or to seek orders, but to be solely concerned with the financial and economic merits of proposals for the export of the United Kingdom goods . . ."

Mr. Kirkpatrick, an able and affable speaker, a widely-traveled politician and businessman, and, until his appointment, a Conservative M. P., arrived here early this year and immediately plunged into activities, which have kept him in the limelight ever since.

THE FIRST concrete move in the determined campaign for a larger slice of the Chinese market was the amalgamation of the offices of the commercial counselor to the embassy, the Treasury's representative in China, and the Export Credit Guarantee Department. The new organ at once became the headquarters of the British trade drive.

The next move was a series of trips undertaken by Mr. Kirkpatrick and Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, promoted to the ambassadorship in China because of his aggressive and successful work in distant Persia, to all parts of China, but primarily to the southern provinces.

Out of the avalanche of laudatory speeches delivered by these two trade envoys and their Chinese hosts in major cities throughout the country, one fact has emerged clearly:

Some sort of a financial and commercial understanding is undoubtedly already in existence between the British and the Chinese government.

This alone can explain why, with the British prices at their usual high level and the German and Japanese competition keener than ever, the Chinese national, provincial and municipal authorities have been purchasing more goods from Great Britain than at any time since 1928.

In the past few weeks alone, the Chinese authorities have announced the award of the following orders to British firms:

1. Construction of a water filtration plant for the city of Canton.
2. Delivery of 64 Leyland trolley buses, valued at $1,000,000 (United States) to the Canton municipal authorities.
3. Delivery of 55,000 tons of rails for the Nanking-Kiangsi Railway.
4. Delivery of a large quantity of newly built Canton-Hankow Railway. The construction of this railway, incidentally, has made Britian's Hongkong the major outlet for the half of China lying south of the Yangtsze River.

Developments Planned In Kwantung Province.

DEFINITELY KNOWN to have been discussed was Sino-British cooperation in:

1. Materialization of a five-year plan for the development of Kwangtung Province at the total of $65,000,000 (United States).
2. The economic and military development of the strategically important Hainan Island, lying midway between Singapore and Hongkong.

Possibly not without good reason, the Japanese insisted that the British and Chinese officials also have discussed the following important joint projects:

1. Exploitation of the mineral resources of the southern provinces.
2. Linking of Nanking by rail with the Canton-Hankow Railway.
3. Construction of a railway between Canton and Yunnan Province, bordering on Burma. This line, passing through the provinces of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Kweichow and Yunnan, would be of enormous political and economic importance.
4. Construction of a railway between Canton and Foochow, a port midway between Hangkong and Shanghai.

Chinese Coronation Delegation Significant.

THERE IS NOT the slightest doubt that the Chinese delegation to the coronation of King George VI also is concerned less in the Westminster Abbey ceremony than in effecting economic rapprochement with Great Britain.

This belief is substantiated by the composition of the delegation. It is headed by Dr. H. H. Kung, finance minister. Its chief secretary is Dr. Oong Weng-hao, one of the leading authorities on China's mineral resources. Its five counselors are a vice minister of railways, a director of the bureau of foreign trade and three customs officials, including Sir Frederick Maze, the British inspector general of customs.

Furthermore, of its eight secretaries and attaches, two belong to the finance ministry, three to the Central Bank of China and one to the customs.

When it is recalled that most of China's foreign loans are secured by the revenues from the customs, the real purpose of dispatching ten treasury and customs officials to witness an enthronement ceremony leaves little ground for speculation.

The Japanese, with their characteristic outspokenness, assert that Dr. Kung will seek in London a loan of between $75,000,000 and $100,000,000 (United States), and would also present to the British government a detailed plan for Sino-British cooperation in the economic development of South and Central China.

Dr. Kung, en route to London, immediately characterized the Japanese report known to have been officially inspired—as "pure imagination." There the matter rests, at least until Dr. Kung concludes his negotiations.

Harris & Ewing.

SIR FREDERICK LEITH-ROSS.

Great Britain Aiming At Capital Goods Market.

GREAT BRITAIN'S present position in China has been made very clear by Leith-Ross, Kirkpatrick and Knatchbull-Hugessen. Britain, they say, has been losing heavily to Japan, Germany and the United States, which, either because of a better selling organization or of cheaper prices combined with geographical proximity, have been rapidly strengthening their position in the Chinese market.

The British manufacturers of consumption goods, they admit, cannot hope to regain their former dominant position. An illustration of this is the disastrous drop in the sals of Lancashire cotton textiles to China.

In 1933, China purchased 33,800,000 square yards of Lancashire-made piece goods. In 1934 the figure dropped to 14,500,000 square yards. In 1935, there was a further drop to 8,400,000 square yards, while in the first 11 months of last year the amount was 4,300,000 square yards. Meanwhile, the sales of Nippon-made textiles showed large gains, despite the apparent strength of the anti-Japanese sentiment in this country.

But, China is still the world's largest undeveloped country, or, in other words, the world's largest market for capital goods. In this alone, Great Britain sees hope for the revival of her fallen fortunes in the Orient.

Given a stable government and freedom from external pressure, China will purchase enormous quantities of machines, bridges, rails, ships, structural materials and locomotives, in the production of which Great Britain still excels.

For this reason, Britain will support the Central government in every way she can, up to the grant of huge credits which would enable China to purchase the goods which Britain is so eager to sell.

And in drafting their plans for the development of China's resources, the British economic strategists will, and already do, maintain that the principles of open door and equal opportunity still extend to the northern provinces, despite the recent activities of the Japanese army.

A failure to do so, a frank British journalist explained sometime ago, would give Japan the erroneous impression that Britain is willing to let Japan monopolize the economic development of North China. This, he added, would both be a dangerous concession to Japanese ambitions and a serious blow to the Central government.

Faster D.C.-Pacific Run Now Possible

New York, May 20 (AP).—Transcontinental train service with Diesel-powered locomotives was made possible with the completion today of a link for the Chicago-Washington run, it was announced by the Electro-Motive Corporation, subsidiary of General Motors.

A 3,600 horsepower electro-motive Diesel locomotive was finished at the company's La Grange, Ill., plant for the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad. It is one of the two units for the run.

When the new locomotive goes into service, it was explained, it will be possible to travel from Washington to the Pacific Coast entirely by Diesel trains in 54 hours and 10 minutes running time.

Four similarly powered trains, it was pointed out, already operate between Chicago and the West Coast.

Reform By Mars

From The Economist (London)

Social Progress In England.

THE SOCIAL REFORMER, who has long and unsuccessfully appealed for public expenditure in the interests of a better country and a happier people, must be indulging in puzzled reflections as this moment. He sees the children of his dreams, escorted by the most unlikely foster-fathers, paraded before him dressed in the cloak of war-time economics. All his demands are being handed to him, if not exactly on a plate at least on a shield.

For two decades he has been agitating for comprehensive and bold road development, and has chafed while successive chancellors callously raided the road fund. Now he is solemnly instructed (as if he had never before given a thought to the matter) that it is vital to relieve the congestion around our docks and in our urban centers, so that food and other supplies can be rapidly transported in an emergency.

After a lifetime's agitation for consistent town-planning he sees the Philistine converted to his cause overnight by the long-distance bomber. He has watched Greater London sprawling, in the name of speculative building, until it threatened to engulf the whole of the home counties: now he is to have a green belt, if only aerodromes. A year ago he was tendered the philosophic consolation that the distressed industrial areas would eventually revert to good pasture lands: now they are crowned with orders and the incense of calcium carbide.

IT NEEDS no fantastic flight of imagination to suggest that one of the sights of London in 1950 may be a £50,000,000 Charing Cross Bridge, stretching from Euston to Camberwell, and having at either end a statue of Benito Mussolini and Adolf Hitler. Its construction will, of course, have been necessary to provide a clear run for mobile anti-aircraft batteries between North and South London.

Poignant, indeed, must be the reflections of the moderate progressive who in the past has pleaded merely for investigation and not necessarily for action. The same quarters which have given shortest shrift to his modest request for information and proposals for research are today demanding shadow schemes for every eventuality, the co-ordination of all departments of state, the elimination of all overlapping, the stopping of all gaps and a comprehensive survey of all economic activities in areas specially vulnerable to attack.

• • • •

IN VIEW OF these developments, may one not urge progressives to introduce a little subtlety into their tactics? The usual social and cultural arguments for raising the school age make slow work of this reform. Let it be demonstrated that an important strategic move in the last war was thwarted by the distortion of a vital message by an illiterate bearer. No youth will then be allowed to leave school until he can decipher codes written in Sanscrit characters.

Recently, a measure for securing a fortnight's annual holiday for workers came to grief, because it was urged on commonplace humanitarian lines. Had its supporters only been armed with a report, proving from scientific tests that after a fortnight's relaxation the average worker could dismantle and reassemble a machine gun in 25 per cent less time, they would have had difficulty in preventing the authorities from thrusting a month's annual leisure on their constituents.

• • • •

WHAT PURPOSE, again, can possibly be served by a march from Jarrow to London? When the contingent reaches the Marble Arch the military authorities heave a sigh of relief, for if, after four years of unemployment and short rations, men can complete a route march of 270 miles in the rain, then the heart and feet of the country are obviously sound. The organizers should arrange for half the contingent to fall out with sore heels within the first 20 miles and the other half to collapse at the county boundary. Such consternation would be aroused that public assistance scales would be revised forthwith.

Only thus shall we build Jerusalem in some of England's least green and pleasant lands. Let us raise three Heils and three Evvivas, and bend our energies to our herculean task.

Panic In The White House.

("Washington.—An electric alarm system has been installed in the White House so that any of the President's secretaries as well as the President can summon armed guards by merely pressing a button, should anything unusual happen."—New Item.)

Scene—The White House. All the buzzers suddenly sound at once.

An armed guard (getting the signal and rushing to the Executive rooms.)—Quick! That means trouble!

Second Guard—It must be something out of the ordinary!

Third Guard—Faster! We wouldn't get that signal unless it was something pretty upsetting.

Second Guard—What do you suppose it could be? Everything has looked pretty quiet.

Fourth Guard—Step on it! All I know is that the new system was just put in in case something unusual happened up there.

A Guard—What's wrong?

Mr. Early (speechless with amazement)—It happened! . . . Good heavens, it happened! (He swoons.)

A Guard—What's the trouble?

Mr. McIntyre (white and shattered.)—He w-w-ent in there! (He collapses.)

Scene IV—Office of Marguerite LeHand.

A Guard (finding Miss LeHand just coming out of a faint on the floor).—Did you ring?

Miss LeHand—Did I ring! You ask that after what just happened! (She faints again.)

A Guard—What's going on?

Mr. Roosevelt (trying to steady himself).—I'm too astonished to talk.

A Guard—Try to compose yourself.

Mr. Roosevelt—But it was such a shock . . . it was so sudden! . . . so unexpected! . . . I saw him with my own eyes . . . He walked right in. . . .

Guard—Who walked right in?

Mr. Roosevelt (becoming incoherent in his astonishment.)—I still can't believe it.

Guard—(As the guards from the other offices join him.)—Where did he go?

Mr. Roosevelt (pointing feebly to his father's office.)—In there.

Scene VI—The President's Office.

(The guards rush in and grab an elderly man sitting chatting with the President. The President seems a little astonishd but is smiling.)

A Guard—What'll we do with him? Did he try any rough stuff?

The President—Let him go, boys. He's all right.

Guards—Who is he? We got the bell from all your secretaries. They're speechless. Who is this man?

The President—Justice Van Devanter. I invited him to come up and see me. And it seems he accepted! (The President swoons.)

Coronation Review Announcer Taken Off Air After Outburst

British Broadcast Interrupted When Commentator, Overcome by Night Spectacle, Looses a Few 'Damn Me's.'

By the United Press.

London (Friday), May 21.—Millions of listeners heard a B. B. C. broadcast description of the fleet illuminations at Spithead interrupted for four minutes early today when Lieut. Comdr. Tom Woodroofe, retired, suffered from a "lit up" complex aboard the battleship Nelson.

Woodroofe was the commentator.

"The whole fleet is lit up . . . er by . . . by lights," he began. "Like a fairyland, the ships are covered with fairy lights. Even the destroyers are lit up, and the big boats are lit up."

Woodroofe became unintelligible for a few moments and then radio listeners heard him say: "It's all right. I was just telling the people around me to shut their damn mouths."

Woodroofe mentioned that the U. S. S. New York was a particularly brilliant spectacle. Then he paused.

"The magicians waved a wand," he said. "Now there is no fleet here at all. No damn fleet at all. Damn me!"

There were further incoherent sounds. Then the B. B. C. announcer broke in:

"We are now taking you back to the Carlton Hotel for dance music."

B. B. C. received 500 telephone calls within 45 minutes from listeners asking for the reason the broadcast was cut off.

Britain's Ruler Reviews Fleet, Foreign Ships

Colorful Pageantry; Salutes Mark Occasion; U. S. Warships in Line.

By the Associated Press.

Portsmouth, England, May 20.—King George VI, who knows sea life at first hand, reviewed his navy today in the colorful and thunderous pageantry of flagged warships, royal gun salutes and the cheers of an estimated million spectators.

It was a return to the formality and ceremony of the days of the monarch's father, the late King George V, and a departure from the breezy, informal manner in which Edward VIII, now Duke of Windsor, took such tasks.

The King—who was a sub-lieutenant on a warship in the World War's greatest naval battle at Jutland in 1916—stood on the bridge of the royal yacht Victoria and Albert for the review.

Beside him were Queen Elizabeth and their 11-year-old daughter, Princess Elizabeth, who may one day herself rule Britain.

Wore Admiral's Uniform.

The King wore the uniform of an admiral of the fleet. The Queen was in a beige gown and fur-trimmed coat, with a beige hat. Princess Elizabeth was bareheaded and wore a pink coat.

The yacht made a two-hour journey to receive the salutes of 140 British war vessels and 17 foreign ships, headed by the United States battleship New York.

There were 300 other craft, moored in nine long lanes.

The whole galaxy of vessels, lying in the bright sunshine between Lee-on-Solent and Spithead, covered an area roughly 9 miles long and 6 miles broad.

Italy alone of the major foreign powers was not represented.

Princess Elizabeth, who had convinced her parents it was about time she made her first voyage to see something of the navy she may some time command, climbed to the top deck of the "Victoria and Albert" early in the morning while her parents were still below.

Then she went ashore with attendants, asking many questions.

Later the rest of the royal party, including the Duke and Duchess of Kent, landed to view the old ship Victory, the flagship of Admiral Nelson at Trafalgar in 1805.

Crowds Line Beaches.

Before the monarch's party returned to the yacht, great crowds had lined the pebbled beaches and jetties near Portsmouth and on the Isle of Wight.

The pomp and tradition of the review were in high contrast to the touch of adventure and personal enjoyment which Edward VIII injected into his reviews.

While inspecting the fleet at Portsmouth June 30, 1936, he unceremoniously went to sea in a high-speed torpedo boat. That action wasn't on the program, and it brought expressions of concern for his safety.

Later on, when he inspected the home fleet at Portsmouth on November 18, less than a month before he abdicated, Edward finished his task by joining the sailors aboard the aircraft carrier Courageous and playing the mouth organ with great gusto.

Town of 10,000 Razed by Fire In Philippines

2 Killed, 2,000 Homeless in Paracale; 3d Disaster in Islands in 6 Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

Manila, May 20.—The latest of three recent conflagrations to devastate Philippine towns roared today today through Paracale, 150 miles east of here.

At least two persons were burned to death and an unascertained number were injured. Cooling ruins may disclose other dead.

Flames driven by high winds raged uncontrolled for four hours. Two hundred flimsy tropical buildings were destroyed and 2,000 persons made homeless before the flames were checked.

The hotel section of the mining town of 10,000 was reduced to ruins. The property loss was estimated from $250,000 to $350,000.

Looting began as residents fled from burning homes, but Philippine soldiers quickly suppressed it. Working with conscripts from a nearby training camp and Red Cross men, the soldiers housed the homeless in schools, shops and mining bunkhouses and aided the injured.

Fire fighters were hampered by lack of water as the wind flung the flames rapidly through the inflammable buildings. Rescuers dashed into a hospital and carried patients to safety.

The disaster at Paracale, near the seashore of Camarine Norte Province, followed the $250,000 fire which leveled the business district of Maasin on Leyte Island yesterday. On April 7 more than 1,000 dwellings were destroyed in northern Manila by a conflagration with a loss of $1,000,000. One died in the flames.

Canal Zone Railroad Purchases 3 Vessels

Construction of three modern steamers for the Panama Canal, at a cost of slightly more than $12,000,000, was approved yesterday by the board of directors of the Panama Railroad Co. The decision was made at a meeting of the board with Secretry of War Woodring in the War Department.

The three steamers will replace the company's present fleet of four vessels. The new ships will be 466 feet long, have a dead weight of 6,000 tons, and cost $4,040,000 apiece. They will be built by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation.

Prince Georges To Get U.S. Aid For Children

Physio-Therapist to Direct Work of Treating Cripples.

The Federal Government will assign a physio-therapist to Prince Georges County within the next month to supervise the treatment of crippled children, it was announced yesterday by Mrs. Ralph J. Sheffer, of Riverdale, Md., county chairman of the Maryland League for Crippled Children.

The announcement was made at a free clinic held at the Seventh Day Adventist Building by the Ladies Auxiliary of the Southern Maryland District of the American Legion under auspices of the League for Crippled Children.

Mrs. Sheffer said the assignment was made possible through funds appropriated under the social security act.

Two specialists from Johns Hopkins University examined 52 patients at the clinic. They were Drs. Winthrop Phelps and Alvin Jones.

Approximately half were in need of immediate operations, Mrs. Sheffer said. In cases where the parents are unable to afford the prescribed treatment, free hospitalization will be provided by the league.

Possibility that some 15 minor criminal cases tried under the Prince Georges County police court system, prior to its revision by the recent Legislature, may have to be dismissed was seen yeesterday as a result of a decision by Judge O'Dunne, of the Baltimore Circuit Court, in a test case Tuesday.

Judge O'Dunne's decision was handed down in a habeas corpus proceeding instituted by Joseph T. Parr and Gerald W. Hill, of Baltimore, in behalf of Thomas Wilson, colored, convicted in the county police court last March of driving on a suspended permit, and sentenced to a year in jail.

The writ was granted on the grounds that certain sections of the county court act were unconstitutional. Judge O'Dunne's decisions, however, must be confirmed by the Court of Appeals.

Unconstiutionality of the police court system was charged as long ago as last January by Robert W. McCullough, attorney, of Cheverly, Md.

Although the Prince Georges County Circuit Court never ruled on McCullough's case, legislation was passed by the General Assembly, revamping the disputed portions of the original police court act passed in 1927. The revised system is believed to be free from unconstitutional provisions

District Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen and Maj. J. R. Berry, of Fort Myer, will be judges for the annual horse show to be held tomorrow in Byrd Stadium, College Park, under auspices of the University of Maryland Riding Club.

In the morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, four events will be held, all closed to student competition. In the afternoon at 1:30 there will be eight classes open to all entries.

Civic leaders of Hyattsville, Md., will participate tomorrow at 4 p. m. in dedication exercises for the recently completed gateway to Magruder Park.

Charles E. Prince, jr., worshipful master of the Mount Hermon Masonic Lodge, will deliver the dedicatory address. A. L. Mehring, past master of the lodge, will pay tribute to the doner of the park, William Pinckney Magruder, oldest living Mayor of Hyattsville.

Past Capt. Hugh T. McClay, jr., of the Sons of the American Legion, Snyder-Farmer Post, will present a flag to the town in behalf of the organization. Mayor H. T. Willis will accept the gift. There also will be an exhibition by the drum and bugle corps of the post.

Montgomery Fights Tax Rise In Face of More Expenditures

Board Tackles Budget Calling for $100,000 Increase; Pay Boosts Sought for Teachers and County Policemen.

The Montgomery County Commissioners yesterday settled down to wrestling with the problem of making last year's tax rate cover approximately $100,000 more expenses this year.

The commissioners hope that increased revenues will take care of the additional expenses but they were not certain as the mass of figures prepared by the various branches of the county government began unfolding before them.

They are faced with an increase of from $80,000 to $115,000 in the county school budget to take care of new teachers necessary for increased enrollment, and an increase of $100 a year in teachers' salaries.

The $25 a month increase for county policemen will amount to approximately $10,000 more, provided Gov. Nice signs the bill authorizing the increase and the commissioners stand by their previous decision to give the raise advocated by practically all civic bodies of the county.

Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, has asked for an increase of $6,000 for the health department and P. Ray Souder, supervisor of public aid, has asked for increase of about $5,000 in his department for payment of services of physicians now given without cost.

It is believed approximately $2,000,000 has been added to the county taxable basis in the past year, and receipts from the county liquor control board will be double the amount expected.

Town Councilman Ernest D. Houghton, of Glen Echo, Md., a Democrat, has been given a recess appointment as justice of the peace for the Seventh election district by Gov. Nice. Houghton was named yesterday.

The Maryland State Roads Commission yesterday accepted the offer of the Sandy Spring Railway Co. to remove its abandoned tracks to make way for the Kensington overpass.

Edgar M. Gerlach, supervisor of social service of the Bureau of Prisons, Department of Justice, will address a meeting of the Montgomery County Council on social welfare today at 9:30 a. m. at the Rockville courthouse.

Powdered Silver In 6 Days Makes Brandy 'Smooth'

A new method of aging brandy within six days by treating it with minutely powdered silver has been reported to the American Chemical Society, it was learned yesterday.

The new process, which consists of passing the brandy through an ionic silver sterilizer, produces "a flavor of rather smooth, delicate character," according to its inventors, E. Arthur Beavens, Harry E. Goresline and E. K. Nelson, of the United States Bureau of Chemistry and Soils.

In a preliminary experiment, the society announced, it was found that when minute amounts of silver were dispersed in a 100-proof alcohol-water mixture, a change similar to "aging" took place within a few days.

Merchants Fight Abuse Of Duty-Free Privilege

A Detroit merchants' organization urged yesterday customs laws be tightened to end "abuse" of the tourist's privilege to bring $100 worth of goods into this country duty free.

Charles E. Boyd, secretary of the Detroit Retail Merchants Association, prepared a statement to be laid before the House Ways and Means Committee.

Louisiana Farmer Gets Life Term for Slaying

Ville Platte, La., May 20 (AP).—Melvin Vidrine, 27-year-old Evangeline Parish farmer, today was convicted of murder without capital punishment for killing his common law wife, Frozina Vizinat, 24. The verdict carries a life sentence.

Vidrine had based his defense on the contention that he shot his wife after she begged him to do so because she was "tired of living."

6 A. F. G. E. Lodges Hit Economy Move

Claiming that their demand "for a vigorous national campaign against the so-called economy measures" was denied by Charles I. Stengle, president of the American Federation of Government Employes, six A. F. G. E. lodges in the District yesterday announced that they would take independent action "against mass dismissals and pay slashes."

The lodges are in the Labor Department, Interstate Commerce Commission, Department of Agriculture, Resettlement Administration, General Accounting Office and the Works Progress Administration. Lodge spokesmen said that "we are unequivocally opposed to the false economy measures now before Congress and any repetition of the misnamed economy drive of 1932. The public's entitled to efficient service. We cannot render such service when wholesale furloughs and dismissals result in understaffed agencies."

In a recent meeting Agriculture Lodge, No. 31, decided to co-operate with lodges in the A. F. G. E. in a "vigorous campaign" against the economy proposals.

Maryland Prepares To Tax Pin Machines

Annapolis, Md., May 20 (AP).—Clerks of circuit courts in the Maryland counties and in Baltimore City had a total of 21,500 metal tags tonight to be used in licensing pin ball machines and music boxes under the State relief revenue act.

William S. Gordy, jr., State comptroller, sent 5,000 of the small oval tags to Baltimore City, 100 each to ten counties and 500 each to 13 counties. Inspectors from the comptroller's office will seize all machines without tags after June 1.

The relief law levies a tax of $35 annually for each pin-ball machine, unless operated by a penny, when the tax will be $10. A $15 annual tax is levied on music boxes.

2,400 Students At Arlington Take T. B. Test

Result of Examinations Will Be Announced at Session Tonight.

Results of tuberculin tests made of Arlington County's 2,400 senior and junior students at Washington Lee High School will be announced by Dr. Charles P. Cake, of the State Health Department, at a meeting of the Arlington County Tuberculosis Association tonight, at 8, at the Clarendon Health Center.

Almost one-third of the pupils tested reacted positively, the survey shows. Results of X-ray pictures taken of those indicated to be susceptible to the tuberculosis germ also will be announced at the meeting.

The association announced last night that the survey reports now are in the hands of the family physicians, and urged parents of students to contact their physicians.

With plans now in the mind of County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan carried out by the several communities in the county, Arlington County this year will have its first county-wide community Christmas tree celebration as a result of the gift to the county by Mr. and Mrs. Morsell, of a Norway spruce tree.

The tree 20 feet in height, now adorns the lawn of Morsell's on Wilson boulevard and North Highland street.

Hanrahan said that he would have an experienced landscape gardener move the tree within a few days. The tree will be planted on the lawn, fronting the courthouse.

The Old Dominion Kennel Club will hold its first puppy match Saturday, at 2:30 p. m., at 956 North Glebe road. The judges will be Miss Marie L. Welch and Mrs. J. W. Frew, both of Baltimore, Md., and William Ring, of New Jersey.

The Senior Class at Arlington Hall Junior College for Girls will present its annual play entitled, "Little Women," under the direction of Harry E. Brown tonight at 8 o'clock in the college gymnasium.

The Founders' Day program at Washington-Lee High School starts this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on the parade grounds. The program will include drills by both the cadet corps and auxiliary. Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock the cadet corps will meet the cadet corps at Alexandria in a competitive drill at the Jefferson High School.

Plans are being completed for the spring flower show by the Neighborhood Garden Club of Ballston.

I think mistrust has broken up more homes than pretty near anything else in the world. Two people can't be happy day after day livin' under the same roof unless they have faith in each other.

When Grandpaw Pelican Snelson was a judge down home, a man walked into his court one day and said, "Judge, I want'ta get a divorce from my wife." Grandpaw says, "Well, you've only been married to her for three months," and he says, "Yes, but I've found out that she's deceitful—This morning when I was tellin' her where I was last night she pretended to believe every word I said when I know very well she knew I was lying."

The Federal Diary

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Interior's Library.

Not much mention has been given that very fine library in the new Interior Building. It is one of the most interesting places in the vast building. Here are some facts about it:

For several weeks, now, workers have been bringing in the books of the Office of Education, the Bureau of Mines, the Office of Indian Affairs and the National Park Service. Today there are more than 250,000 books and a tremendous number of periodicals on the shelves and in the stacks. The library is open to readers.

It is located on the first floor of the building, to the left of the main entrance from C street. You are impressed by its beautiful paneling of dark walnut. The room reaches two stories in height.

There are six levels of stacks, occupying the space between the basement level and the third floor. The stacks and shelves in the reading rooms have an estimated book capacity of 400,000 volumes. This affords a considerable growth of material.

The ordering and delivery of books is facilitated by pneumatic tube service from the main reading room desk to the stacks. Coupled to this, is an excellent and extensive card catalogue, based on the Congressional Library system. An electric elevator operates in the stack section.

It is the hope that the library may eventually be open evenings. Right now the general public is privileged to use its facilities. Anyone may read in the library; books may be borrowed by qualified students, teachers and research people. For the reader's accommodation the reading room is outfitted with large composition tables, blue leather chairs and excellent lamps. The lamps have Federal eagles perched atop the shades.

Miss Sabra Vought, for seven years librarian of the Office of Education, is now in charge of the department's new library. She says that she is delighted with its physical appointments and is particularly hopeful of building up a real conservation library for the department.

Miss Vought has been a librarian and library expert since her graduation from Allegheny College in Meadville, Pa. She studied at the New York State Library School in Albany and later went to the University of Tennessee to accept her first job. There she discovered herself to be the only trained librarian in the State. She helped in the development and promotion of libraries while she was working out the organization of a library of considerable size.

She has taught library science at the University of Utah, at the Riverside Library School in California and at the University of Illinois. She served as librarian at her own Allegheny College and also at the Pennsylvania State College. For several years she was a member of the Ohio State Library Commission and was sent through the State organizing rural, school and public libraries.

For six years she served as supervisor of school libraries of the State Department of Education of New York. She came to Washington from the Pennsylvania State College in 1930 as librarian of the Office of Education.

The District of Columbia Federation of Federal Employes Union, at its annual meeting the other night, elected Joseph Stansfield as president for the ensuing year. W. E. Hoffheins was elected vice president; Miss Grace E. Reardon, secretary-treasurer, and John W. Ginder, trustee. Ginder also was elected as delegate to the national convention of the N. F. F. E., to be held in Springfield, Ill., this fall. Stansfield was elected alternate delegate. The officers were installed by Luther C. Steward, national president of the N. F. F. E.

A committee was instructed to contact the Congressional sub-committee on daylight saving legislation and request that a referendum on the daylight saving issue be held among Government employes. The referendun., it was suggested, could be handled through the various Government departments.

Women's Local 105 of the Bureau of Engraving has already gone on record as opposing the measure.

Secretary Ickes has announced the appointment of Lawrence Campbell Merriam, of Berkeley, Calif., as senior conservationist in the National Park Service. Simultaneously he designated him acting superintendent of Yosemite National Park.

Abattoir Seen Tax on D. C. Sewage Plant

Three Members of Park, Planning Commission Urge King Bill.

Operated to capacity, the abattoir which Adolf Gobel, Inc., of New York, proposes to build here would place a severe burden on the District's new $4,000,000 sewage disposal plant, the McCarran Senate sub-committee was told yesterday.

Previously assailed from almost every other aspect, the project was cited by a Federal sanitary engineer as one which would tax the plant daily with an organic volume equivalent to that supplied by 140,000 persons.

This testimony by Ralph E. Tarbett, of the United States Public Health Service, came after urgent recommendations by three members of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission that the King bill be enacted.

Banning the establishment of new "nuisance industries" and regulating those now in operation, the bill's House companion already has been approved by the House District Committee and may reach a vote on the floor Monday.

Hearings Recessed.

The hearings, conducted by the McCarran sub-committee of the Senate District Committee, recessed yesterday sine die after Tarbett and the following members of the planning body testified against the Gobel Co.'s plans: Chairman Frederick A. Delano, J. C. Nichols and Henry V. Hubbard.

According to Tarbett, a senior sanitary engineer in the Public Health Service, Piney Branch Run would be polluted by operation of the abattoir even though sewerage lines would carry the bulk of its refuse to the disposal plant at Blue Plains.

Parks Superintendent C. Marshall Finnan charged that: (1) the abattoir's use of the District disposal plant at Blue Plains, expressed in dollars, would be $888,000 worth of the $4,000,000 initial investment; (2) of the $216,000 required per year to operate the plant, $64,800 would be spent to dispose of the refuse originating at the slaughterhouse.

The substance of Delano's testimony was that Washington's area is limited and extreme care should be taken in its development.

The planning commission, he asserted, has bought 500,000 acres of land east of the Aanacostia River for park, parkway and recreational development and it does not relish the idea of having its program jeopardized by a nuisance industry.

Real Estate Values Stressed.

Nichols, a Kansas City real estate man who has served several years on the Capital planning body, stressed the desirability of building up the eastern section of the city now that the western portion is developed to capacity.

Hubbard, the third planning commission member to testify yesterday and a Boston city planner, likewise emphasized the need for housing expansion in the northeast section.

When D. Edward Clarke, Gobel's local attorney, reminded Hubbard that 90 per cent of the residents and property owners near the abattoir site favor the company's plans and oppose the King bill, the reply was that this factor should be considered but should not receive precedence over general sentiment.

Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, 3021 N street northwest, also appeared briefly in behalf of the King bill.

Little Lost Book Contains Secrets Vital to Aviation

Somewhere around Washington, in a gutter perhaps, or in a trash heap—is a little brown booklet that contains secrets invaluable to the future of American aviation.

In highly technical language there is written in the booklet a description of newly developed radio apparatus. Years of work went into the invention of the machinery and, while the work is not lost, it might become nullified should he booklet get into the wrong hands.

G. E. Pritchard, 1345 Irving street northwest, lost the notebook Saturday night. He believes that it dropped from his pocket either in a downtown department store or on a Mount Pleasant or Fourteenth street car.

Rockville Woman Injured by Truck

Miss Ella Fry, 77, of Rockville, Md., was injured seriously yesterday when she was knocked down by a milk truck as she was crossing Washington street in Rockville.

Taken to Montgomery County General Hospital at Sandy Spring, she was found to have received fractures of both ankles and severe bruises.

Trailer Nomads In Washington Facing Inquiry

Allen Appoints Group to Study Possibility of Camp in D. C.

The possibility of a trailer camp for the District was seen yesterday by Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward W. Thomas, as he prepared to call a committee meeting to consider the trailer situation here.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who last year went to the Pacific Coast in a "house on wheels," named Thomas to head a committee for investigating health conditions in trailer camps and the legal status of the nomads who set up camp for a time and then are gone.

Because of activity of District officials at the Capitol, Thomas so far has been unable to call together his committee, which includes C. Marshall Finnan, National Capitol Parks superintendent; Elwood Street, public welfare director; Dr. George C. Ruhland, health director; Police Superintendent Maj Ernest W. Brown, and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer. He expects a meeting within a few days, however.

While he admitted his committee will start work without much preliminary knowledge of its subject, Thomas said many requests for and inquiries about a trailer camp had been turned over to him.

First concern of the investigating committee will be the problem of sewage disposal in trailer centers. A District statute known as "the gipsy law" prohibits setting up camps unequipped with sewage facilities for more than 24 hours.

Thomas foresaw a further legal tangle in the building regulation which requires all new structures in the District to be made of masonry. He pointed out trailers have but little brick and mortar in their construction. Another problem would be that of taxing the short-time residents.

Rich Elected Head Of Citizens' Group

Charles E. S. Rich was re-elected president of the Conduit Road Citizens Association at the final meeting of the season last night at the Balisades Field House.

Action approving the King bill to prevent nuisance industries aimed at the proposeed Goebel abattoir was reaffirmed in the only formal business transacted.

Other officers and officials elected were: Dr. Kirk H. Logan, first vice president; Mrs. Charles D. Gourd, second vice president; Capt. E. R. King, recording secretary; M. J. Johnson, corresponding secretary, and J. F. Hessenauer, treasurer.

Mr. Rich and C. A. Franklin were elected delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations and Capt. King was elected as delegate to the Board of Trade.

Capital, Maryland Cadets Win Honors in Georgetown U. Drill

Company 'A,' Commanded by Richard Hall, of District, is Victor; William Quinn Takes Battalion Individual Prize.

Washington and Maryland cadets at Georgetown University figured in the annual award of major competitive and individual honors yesterday afternoon at a Military Day program for the R. O. T. C. on the campus before visiting Army officers and civilians.

Brig. Gen. Alonzo D. Gasser, commanding general at Fort George G. Meade, Md., the chief reviewing officer and the Very Rev. Arthur A. O'Leary, S. J., president of the university, addressed the massed battalion.

"We are deeply grateful that the spirit of rebellion against military service so prominent in some of the universities of our land has failed to find a foothold within our walls," Dr. O'Leary told the R. O. T. C. unit.

The R. O. T. C., Gen. Gasser declared, was in reality "the keystone of the arch of our national defense" and the Army, he said, is looking to the R. O. T. C. to provide trained officers in event of war.

Company A, commanded by Capt. Richard E. Hall of this city, won a spirited competitive company drill with the right to carry the colors next year. Capt. Hall also was awarded the Knights of Columbus cup, presented by the Washington General Assembly, Fourth Degree, as the winner of the individual compauy commanders' competition. The presentation was made by Francis J. Rafferty.

Hall also received a year's membership in the Reserve Officers Association, a similar membership being given First Lieut. Arthur H. Marsh, of the District of Columbia.

Cadet William J. Quinn, of Chevy Chase, Md., walked off with the hardest earned individual prize, when he was adjudged the best-drilled cadet in the battalion. It was a test in which cadet after cadet fell by the wayside, leaving Quinn eventually standing alone, without a single mistake in obeying commands.

As a result, Quinn was awarded the Civilian Military Education Fund Cup, presented by Lieut. Col. Ralph C. Bishop. A medal to the "runnerup" in the individual drill competition was presented to Cadet T. X. Clinton, of New Jersey, by the Military Order of Foreign Wars.

Cadet Maj. William H. Bruns, of Chevy Chase, Md., who commanded the battalion, was awarded the American Legion superior leadership during the year. The award was presented by Lieut. H. W. Lineburg, commander of the District Department.

Another Washington cadet, First Sergt. Fred H. Walton, jr., received the silver cup for excellence in military science in the first year advanced course presented by Dean John E. Grattan, S. J., of the College of Arts and Sciences. The President's Silver Cup award for excellence in military science in the second year advanced course was presented to Lieut. Joseph A. Kuhn, jr., of Maryland, by Dr. O'Leary. The same man also received the cup awarded to the winner of the platoon commander competition. It was presented by District Department of the Reserve Officers Association. He commanded the first platoon of Company B.

Distinguished service ribbons were awarded to each member of Company A for winning the company drill. The Rev. Francis E. Lucey, S. J., law regent, presented the ribbons to First Sergt. Patrick H. Crafton, of the District, for the members.

Other awards for excellence in military science were made to Corpl. James G. Foley, of Massachusetts, second year basic course, and Private Dexter L. Manley, of New York, first year basic course.

In the spring competitions among the company commanders, based on efficiency over several months, the award was made to Capt. Edmond R. Maley, of Pennsylvania. It was offered by the Washington Chapter, Military Order of the World War, and presented by Maj. John D. Cutter, commander.

Gold medals and minor 'G' certificates to the members of the Varsity rifle team having the highest scores for the season were awarded by the Rev. John J. Kehoe, S. J., director of athletics, to Cadets Thomas M. Lewis, Rogelio E. Alfaro, Arthur D. Lachman, George J. Fleury, jr., and James D. Switzer.

Silver medals to the high-score men on the Freshman rifle team went to Charles W. Weller, Robert L. Knoop, John R. Corbett, Walter M. Smith, John J. Quinn and Judson T. Armstrong.

A bronze National Rifle Association medal was awarded to Thomas M. Lewis for winning the club championship in marksmanship. Thomas M. Lewis and Arthur D. Lachman, of the Varsity team, were given medals also for scoring 90 per cent or better. To the freshman in this scoring class the medal was presented to John R. Corbett.

Likewise gold medals to graduating members of the University Band were presented to Charles E. Baynes, Andrew A. Casano, Alfred G. Krug, Frank E. Nattier, Anthony J. Nicolette and Anthony J. Terranova.

To other bandsmen of two years' service minor "G" awards were made as follows: Charles E. Baynes, Robert P. Campbell, Octavius J. Cavadine, Thomas F. Jenkins, Alfred G. Krug, Arthur D. Lachman, Thomas D. Maher, William T. Mulroy, Frank E. Nattier, Charles R. O'Hara, Alvin Paulosky, Ausey Robnett, John D. Salb, Leo P. Schultz, J. Russell Sullivan and Paul J. Tierney.

Police Assail Blind Corner After Fatality

2 Held on Charge of Manslaughter in Corder Death.

Hedge Obscures Vision at Harewood and Michigan, N. E.

By Howard F. Wentworth.

After a coroner's jury yesterday held two District motorists under negligent homicide charges in connection with the recent traffic death of Mrs. Annie M. Corder, 89, local police and traffic officials assailed dangers at the "blind" intersection of Harewood road and Michigan avenue northeast, where the fatal crash occurred.

Testimony at the inquest showed that southbound motorists on Harewood road are unable to secure a clear vision of the hazardous crossing because of high hedges and an iron fence at the corners.

The jury's verdict held Earl N. Rittenour, of 1212 Longfellow street northwest, as the driver of the car in which Mrs. Corder was a passenger, and William F. Wagner, first block of Franklin street northeast, as driver of the other car.

Mrs. Corder, grandmother of Miss Elizabeth Motley, secretary to Police Superintendent Ernest W. Brown, was injured April 18 and died in Sibley Hospital last week. Internal injuries suffered in the mishap caused her death, physicians said.

Both drivers yesterday testified they were unaware of their danger until the moment of the impact. The coroner's jury was forced to consider conflicting testimony as to whether Rittenour halted for a "stop" sign on Harewood road before entering the intersection.

Long Discussed.

On the northeast corner, the jury was told, is a high hedge on the grounds of Catholic University. And on the northwest corner is a tall picket fence bordering Soldiers' Home.

Approaching the corner, witnesses said, motorists are faced with the problem of seeing beyond the hedge and fence to watch east and west bound traffic on Michigan avenue.

Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer condemned the obstructions as a menace to highway safety and urged removal of the hedge. The fence, he said, should be moved back so drivers may have a clear view of the approach.

The corner has long been a subject of discussion. Four recent accidents at the spot brought serious injuries to auto passengers and drivers.

Did Not See, He Says.

Rittenour, in a voluntary statement to the corner's jury, admitted pulling out from a long line of traffic on Harewood road in order to reach the corner. Another car at the "stop" sign, he said, was holding up traffic and he thought it was stalled.

Although other witnesses testified that Rittenour "slowed down" but did not stop before entering the intersection, he said he brought his car to a complete halt and shifted gears. His tesimony was subsantiated by Miss Motley, who was riding in the front seat.

Wagner, the jury was told, was traveling west on Michigan avenue, well in the center of the street and in the second line of traffic. He said he didn't see the other car until too late to avoid the crash.

Mrs. Corder, sitting in the rear seat, was thrown against the side of the car.

The coroner's jury heard testimony for nearly three hours. Their verdict, holding the drivers for Police Court action under the negligent homicide act, was reached after nearly an hour's deliberation.

In another inquest, Nicholas A. Argerakis, 42, 2523 Fourteenth street northwest, was exonerated in connection with the death of William Hannan, 60, 1521 Seventeenth street northwest, the city's forty-eighth traffic victim of the year.

"Barometer" Proposed.

Hannon suffered a fractured skull when struck at Seventeenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

And at the same time yesterday, Traffic Director Van Duzer proposed erection of a "traffic barometer' 'at Fourteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue northwest, similar to one used by the Community Chest in showing donation trends.

Estelle Hempstead, 3133 Connecticut avenue northwest, revoked; Osmon E. Henrrson, 1446 Juniper street northwest, suspended; Burton W. Johnson, 428 Twenty-fourth street northeast, suspended; Robert S. Judd, 7012 Eastern avenue northwest, suspended; Francis E. McCarthy, 1038 New Jersey avenue northwest, suspended; Nick Mezzella, 9 Randolph street northeast, revoked; Donald B. Mohler, 1348 U street southeast, suspended; Richard A. Newell, 4520 Georgia avenue northwest, suspended; Harry Schlider, 1412 Fourteenth street northwest, suspended.

Daylight Time Hard on Wives, Group Argues

Would Upset Children's Lives, 'Standard' League Contends.

"In summer, quite the other way, I have to go to bed by day."

This child's complaint, expressed many years ago by Robert Louis Stevenson, may become one of the principal talking points of the District Standard Time League—an organization formed yesterday to oppose passage of the Sacks' daylight saving bill.

George C. Havenner, elected president of the league at an organization meeting in the Munsey Building yesterday, declared that one of the organization's primary objections to daylight time was the hardship it worked on housewives, particularly mothers.

Bedtime Complicated.

"They would find it much harder to get their children to go to bed," he asserted. Havenner is a former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Another reason for opposition to the bill, he said, is the difficulty fast time would cause the farmers who supply the District with milk and foodstuffs.

Havenner said that the league would devote itself to gathering data on local opinion about the bill and would present this data before Congressional committees if asked. A petition has already been put into circulation for signature by those opposed to the fast time.

Sounding Sentiment.

For the past week, Havenner explained, he has been "sounding out sentiment" here and has so far "found no enthusiasts for daylight time." Many to whom he talked were violently opposed to the bill, he said, adding that several citizens' associations have already put their protests on record.

About 25 persons were present at the meeting in the league's Munsey Building offices yesterday. Officers elected besides Havenner were Thomas Price, executive secretary, and Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, corresponding secretary. The group is expected to begin a membership drive soon.

Maryland Woman Is Dealt 13 Spades In Bridge Contest

The tranquillity of a friendly game of bridge was broken last night because the hostess chose to call a spade a spade.

It all happened when Mrs. R. W. Buzzard, 208 Connecticut avenue, Kensington, Md., was taken with a case of spots before eyes—13 of them. She picked up her hand to find 13 spades.

Without waiting to bid and score a grand slam, she gave vent to her astonishment at the dealing—which experts say happens once in 27,000,000 times—as she and the other players took time out to marvel.

She was playing with H. B. Gardener, her partner; Mrs. Sallie Bayless, 945 Columbia road and her husband, R. W. Buzzard.

D.C. Liquor Board Fights Law Change

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday registered opposition to two bills to liberalize the District liquor act at a hearing before a sub-committee of the House District Committee.

The measures objected to were introduced by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois. One would extend the deadline for the sale of liquor by the drink from midnight until 2 a. m. on Saturday nights, while the other would permit the on-sale distribution of liquor at lunch counters.

"The law is working admirably the way it is," said Mrs. Agnes K. Mason, acting chairman of the ABC board.

Opposition also was voiced by the ABC members to the Palmisano bill providing for appeals from ABC Board rulings to the United States District Court.

Cosmopolitans Hear Advertising Authority

How catering to the peculiarities of people will increase business was outlined yesterday by Frank Romer, nationally known authority on advertising, in a talk to the Cosmopolitan Club. He was introduced by William Edelblut, chairman of the forum committee, at the luncheon at the Carlton Hotel.

Lawrence Choate spoke on the observance of "Life Insurance Week." President Arthur W. Defenderfer presided.

Budget, Tax Bills' Priority Now Question

Committees Undecided Which Proposal to Consider First.

Problem Expected to Be Settled Early in the Coming Week.

Whether to adopt tax measures to meet the estimated District budget deficit before passing the appropriations bill which will make such taxes necessary, or vice versa, yesterday confounded Congress.

The difference of opinion as to which to consider first was between the House District Committee and the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations.

Senator Thomas, chairman of the sub-committee handling the District supply bill, suggested it would be unwise to report the budget measure until there is assurance the full revenue is forthcoming.

He intimated he didn't care whether the Kennedy sub-committee or his sub-committee acts first on the new tax proposals, but he emphasized it is important the appropriations bill not be enacted into law until it is certain there will be no deficit.

To Settle Priority.

Members of the House District Committee, which had a squabble with the House sub-committee on District appropriations over respective "prerogatives," have looked askance at Senator Thomas' threat to attach the District Commissioners' tax proposals to the money bill.

The question of priority probably will be settled early next week when the Commissioners submit their five-point program for raising $8,600,000 to both the House and Senate sub-committees.

Should Chairman Kennedy and his colleagues reach a decision to report out a group of tax measures at a meeting scheduled for Tuesday, it is believed Thomas will drop his plan to link tax legislation with the budget.

Taking up school estimates, the Senate sub-committee yesterday instructed the Commissioners to investigate the proportion of school expenditures to other municipal expenses in comparable cities and to report their findings before the hearings are completed.

School Grant Slashed.

Complaints have been made to the sub-committee, it was stated, Washington schools are not getting a proper share of the District appropriations.

The House bill carries $12,751,695 for schools, a cut of $551,285 from Budget Bureau estimates. Even this amount, however, is almost 30 per cent of the total budget.

An additional $150,000 has been recommended by the Budget Bureau since the House passed the supply bill to meet a rise in construction costs of five school buildings.

Meanwhile, George E. Keneipp, manager of the Keystone Automobile Club, assailed the District Commissioners' decision to recommend a weight tax on automobiles.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Two Local Pictures Enlist Washington Attention By Virtue of Opposite, But Fascinating Themes

'Lost Horizon,' at the National, and 'Shall We Dance,' at RKO-Keith's Continue to Build Patronage by Sheer Merit of Their Stories and Treatment; That Speech in New York—if Any; 'Mr. Dooley' Pays a Call; Local Amusement Notes.

AS BETWEEN the idealist and the realist in the theater, or anywhere else, there is, of course, a yawning chasm equivalent to the distance between the poles.

We are reverting once more, as goes without saying, to the film version of James Hilton's novel of "Lost Horizon," current at the National Theater as a "road-show" production. Mr. Hilton's novel, it must be said, was graced by better writing than Robert Riskin has been able to impart to the screen transcription, but, even so, the film is one that will appeal to those who have a bent in the direction of fantasy.

BELL.

This already has been said here several times before. It nevertheless seems no more than the part of simple justice to repair any damage that may have been done by a personal antipathy toward this sort of thing.

I have been upbraided many times for my inability to perceive any comic classicism in "Alice in Wonderland" beyond a few passages that I deem gems of humor. I must be a realist.

In "Lost Horizon" there is an ephemeral quality of idealistic dreaming of a consummate Utopia that somehow leaves me cold. It is a pleasure to report, however, that this column distinctly is in a minority in its view. The mounting patronage that has attended the showing of this latest Frank Capra production for Columbia Pictures is all the refutation we need. Which brings to mind again that it always has been the contention of this department that no one individual may, with impunity, set himself up as an arbiter of what the mass public should or should not view in the theater, whether living or celluloid—I mean the theater, not the critic.

There is another item on view currently that is attracting a wealth of box-office support. That is "Shall We Dance?" in which the stellar roles are played by Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, that perennial team of favorites who never fail to click, as the saying goes. We still think that Fred doesn't dance quite enough in this one, but accede to the public notion that the film is all right. It is. Except that Fred doesn't dance enough.

The public, I have found out, after many years of adventuring around the playhouse, in one capacity or another, will see what it wants to see. If anyone could forecast precisely what that would be, he could write his own ticket—and probably would, 'way up in the millions!

Yesterday's caller was "Mr. Dooley," the black Scottish terrier that will play an important part in "Fly Away Home," the next production of the Washington Civic Theater, at Wardman Park. "Mr. Dooley" is an aloof sort of pooch that only succumbs to a scratching of the ears after considerable persuasion. We think we broke him down, more or less, but wouldn't be too sure. At least, we were not bitten or scratched, and that is something. There also is a kitten in the play, but I am given to understand that "Mr. Dooley" and the cat never meet on stage—which seems just as well.

It is important to note that "amphitryon," or, as it is designated in English, "The Gods at Play," will not be shown at the Belasco Theater this afternoon and night, owing to a booking of the house for a Hoffman School of Dance recital.

The run of the picture will be resumed tomorrow on the same schedule of performances that have previaled through the earlier days of the week.

"The Gods at Play," incidentally, is rated as the best of the foreign-made films that the Belasco screen ever has accommodated—which is pretty high praise.

Fear and trepidation continue to occupy the mind and heart, if any, of this reporter as to what is to be done about that speech before the first convention of the American Theater Council in the Astor Hotel next Tuesday. Maybe something will bob up in the meantime, but at the moment the outlook is pretty drear. And there is nothing quite so disheartening as a drear outlook—ask the man who owns one!

• • • •

Perhaps it might be well to bear down on the fact, in that New York address, that Washington still bears every earmark of the best theater town outside of New York.

We have had an extensive season here this year without a dark week. During the past ten years or so, that is a record. There have been a couple of "road show" pictures to round out the full run of the season, but I suspect that Washington is the only city in the country that has such a record.

When I encounter dramatic reviewers from other cities in the country that are starving for some such succession of bookings as the National Theater in this city enjoys year after year, I am amazed at the paucity of attractions that are made available to them.

• • • •

This is the last week of the season for Col. James J. Lake's Gayety Theater. With the final fall of the curtain on Saturday night it will be the curtain for the year insofar as burlesque is concerned. The good colonel has been harassed no end these past few weeks, but hopes, after a convention of the Independent Burlesque Association in Atlantic City soon, to be able to iron out his difficulties with those who object to the form of entertainment which his widely patronized house affords.

Run-to-Cover Note.

Lend Eerie Quality to Vivid Drama

Pictured above are Margo, distinguished by her performance in both the stage and screen versions of Maxwell Anderson's play of "Winterset," and John Howard, who supply the chief romantic interest in "Lost Horizon," being "road-showed" at the National Theater—at least the most bizarre. Margo grows suddenly old in a screen sequence that many do not particularly enjoy. Mr. Howard is a stalwart hero.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

Hollywood, May 20.—I believe I have previously remarked that the kiss of salutation is common here. Almost as common as shaking hands. Or better yet, almost as common as knifing backs. The custom has no depth of meaning; no more so than nose rubbing among the Eskimos. It is merely that an actor's emotions are nearer the surface and his hellos demand more than a handshake. The kisses are an outlet for his natural exhibitionism.

CLARK GABLE.

Hollywood ladies have gradually become accustomed to this greeting. I can remember when they blushed on such occasions, but no more. I do not mean to give you the idea that every man "smacks" every woman on meeting, but between good friends the habit is widespread. As an observer of the custom (and also as a partaker; I'm no fool), I have studied the techniques of various actresses. Here are a few:

Loretta Young and Anita Louise simply hold up their faces like dutiful children. They seem instinctively to know the proper time. Jeanette MacDonald pouts—and if she does not quit it, I am going to beat Gene Raymond to the punch some day. Joan Crawford gives more than she takes; I mean, she is the aggressor, and her lips barely graze the cheeks of those she greets. Jean Harlow also acts in the affirmative, but accompanies her kiss with a brief, one-arm hug.

I have yet to see a genuine kiss in public even between such fond couples as Barbara Stanwyck and Robert Taylor. Come to think of it, these two greet each other only with cheery words. This makes me think that the stars may have established a double standard for kissing—the sentiment sort not to be flaunted publicly, and the other kind which is freely exchanged in cafes, studios or on the street.

Amateur story writers who have unsuccessfully bombarded studios may find solace in the fact that they have professional company. One of the bright scenarists at 20th Century-Fox turned in an idea for the next Dionne Quintuplets' picture. His manuscript bounced back from story editor Julian Johnston with the terse notation: "This is not one story. It is two. Both are terrible!"

Clark Gable worked me for a laugh with his story about a "quickie" preview he saw recently. The first 50 feet revealed nothing but an empty set. Then the actors peopled it and the story moved along fairly well. After the preview, Gable asked the make-'em-in-one-day producer, "Why the blank film at the start?" "That's because I start shooting promptly at 8 o'clock," came the snappy reply, "and if my actors haven't arrived on the set, it's just too bad!"

Nazi Official Pledges Money for More Babies

Opening the annual convention of public health officials, Frick declared the number of births under the Nazi regime had increased from 993,126 in 1932 to 1,290,000 in 1936.

Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Aces have more than a trick-taking value; they also have an enormous psychological effect on the average player's bidding. Anyone who has opened a hand without a single Ace knows this to be true. If his partner forces, there is a tendency to hold back in one's rebids for fear that a slam will be reached with the opponents holding two Aces. As a matter of fact, this is a healthy fear. It follows, therefore, that when the responding hand holds three or more Aces he must take measures to still his partner's fears.

East, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 7 3 ♡ A J 7 4 ◇ A 5 3 ♣ A Q 4
♠ J 9 ♡ 10 3 ◇ 10 7 4 ♣ J 10 9 8 7 3	North West East South	♠ 10 5 2 ♡ 9 5 ◇ Q J 8 6 2 ♣ K 5 2
	♠ K Q 8 6 4 ♡ K Q 8 6 2 ◇ K 9 ♣ 6

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	3 ♡
Pass	4 ♡	Pass	4 N T
Pass	5 ♡	Pass	5 N T
Pass	7 ♡	Pass	Pass
Pass

Until South had heard about all four Aces in North's hand, which the successive bids of four notrump and then five notrump conveyed, he could take no really aggressive action. Once the Ace situation had been cleared up, however, it became a practical certainty that thirteen tricks were in the combined hands. And since he could count them a great deal better than could North, despite the latter's four Aces, it was up to South to bid the grand slam. From North's point of view, South's hand might easily have been the following:

♠ K Q J 10 ♡ K Q 10 8 ◇ K 7 5 ♣ 8 6

And, obviously, this hand would offer little play for thirteen tricks. Therefore, North's duty was to show the top strength of the combined hands. South's duty was to apply this information to his own knowledge of his hand's distribution and translate this into terms of tricks.

There was, of course, nothing to the play. Nothing but a miraculously bad break of both trumps and spades could have defeated the contract.

Kiwanis Celebrates 20th Anniversary

With District Governor George E. Peery of Virginia as the guest speaker, the Washington Kiwanis Club celebrated the twentieth anniversary of its organization at the weekly meeting held yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Mayflower.

District Governor Peery complimented the local club upon its fine achievements over the 20-year period, reminding that they had played a large part in the organization of many other clubs in the Capital district, comprising the District, Maryland, Virginia and Delaware.

Former District Governor Harry Kimball, of the local club, introduced Gov. Peery. President George Mangan presided, introducing a number of guests.

Three Surviving Quads Get First Nourishment

Muskogee, Okla., May 20 (AP).—The three surviving Mullins quadruplets took their first nourishment tonight since their birth in a two-room farm house yesterday morning. The two boys and a girl each received 2 cubic centimeters of their mother's milk, administered with a medicine dropper.

"They appeared to enjoy being fed something besides water," nurses said. Mrs. William Mullins, 39, the mother, was brought to the hospital today to nurse the babies. The fourth, a girl, died shortly after birth.

Burbank, Calif., May 20 (AP).—Amelia Earhart took her $90,000 Flying Laboratory into the air today, the first time since it was damaged in Honolulu while she was attempting a world flight two months ago.

She hastened down, lifted her 11-month-old great-grandson, Allen Gross, and carried him to safety.

Screen Writers Start Another Sit-Down Strike

By the United Press.

Hollywood, May 20.—Relieved of the threat of an actors' strike, motion picture producers may shortly face renewal of demands for a closed shop and recognition by a revived organization of scenario writers.

The old writers' unit—Screen Writers' Guild of California—foundered in the face of producer opposition almost a year ago. Since producers recognized the Screen Actors' Guild and signed a 10-year guild shop contract, however, the left wing of the writers' group has been quietly reforming at secret meetings in the homes of members.

The old guild split on the question of merging with the Authors League of America, a move sponsored by Ernest Pascal and others, and strongly opposed by producers.

Alliance with the authors' league was admittedly designed to unite all possible sources of story material and force recognition of the Screen Writers' Guild by producers.

Grover Jones President.

After several stormy sessions, conservatives of the guild resigned and formed their own organization under the name "screen playwrights of Hollywood." Grover Jones was elected president of this unit, which now claims 110 members, including such writers as Gene Fowler, William Slavens McNutt, Rupert Hughes, Bess Meredith and William Counselman.

About six months ago the Screen Writers Guild of California disbanded, and a nucleus of writers joined a new organization, the Screen Writers Guild of the Author's League, an integral part of the New York organization.

It is this group that is reportedly planning to seek recognition. Pascal is president, and while no numerical account of membership has been announced, it reportedly exceeds 200.

Gilbert Roland, born Luis Antonio Damaso de Alonso, retired abruptly as a bull fighter after one combat on a Cathedral City (California) dude ranch, because "American bulls have no manners."

The veteran leading man is a son of Francisco Alonso, famous Spanish matador, and himself an amateur at the sport. While resting at the ranch, Karen Morley and Helen Mack, actresses, persuaded him to show him how it is done.

A small range bull was loosed in a wooden corral and Roland entered with a makeshift cape. At the first pass the bull missed Roland and his curtain but not the fence. It crashed a splintering hole in the boards and might have injured the actresses had not a tobacco-chewing cowboy been ready with his rope.

Slayer SuspectAsks Chair, Girl to Fight

Lonoke, Ark., May 20 (AP).—Charged with first-degree murder for the hitch-hike killing of a wealthy Little Rock landowner, Lester Brocklehurst, 23, and Bernice Felton, 18, required sedatives today.

Officials moved to bring them to trial late next week for the shooting May 5 of Victor A. Gates.

Brocklehurst begged for the electric chair as he sat in a cell atop the Lonoke County Courthouse—the end of a vagabond journey across country that resulted in murder accusations against him in Texas, Arkansas and Illinois.

"I don't want any lawyer up there begging for mercy for me when I showed no mercy to those I killed," Sheriff Troy Carroll quoted Brockelhurst as saying. Bernice, however, planned to fight the first-degree murder charge with attorneys appointed by the court.

Skits Show Work Of Social Agencies

Presentation of six dramatic skits showing work behind the scenes in a family service organization and a discussion of social work by a panel headed by Assistant Secretary of Commerce Ernest G. Draper featured the first night get-together meeting of the Federal Community Chest Forum, held at the Jewish Community Center last night. Dancing and refreshments followed the panel discussion.

Following the skits a round table discussion of subjects presented was conducted by a panel assisted by local social workers. The panel, in addition to Chairman Draper, consisted of J. Austin Latimer, Special Assistant to the Postmaster General; Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau; Lucille Foster McMillin, Civil Service Commissioner; William I. Myers, governor of the Farm Credit Administration; Stanley F. Reed, Solicitor General of the United States; Jewell W. Swofford, chairman, U. S. Employes Compensation Board; Wayne Chatfield Taylor, Fiscal Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the WPA.

The case work consultants, all members of local social work organizations were Helen P. Story, Florence A. Murray, Philip Akre, Helen Shuford, Edith F. Roseman and Clarke Corliss.

Are Movie Stars Happy?

Some are exceptions to the general rule and are classed as "chronic grouches" by their happier associates.

On the other hand, a great majority find happiness in their work and are known to their associates as "good fellows."

A special article in The Sunday Post amusement section, page 3, tells about both types of stars—those who spend their time finding fault and the others who enjoy the thrills of their work and the fun of their play.

A Fatal Duel Is Fought in Dungeon Crypt

The Post's New Yorker

New York, May 20.

MYSTERY: For many months there has been great speculation regarding the identity of the mysterious financier who is backing the production of "Richard II." . . . The most recent report was that Dick Merrill's backer, Ben Smith, financed this show . . . The real backer, however, who is coining a fortune from this production, is the author of the book published last year entitled "The Curtain Falls." In that book he related his theatrical misfortunes and explained why he was leaving the producing field forever . . . His name is Joseph Verner Reed.

SUCCESS: George White was reminiscing of the days when he was a headlined dancer. "Tell me," a friend asked, "when you earned a living as a hoofer, did you have your hands in your pockets—like Pat Rooney?" . . . "Oh, no," White—who has no illusions about his dancing talents—replied, "When I made a living as a hoofer I had my hands in other people's pockets!"

CHANCE: Lee Brody and a companion were anxious to see a show recently—any show, for they had no funds. They went from boxoffice to boxoffice, using every known ruse to secure entry into a theater—without ayail . . . At 8:40 the disappointed duo stopped in front of the Fulton Theater. "Well, I'll try again," she sighed . . . she approached the boxoffice man and asked: "Have you got two tickets for me?" . . . "What the name, please?" he returned . . . Miss Brody hesitated and gave a fictitious name —"Mayer" . . . The boxoffice man searched the rack and tossed an envelope toward her. The envelope was marked "Mayer."

GIRTH: The 260-pound Mack Gordon appeared on the Zanuck lot last week sporting a new sweater which made his paunch more prominent . . . "What shall I do with him?" his song-writing partner, Harry Revel, asked . . . "There's only one thing to do," Art Arthur suggested. "Throw him over your shoulder and blow him as a bag-pipe!"

• • • •

TRAVAIL: Tillie Losch was discussing unusual names with Russel Crouse. "You know," she stated, "my middle name is very common" . . . "Really?" Crouse asked. "What is it?" . . . "Essel," the Austrian dancer informed . . . "Essel?" Crouse replied. "But Essel is a very uncommon name. How do you spell it?" . . . Miss Losch spelled it "E-T-H-E-L!"

TRIUMPH: Pauline Swanson, the Hollywood press agent, came East a few weeks ago to arrange for some publicity in behalf of her clients—Burns & Allen, Nelson Eddy, Al Jolson and others . . . Last week Miss Swanson flew back to Hollywood after seeing that her clients had secured the proper publicity here. No sooner did she arrive in Hollywood, the publicist's own photo appeared on all the West Coast front pages . . . It was her identification which led to the capture of J. Turner Watson, the Denver mad student who stole $220,000 from his aunt. Watson had occupied the seat next to her on the plane trip East.

Pulitzer Prize Title Confuses Theatergoers

'You Can't Take It With You' Was Final Selection of Kaufman and Hart.

Regardless of the fact that "You Can't Take It With You," the Pulitzer prize play, now in its sixth month at the Booth Theater in New York, is sold out for weeks in advance and that the boxoffice is daily besieged by clamorous throngs of eager and expectant theatergoers, a very large percentage of those desiring to buy tickets are still a little bemused as to its exact title. Somehow or other about every fourth person who mentions the name gets it wrong.

"You Can't Get Away With It" seems to be the wrong title most popular among those making a mistake. The runnerup is "Come and Take It," though "It Can't Happen Here" has a number of ardent devotees. Here are some other wrong titles listed by one of the boxoffice attendants as having been mentioned by prospective patrons: "You Can't Take It With Me," "You Can't Happen With Me," "Take It or Leave It," "You Can't Take It Away" and "Take It Away With You."

Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman, the authors of this slightly lunatic whimsey which, by the way, is to be seen in this city next season, were at a loss themselves for a proper title when the play was finished. Mr. Kaufman came East with a completed manuscript which bore the banal inscription, "They Loved Eacn Other."

"It won't do, of course," he explained at the time, "but we had to call it something. We had a dandy title a few weeks ago, but Mrs. Kaufman, when she heard about it over the long-distance phone, threatened to call in a psychiatrist if we persisted in using it so we let that one drop. You see we wanted to call it 'Grandpa's Other Snake.' Of course it didn't mean anything, but who cares?"

"You Can Take It With You" was finally selected after a serious consideration of these alternative titles: "Moon Over Grandpa," "The Sycamore Tree," "What Of It?" "Not Worth the Candle."

Edward Eyre, 86, Dies; Headed Shipping Firm

New York, May 20 (AP).—Edward Eyre, former president of W. R. Grace & Co., shippers and traders, died today in London at the age of 86, the company announced tonight.

He was born in Ireland and joined the company at the age of 16 in 1867, when his uncles, W. R. and M. P. Grace were starting the organization. After heading the firm's offices in Peru, Eyre came to New York in 1897 and became president, retiring in 1907.

Md. Man Who Took Shoes for Widow Must Pay $2,000

A jury at La Plata, Md., yesterday returned a judgment of $2,000 against Jacob Ely, of Indianhead, Md., who was alleged to have taken 3,000 pairs of shoes from his deceased father-in-law's store in Richmond and sold them, according to the testimony, "for the widow's benefit."

Plaintiff in the case was Herbert Mercer, sheriff of the City of Richmond, who was named as administrator of the estate on petition of creditors.

Ely claimed that he had paid some of his father-in-law's debts and had given his widow a home. He said he sold the shoes to help support her.

Attorneys for the plaintiff were De Sales Mudd and James Mitchell, of La Plata, and Charles W. Crowder, of Richmond. They had sought a judgment of $3,000.

America Dodges Money Parleys

By the Associated Press.

The Administration steered its monetary course clear of big international conferences yesterday.

Officials revealed Secretary Morgenthau prefers to negotiate currency agreements with individual nations.

Like the late Will Rogers, they said, he feels this country "loses its shirt" every time it sends representatives to sit around a conference table.

Morgenthau was said to believe, instead, that the United States may help solve such monetary problems as currency stabilization and elimination of exchange restrictions if negotiations are confined to one nation at a time.

Recently, the Pan American Union proposed a monetary conference between the United States and South American nations to stabilize money in this hemisphere and wipe out exchange controls which act as trade barriers.

TerraceGarden At Shoreham Opens May 31

Working Boys Now Putting on Finishing Touches at Night Spot.

By Chanticleer

It looks now as though we all can renew our acquaintance with the Shoreham's famous backyard come May 31. Remember that handsome backyard where the people met and danced and dined last summer, with the roses wandering over the trellises?

For several weeks gardeners have been trimming away making the slopes graceful and the flowers fragrant. Workers have been polishing the dance floor and setting out the gay green and orange chairs and tables. And stringing little blue bulbs on wires through the leaves of the umbrella trees.

And—well, the Shoreham Terrace is just about ready to open. Backstage the chefs have their books open while they stir up things for the customers on the inside—but those books are records of what the folk liked best on cool summer evenings last year. And a nightly attendance of more than 1,200 can't be wrong.

For the nonce, Henri Therrien, the tenor, is painting songs that hold the late spring audiences in the ballroom enthralled. Barnee and his orchestra for your dancing.

• • • •

The favorite tune of the clients of the Pall Mall room is "Star Dust," which seems to have been written to order by Hoagy Carmichael for Ray Benson and his orchestra. It lends itself to the Benson subtle soft styling. Nadine and Girardo are good, of course, but that Benson music is what compliments the scene.

There's a new singing pianist down at Brinkley's, known in these parts as Fred Williams. Fred takes the place, not only of Johnny Rice, the maestro, in vocalizing—but also for the singing boss, Jimmy Crandall.

• • • •

It's the Ida Thorne Girls at the Lotus this week, charming and comely ladies of the ensemble—on view three times daily. As specialty entertainers we have Walter Long and the Less Sisters. They are adagio and acrobatic dancers introducing several new routines. Felicia and Del Re present their version of an ultra modern dance and a slave market adagio.

'Looks as though the new Cork and Bottle, the sophisticated cocktail lounge in the Commodore Hotel, will have to expand. It was built to accommodate 50 persons but the walls fairly bulge these evenings. Manager Melrose is "dee-lighted!"

• • • •

Someone suggested that Venetian blinds be used to partition off a part of the Cocoanut Grove for the summer—but it was only a suggestion. Then something was said in this space earlier in the week to that effect—and now it's really going to be done. Eddie Daniels, the new emmcee, probably plays a sweet piano. Up to the nonce he has merely given impressions of other artists.

Jack Campbell, the Mayfair singing pianist, is hanging up a record at this downtown spot practically as the hours pass. Jack is on his ninety-ninth week—more recently aided and abetted by his singing partner, Leo Lisee.

La Paree this week offers a brand new international dance team, Rolando and Verdita. They've been just about every place, from South America to Montreal and American points between. The Freeman Twins are back at the Fourteenth street gathering point, too, with Randall and Banks on hand for comedy . . . Shad is the order of things at the Madrillon these days. Host Borras insists the success of his house's shad is due to their own ingenious method of preparing it . . . Maybe I'm being taken for a ride, but I am told that Dick Richards, the big boss at Boulevard Farms, pictured elsewhere on this page, is an honest-to-goodness Arabian. Just like you read about in books.

Boulevard Farms Host

Veterans Announce Flag Service Plans

The program for the tenth annual massing of the colors service at the Washington Cathedral Sunday was completed yesterday, according to an announcement made by the officials of the Military Order of the World War and the National Cathedral. One hundred and ninety-eight individual veteran and patriotic organizations have announced that their flags will be in the procession.

The ceremony will be held in the open-air bowl on the Cathedral grounds at 4 p. m. It will be preceded by a band concert by the United States Marine Band, with Capt. Taylor Branson conducting.

Col. Scott W. Lucas, member of the House of Representatives from Illinois, will deliver the lay address. The sermon proper will be preached by the new dean of the Cathedral, the Very Rev. Noble C. Powell.

With each veteran and patriotic organization having at least two "colors" in the procession, it is estimated that over 500 flags will parade down the center aisle. Automobiles of the various organizations, carrying their flags, will enter the Wisconsin avenue gate, which is located near the entrance to St. Alban's Church.

LaGuardia Sympathetic To Coast Hotel Strike

San Francisco, May 20 (AP).—Fiorello H. LaGuardia, pro-labor Mayor of New York City, refused to pass through picket lines of San Francisco's hotel strike today and instead obtained accommodations in a smart apartment building.

"I am entirely in sympathy with the hotel strikers and hope there is a speedy settlement," said LaGuardia. Arriving yesterday for a visit he found his favorite downtown hotel surrounded by pickets who hav been on strike three weeks in the city's 16 largest hostelries, demanding recognition, increased wages and improved working conditions.

U. S. Liquor Industry May Hire McGrady

New York, May 20 (AP).—The Herald Tribune says Edward F. McGrady, ace trouble shooter for the Federal Labor Department, may be elected president of the Distilled Spirits Institute, Inc., the liquor industry's self-regulatory organization, when its board meets here Tuesday.

The paper said it got its information from "Sources close to the board," although members denied that the Assistant Secretary of Labor or any other person had been decided upon definitely.

The post has been vacant since the death of W. Forbes Morgan, April 20.

C.I.O., Industry Unite in Fight On Child Labor

Court Issue Flares Up in Senate Hearing on Reform.

By the Associated Press.

John L. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization and the National Association of Manufacturers joined yesterday in an appeal that Congress abolish child labor.

Injection of the Supreme Court issue spoiled the prospect for a peaceful hearing on child labor legislation before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Chairman Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, of the committee, a leader in the fight against the Roosevelt court bill, accused labor's Nonpartisan League of "trying to get six new justices for the Supreme Court so you can get whatever kind of legislation you want."

He addressed his remark to L. E. Oliver, vice president of the league, who had appeared to urge child labor legislation. Oliver quickly denied Wheeler's contention.

Labor's Nonpartisan League was organized by labor unions last year for "political action," and campaigned for President Roosevelt's re-election.

Oliver's prepared statement to the Senate committee was indorsed in a brief filed by John Brophy, a director of Lewis' C. I. O.

The Nonpartisan League spokesman said he was opposed to a child-labor bill by Senator Wheeler, but favored one by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky.

William B. Warner, president of the Manufacturer's Association, indorsed the Wheeler bill, which would require labeling of child-labor goods and forbid shipment into States which prohibit child labor.

J. C. Durham, 17, also a Little Rock high school student, was taken from the wrec age in a critical condition. Moody had left Little Rock shortly before noon to fly to Newark, where he had been supervising a waterworks contract.

Hungary to Renounce Trianon Treaty Terms

Budapest, May 20 (AP).—Circles close to the government tonight intimated Hungary may soon announce the scrapping of the post-war Treaty of Trianon ban on tanks, military airplanes and certain heavy artillery.

The intimation was given after Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and Kolomon Darnyi, Hungarian premier, conferred for two and one-half hours.

On the Air Today

Carmen Lombardo, who comes to the Earle today with his famous brothers and their band, was recently asked to give a successful formula for writing popular songs. And Carmen should know something about writing popular ditties because he's been turning out smash hits since the days of "Snuggled On Your Shoulder" and "Sweethearts on Parade." His last, as everyone knows, is "Boo-Hoo."

Anyway, the singing Lombardo says there is nothing more difficult than setting up a pattern for writing popular songs. The public's taste goes in cycles. What is good today may be bad tomorrow. And particularly is this true these days when swing music predominates and with swing a more or less uncertain element.

Carmen acknowledges that most of his tunes have followed the melody and tempo characteristic of his own orchestra. Occasionally, he admits, he has considerable difficulty in convincing Brother Guy that a tune he has written is worthy of a place in their music library. In that case he is in the same predicament as any other song writer.

Once Carmen fooled Guy. He wrote "Blue Nile" and Guy didn't like it. So Carmen assumed a nom de plume, had another orchestra leader introduce the tune and Guy heard it on a broadcast and liked it. He even wanted to meet the composer—one Joe London. (Carmen used the name London because that is the name of their birthplace, London, Ontario.)

Music, according to Carmen, should receive prime consideration in getting the song started. That is, melody and tempo. He considers the music 90 per cent of the success of any song. Words should not be too involved. They should be easy to say—words that roll off the tongue and are understood by everyone.

As to structure, there are the verse and chorus. Most tunes, of course, are known by the chorus. Therefore the song writer's efforts should be concentrated on that part of the song. The average song has a 32-bar chorus. And to vary it isn't practical. Carmen does point to "Night and Day" as an exception, a tune of 48 bars in the chorus and one that will be played for years to come.

Here and there: A new market news service has been added to the National Farm and Home Hour, veteran noon-time program from WMAL. Everything from the price of wool to cotton futures . . . Jimmy Fidler is branching out on the airways. In the future he will be heard Fridays as well as Tuesdays via WRC, at 9:30 p. m. . . . Johnny Green has drawn the assignment to fill the Fred Astaire period throughout the summer. He is the present musical director, you know.

Bob Feller, the 18-year-old Cleveland pitcher; Dic Merrill, trans-Atlantic flier, and Paul Whiteman will appear in a half hour program tonight at WJSV, at 10, the occasion being a salute to the School Safety Patrols now meeting here. Whiteman is now appearing at the Capitol Theater and dashes to the broadcast to direct the Metropolitan Boys' Club 63-piece band. J. H. H.

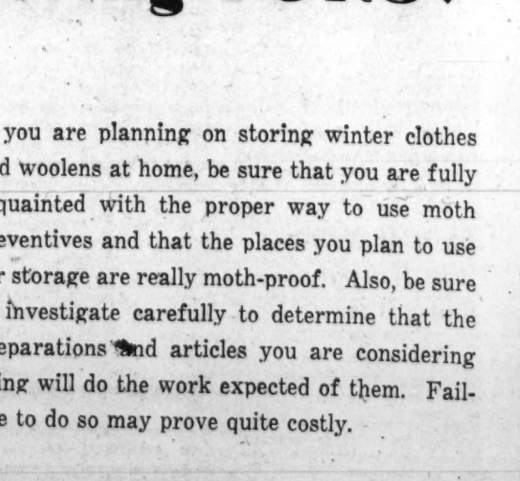
Is Your Home Safe for Storing FURS?



If you are planning on storing winter clothes and woolens at home, be sure that you are fully acquainted with the proper way to use moth preventives and that the places you plan to use for storage are really moth-proof. Also, be sure to investigate carefully to determine that the preparations and articles you are considering using will do the work expected of them. Failure to do so may prove quite costly.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

'Average, Not Unhandsome Man,' Engaged to Be Married, Asks How to Keep Girls From Pursuing Him.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: What can an average, not unhandsome man do to keep the Washington girls from chasing him? I am engaged to one girl. I love her very deeply. But other girls are always calling me up and even coming to see me. My fiancee is getting very jealous. I should think the supernumeraries would have enough sense of the fitness of things not to pursue men who are definitely not interested. Very truly yours, R. R. G.

• • • •

DEAR R. R. G.: Frankly, I believe you are hoodwinking yourself and your fiancee through failing to realize that you actually do get a certain amount of satisfaction out of being pursued by "the supernumeraries." Believe it or not, the average specimen of either sex is never persecuted long or unduly by the definitely unwelcome attentions of the opposite sex. It would be a very simple matter to throw your pursuers off the track if you really wanted to.

• • • •

If you were absolutely outspoken about being deeply in love and engaged to be married; if you made it clearly understood that your leisure time is absolutely at your fiancee's disposal; that no other woman does, or could, interest you in the least; that you feel a bored contempt for those who thrust themselves on your notice; and if you dismissed their invitations with a detached, perfunctory and pointedly indifferent courtesy, and excused yourself within a few minutes after their arrival, when they call, on the plea that you have some errand to do for your fiancee, or an imminent appointment with her (any pretext for letting them know unmistakably that your social life at this time centers around her), I am sure you would find the ranks of your pursuers melting like snow at 90 degrees.

• • • •

As it is, I daresay you take no definite stand. On the plea of "What can I do?" you are feeding clotted cream to your ego and leaving it up to your fiancee to defend her holdings as best she can. What you call her jealousy is more probably justifiable annoyance at your wishy-washy attitude. M. H.

• • • •

Are Personal Replies Given?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have been married seven months to a man with whom I am very much in love. I have been bitterly disappointed in him and he has failed to keep every promise he made to me, the major one being his failure to live up to his agreement about finances. The whole affair seems so involved (at least to me) that I would like to take it up with you confidentially. If I were to do so, would you send me a personal reply? Or would this be asking too much? Also, would the Life Adjustment Center, which I have seen mentioned in your column, be able to help me? I feel that we are on the brink of disaster and that I may, with intelligent, understanding advice, be able to save our marriage. MRS. Y.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. Y.: Of recent months, more than half the mail directed to this column has been submitted with the qualification that it is not to be published; that it is to be answered personally. While I appreciate the natural reserve which prompts such requests, I regret to say that I am nevertheless obliged, as a newspaper columnist whose first duty is to write for publication, to disregard them almost entirely.

• • • •

Counsel of the kind I have been delegated, and am most frequently called upon to give cannot be dashed off with the same nonchal lance with which a stenographer takes notes, or with which a typist transcribes the same. Problems have to be studied thoughtfully from many angles; analyses and opinions must be most carefully considered before being set down. This takes time. And in order to help the greatest number of persons in this necessarily limited opportunity for service, it has become my practice to publish (from among those letters I am authorized by their writers to publish) problems which seem most universal in their significance and applicability. In other words, problems which touch nearly every life in some form or other, at one time or another.

• • • •

Although my heart has been touched, time and again, by various correspondents' urgent appeals to advise them by return mail, in an enclosed, self addressed, stamped envelope, I am forced by the impersonally determined limitations of my task to answer them indirectly, if at all, by considering some other problem of a similar nature submitted as an open letter for publication.

• • • •

And now, with regard to the Life Adjustment Center: so far as I know, there is no agency in Washington better qualified to help you with your problem. Your unhappy story can be told in full detail to persons there whose whole training has been directed to the end of helping individuals solve social and emotional problems. The address is 1464 Columbia road northwest; the telephone, ADams 1033. M. H.

• • • •

Young Beau's Problem.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a fellow 21 year old, very much in love with a beautiful girl. I have been going with her off and on for two years, but have been seeing her almost every night for the past five months. She will have a birthday next month and we have decided to celebrate by going to New York City for the week-end. Of course we will have someone along to chaperone us. But the question is: Do I pay for her room? I want to do the proper thing, if you will tell me what that is. Very truly yours, J. W. B.

• • • •

DEAR J. W. B.: You positively do not pay for the young lady's hotel room, nor do you register at the same hotel, if you wish to do "the proper thing." However, if you are throwing this party, you would naturally be expected to pay transportation expenses for the young lady and her chaperone, both coming and going, unless there is a good-humored, informal understanding and arrangement to the contrary. Are you sufficiently well-heeled to pay three persons' way to New York and back, in addition to buying lunches, dinners, theater tickets, etc., or whatever entertainment you plan for the girl? M. H.

Tomorrow's Problem

Engaged to be married to an older man, whose jealous rages are wearing her nerves 'to a frazzle,' 21-year-old girl asks advice. He is suspicious of her business associates, and recently, in the presence of some dozen guests" at a dinner party, accused her and her employer of keeping company." Her problem will be considered here tomorrow. This column appears Sunday as well as daily.

Bags Designed to Dramatize Your Costume

Straw fashions both cartwheel hat and "bonnet" bag below, stressing the trend of matching your handbag and chapeau. In natural colored, toast or white straw, both bag and hat are trimmed with grosgrain ribbon in contrasting color. At right is the gay "fiesta" bag, made of white (or tinted) fine leather, and bordered with varicolored flowers of self-material. Both handbags designed by David Lewis.

Distinctive Bag for Women Called Key to Her Costume

Distinguished American Designer Gives Tips on Stylish Accessories for All Types; Color Is Stressed.

By Ethel Ehlen.

The Post Fashion Editor.

NEW YORK, May 19.—"Individuality in accessories is the secret of a well-dressed woman," says David Lewis, noted young American designer of handbags. Above all, maintains this authority, who has been designing distinctive bags for 15 years, your handbag must be smart and interesting, because it is constantly in action, as you are searching for cigarettes, lipstick, money, and the like.

Contrary to general opinion, Mr. Lewis contends that a short woman should carry a large handbag—that is, large as to width rather than length. "A small person carrying a large, bulky bag has an air of swank and chic," he commented. And for the tall woman we asked? "Her handbag may be either large or small, but it must be impressive—it must help to dramatize her entire costume," he replied.

Color Most Important.

"Color," stated Mr. Lewis with great emphasis, "plays a paramount role in the drama of handbag selection, as it does in the choice of all accessories. Color is the most essential thing in the entire grooming of a smartly garbed woman. The correlation of color in costume and accents helps to hold the ensembles together. It is to clothes what distinctive color treatments are to famous paintings." One could shop in the smartest store in the world, Mr. Lewis claims, and spend hundreds of dollars on a new dress or suit and accessories, and if in the end there was no correlation, no continuity of thought as to color and line, you would look like a Christmas tree.

"As your handbag, so your costume," is this designer's pet theory. The bag, however, he believes, should match some other accessory—or, at least, should harmonize with one or several accents. He has promoted the popular idea this summer of matching handbags to hats; straw hats and bags of the same material trimmed in the same manner as the chapeaux. Also bags of fine leather trimmed with flowers of self-material, and the hat echoing the same clever trimming. "Handbags and hats are the two most important accessories," Mr. Lewis commented, "because they are noticed first by an observer; and, incidentally, can make or break any costume, regardless of its chic."

From Utility to Artistry.

"During my 15 years in designing," Mr. Lewis remarked, reminiscing, "there have been many changes, and the handbag has developed from a merely utilitarian thing to something of utmost importance in developing a costume. There is nothing new under the sun in regard to designing, however; merely the application of things already known to man and presented in a modernized, original manner. One of the most outstanding changes in bags through the years has been in material—for instance, from leather we have gone to flexwood, cork, straw, paralin, cotton, linen, silk and woolen fabrics."

When asked where he got his ideas for handbag designs Mr. Lewis answered, "From everywhere—at the Derby, a collection of beautiful coins, old paintings, children's toys, the movies, interesting architecture and interior decorating." Looking through some old Egyptian pictures, he said, gave him an inspiration for a very modern handbag; the figures were carrying bags, and he modernized the ancient designing. The creation, he averred, was most successful. "Sometimes I work for weeks on a new collection," Mr. Lewis volunteered, "and sometimes I plan an entire season's collection in one night; usually ideas for finished designs pop into my head around midnight."

Frames vs. Materials.

Mr. Lewis said he was trained to be an engineer and his primary interest in life had been mechanics, with inclinations toward geometrics. Working with squares, triangles, octagons and the rest led him to wonder why handbags were so uninteresting, unattractive and uniform. He started experimenting, and hence began his designing career, because of his education and interest, with emphasis at first on unusual handbag frames and fastenings. For many years now he has been concentrating on materials and unique trimming, as well as distinctive designs, being one of the foremost bag designers to stress the importance of the bag to other accessories as well as the costume.

"American women," concluded Mr. Lewis, "could use better judgment in their choice of accessories. Many of them use great discrimination and good taste in the choice of a suit or frock and then spoil the smart effect by adding accents which are all wrong. The entire picture should be harmonious and in the same trend of thought, or the costume will be a total loss as to smartness."

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

Accident Treatment.

YESTERDAY WE supposed that you were out camping, and during a walk in the woods you came across a member of your party prostrate on the ground, mentally so incoherent that he could not tell you what had happened to him. We agreed that the first thing to do would be to get an idea of his general condition by signs which you can remember by checking them off on your fingers and thumb—consciousness, color, breathing, pulse and temperature.

Next you would look locally for something to account for the condition—injury to the head—he may have fallen down and hit his head on a stone, producing concussion, broken arm or leg; a cut with hemorrhage concealed by the sleeve or leg of the trousers; evidence of sunstroke; if he found such an unfortunate in a city street, the emergency doctor would smell his breath for alcohol, but on a respectable camping party in the woods, we will assume that is unnecessary.

A Stunning Jar.

A concussion is a stunning jar to the brain. Think of what would happen if you had a coconut filled with fluid, in which floated a soft mass which nearly filled the inside of the coconut. That is the anatomical condition of the brain and skull. If you dropped the coconut to the ground the jar would cause the fluid to accumulate on the under side and force the floating mass up against the hard walls of the shell, on the opposite side to that on which the coconut hit the ground. This is exactly what happens in concussion, and it may tear the brain or simply knock all functions out of it for a while.

The treatment of simple concussion is the same as the treatment of fainting. Put the patient in a comfortable position with the head low; loosen tight parts of the clothing, such as neckband and belt; sprinkle some cool water in the face (by flipping water from the ends of your dripping fingers rather than throwing it from a basin); keep the patient covered up and warm in order to prevent as much shock as possible, and keep him quiet. It is best not to try to move him, no matter what the injury, unless he recovers consciousness and wants to be helped. Even then it is probably better to go and get assistance.

Tourniquet Needed.

If your examination reveals a hemorrhage, every Boy Scout knows what to do. If the blood is coming out in spurts, tie a tourniquet (a tight band of constriction) between the site of the hemorrhage and the heart. If the blood is from a vein—if it is welling out, simply make pressure over the site of the hemorrhage. Pressure is a good thing to do under any circumstance. Arteries are seldom cut except by sharp tools—hatchet, knife, ax.

If you have to carry a comrade to camp by yourself you can use either the transfer lift or the fireman's lift. For the transfer, put one arm under the knees, the other under the neck and farther arm. Then clasp your two hands together. It is like holding a baby—a big limp baby, but the principle is the same. You cannot carry anyone far this way.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Fish Adds Zest To Salads for Spring Meals

By Rebekah Blake.

WARM DAYS mean potato salad season is here again, and no doubt many of you are already looking for different touches to give to this standby salad of the summer season.

To begin with there must be cold boiled potatoes, and many times it is much more convenient to use the canned white potatoes than to think ahead to have some boiled and chilled. By keeping a can or two in the refrigerator the foundation of the salad is always at hand.

No matter what additional touch is given the salad, something crisp should be added. This can be supplied by cucumbers, celery, radishes, green pepper or shredded lettuce. Potato salad for the real epicure must have some suspicion of onion, and the amount to add will depend entirely upon the family taste, but let us hope you do not have to make it without!

Now for the different touch to give the salad. Fish blends especially well with the other ingredients and makes a much heartier salad. Salmon, tuna fish, sardines or shrimp are the fish most generally used, and since they are available in every grocery store in the canned form they are easy for any one to obtain. They do not require any special preparation before being added to the salad.

Among the meats that are good to add to the foundation potato mixture are sliced canned tongue, corned beef, Vienna sausages, deviled ham and frankfurters. Like the fish these are easy to obtain in the canned form, and only need to be cut into pieces to add to the salad. Keep a variety in the refrigerator to be chilled ready for short notice.

Vegetable, too, add variety to the salad, and when canned ones like green beans, peas, beets or carrots are used, they add a dash of color as well as flavor. When using beets add them the very last thing to prevent the color from spreading. The dressing may be boiled, mayonnaise, or any favorite you may have on hand.

Tailors of Nation Urge Husbands to Bring Wives Along

By the Associated Press.

New York.—The tailors of the Nation like to see the ladies in their shops.

Take the little woman along when you go in to be measured for your new summer wardrobe, says the Merchant Tailors' Designers Association, and the suitmaker is likely to go without his lunch just to give you that extra-special attention.

This national organization of men's stylists was bold enough to hire recently an attractive lady press agent to get the men to do something about that extra pair of pants. She was in today to talk about the woman's place in the men's shop.

"We took a tip from Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt after the President had been voted No. 1 Beau Brummel of the Nation," said Eleanor Lambert, the P. A. "She confessed she had to 'drag the President to his tailor's every season.' Well, I've got some quotes for you."

PLEASANT HOMES

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

ROD had been collecting weapons in a mild way for years—an old Indian fighter's rifle, a Chinese head knife, a Samurai sword, a pirate's cutlass and a lot of others that look equally villainous to us.

But imagine his wife Emily's astonishment as she finished redecorating the living room in beige and celadon green for Rod to appear with an armload of armory all set to go over the mantelpiece!

"Over my lovely Adam mantel—oh, Rod!" wailed Emily.

"But honey, I've been collecting it for our fireplace when we did the place over, I thought you knew that."

Emily didn't have the heart to disappoint him, but Rod can take a hint. So he took another look at that very smartly beige room and trundled his treasures back to the attic.

But so can Emily take a hint. When Rod was such a grand sport about her Adam mantel, she felt nothing short of a traitor not to make a worthy place for those weapons. And she did. It would have been easier to make a den in the attic but it woudn't have been fair to stick Rod's weapons away off there where hardly anyone would see and admire them.

Emily tackled the dining room redecorations next and planned that room in a masculine style to set off Rod's armor. The walls were deep beige to match those of the living room and hall between. But the new furniture here was massive oak with Oriental rug and draperies of crewel embroidered linen. Chair seat and backs in dull green velvet and table glass in smoky green further tied the color scheme to that in the living room, although the actual mood of the room was quite different. Deruta linen mats and Italian pottery plates were congenial accessories. The weapons made the design for the main wall of the room, while another important wall space had a reproduction of "The Laughing Cavalier" because it was a favorite picture of Rod's.

. . . If wall colors are your problem, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the writers bulletin "Recipes For New Wall Colors." It includes directions for mixing.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, May 20.

WOMEN have bitten off some strange jobs in the past few years, but I don't think I know one any more weird than that achieved by our Anna Martin, an amiable and alert young lady who actually eats for a living!

ALICE HUGHES.

Anna toils for a restaurant organization, and it is her chore to check up on food, prices, courtesy and swiftness of service in the countless beaneries of the metropolis. She tells me she has already munched in no less than 800 of them, and expects to hit a thousand before her next birthday. She starts out at 8 in the morning and has been known to tackle six breakfasts—a snack here, a bit there. But she can't fudge. She must really eat what she orders, or she is not doing her stuff.

She then relaxes until about 2, when she again goes forth to battle the demon calories, attacking various portions of lunch at five other eating houses. This concludes her day's efforts, save for making notes on the tour. On such a day she skips dinner—and who wonders? The next day will be dinner day, so she blithely misses her six breakfasts, merely going for luncheon and the evening meal.

All this is appalling enough, especially to one who merely copes with fruit juice at 8. But the interesting thing is that Anna says she weighs precisely what she did when she started browsing her way across Gotham—namely, 125. This she attributes to the hiking she does between restaurants, and to a careful choice of vittles. A droll business. But at any rate, Anna Martin knows where her next ten meals are coming from—right nice in these times!

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Fifth avenue is a pretty blase old highway, used to anything from a close-up of Jean Harlow to a circus elephant strolling on its hind legs, but it did look over its shoulder the other day at an extraordinarily lovely Indian girl hiking along in buckskins, beads and moccasins. Galloping up in my best repertorial style, I found she was Princess Bethaneth Pease, one of the old Crows, who was bent on buying a fine set of paleface store clothes, which she did. I also learned, from an earnest young white brother with her, that she has been hired as a hostess by an airline in the Northwest. Which made her parade in native costume perfectly clear!

The sins of this great modern Gomorrah are not slowing us up, I'm pleased to learn. As a matter of fact, the birth rate of Gotham is now rising. In a recent week New York acquired 2,073 offspring, compared with 1,600 during the corresponding week in 1936. At the same time, infant mortality hit a new low, thus causing our genial health commissioner, Dr. John L. Rice, to caper happily about his office in the City Hall . . .

Zona Gale, the Wisconsin author who has been writing first-class pieces for 20 years, is on her way to Japan, after having seen two of her tomes roll off the presses in one year. I'll always remember Zona's play, "Miss Lulu Bett," as one of the swellest shows I ever saw.

Whenever I get the stone fever and traffic jumps these days, I shake myself down to Tudor City, our town-within-a-town at Forty-second street and the East River. There, at the moment, no less than 50,000 tulips are blooming in all their glory. Painters are painting them furiously for posterity. I gaze lovingly at these cheerful blooms, have a short, quiet cry, and rush frantically back to the marts of trade. Fifty thousand tulips in mid-Manhattan! You have no idea what a comfort such a spectacle can be.

Child Patients Need Interest In Handicraft

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK.—"Mamma, why can't I get up now?"

"Mamma, I want to play with my fire engine."

"Mamma" this and "Mamma" that, until poor mother is frantic. That's the way it often goes when a youngster is convalescing from an illness. He feels well enough to be out of bed but, of course, he isn't.

Well, there's a fairly easy way out of trouble for mother, says Miss Isabel Gibson, who is in charge of recreational rooms for convalescents at Babies Hospital, part of the Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"Of course, the mother of a family is busy with housework," Miss Gibson concedes, "but it would take only about ten minutes to think up an occupation to keep her child interested."

What should a mother think of in those ten minutes Miss Gibson proposes? It's not hard—clay modeling, block building, weaving, any type of handicraft, she has found, will keep the patient absorbed.

"Mornings for convalescents in the hospital are given over to handiwork," she explained.

"From 2:30 to 4:15 in the afternoon we either play competitive games or have a story-telling hour."

A bookcase on wheels makes the rounds of the wards to supply reading for patients unable to come to the recreation rooms.

The nursery school is particularly proud of a few children who have been at the hospital since birth. Pointing to a curly-headed youngster walking with great assurance down the nursery floor, Miss Gibson said: "We have taught that 3-year-old practically all that he knows."

Cuba Envoy Host at Fete Of Freedom

Senor Dr. Fraga Has Initial 'Fling' at Entertaining.

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

"Cuba libre!"

This cry bursting from Cuban throats 35 years ago may have echoed through the Cuban Embassy last evening as the island republic's Ambassador, Senor Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, had his first fling at playing host at one of the biggest diplomatic receptions in Washington this year. The occasion was the celebration of Cuban independence, but to hundreds of Washingtonians who climbed the red-carpeted stairway last evening, it was a chance to meet Cuba's new envoy and to see what kind of entertainment he provides.

Neither the genial bachelor Ambassador nor his party was a disappointment. In fact, judging from the way diplomats, dowagers and debutantes—to say nothing of Senators, Representatives and out-of-towners—came early and stayed late, the reception-dance was tops in entertainment. There was dancing in the spacious ballroom on the second floor for those who wanted to dance. There were three long tables inside and one outside loaded with viands guaranteed to please the palate and ruin the figure. Champagne flowed freely and so did gay talk as guests crowded around the two tables indoors and the two in the garden where there was a wide choice of drinks.

Garden Lighted.

An hour after the reception began at 10 o'clock, guests in the ballroom, glancing through the tall windows that look out over the garden discovered it was lighted with Japanese lanterns, and that the be-ruffled Cuban orchestra had departed from its original position at the side of the expansive stairway indoors and were playing "The Cucuracha" beside a dancing pavilion outside.

The Ambassador greeted his guests, who arrived in a steady stream for almost two hours, at the head of the stairway. Receiving with him was the wife of the Minister Counselor of the Embassy, Senora Baron, who wore a gown of gray chiffon.

It looked as if just about everybody in Washington turned out. The Diplomatic Corps was there en masse, and official and residential life of the Capital was well represented.

The Italian Ambassador and Donna Matilde de Suvich were accompanied by the former's sister, Signorina Guinea de Suvich. Other heads of foreign missions present at the dance—and practically all 54 ambassadors and ministers were represented—were the Ambassador of Peru, Senor Don Manuel de Freyre y Santander; the Hungarian Minister, Mr. John Pelenyi; the Charge d'Affaires of Poland and Mme. Wankowicz, the Danish Minister, Mr. Otto Wadsted, and the Irish Minister, Mr. Michael MacWhite.

Other Guests.

Mr. Robert Woods Bliss was glimpsed chatting with Representative Edith Nourse Rogers, who looked lovely in white satin made with the very briefest train and her usual orchid pinned at the neck line. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, Senator Capper and Senator William King, who came early and left before midnight, were others from official circles at the dance.

Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of the Solicitor General, sat near the great staircase chatting and watching the people ascend. Her black satin gown had narrow shoulder straps and a pink rose at the neck.

Spring prints were much in evidence last evening, and among those who chose them were Mrs. Russell Bennett, her daughter, Miss Florence Harris, and Miss Diana Rowland. Frau Thomsen, wife of the Counselor of the German Embassy, wore one of the floor length chiffon capes so popular now with evening dresses.

The Counselor of the Netherlands Legation, Count van Rechteren Limpurg, was accompanied by the countess, who wore a tulle frock in an off-white shade. They are leaving on Saturday for their summer home in Bluemont.

Mrs. Gerald Linke, in pale blue chiffon, was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Buchanan. The Cabinet was represented by Mrs. Swanson, in pale blue, and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, who had chosen a flowered frock in green and black.

Mrs. Heywood, wife of the Commercial Secretary of the British Embassy, wore a black frock with flesh-colored net at the bodice. Also present from the Embassy was Mr. E. N. R. Trentham, Financial Counselor.

Mrs. Douglas Laing poses with the white elephant, which was a surprise gift to Mrs. John R. Williams, Thrift Shop chairman, and which will be on display at the tea and "white elephant sale" at the shop from 3 to 6 o'clock this afternoon. Proceeds from the sale will go to five organizations—the Children's Country Home, Children's Hospital, Child Welfare, the prenatal clinic of Columbia Hospital and the social service department of the Junior League.

Sant' Orsolas Hosts for 200

THE NAVAL Attache of the Italian Embassy and the Marchioness of Sant'Orsola entertained at a cocktail party yesterday in the Pan-American room of the Mayflower. Directly across the hall, in the Chinese room, a number of Filipinos were giving a party, which led to some confusion. Filipinos kept wandering into the Pan-American room, and some of the Sant'Orsolas guests found themselves at the party across the way.

There must have been at least 200 people at yesterday's affair, including many from Army and Navy ranks in the Capital. To name a few—Frau von Boetticher, wife of the German Military Attache; Commander and Mrs. Wallace Lind, Capt. Jack Beardall, aide to the Secretary of the Navy, and Miss Carolyn Chantry, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Allan J. Chantry. The latter was chosen by Gen. Balbo "the most beautiful girl in America" on the occasion of his visit to Washington several years ago.

Talk of Coronation.

A group anxious to hear first-hand news of the coronation gathered around Dr. Josef Nemecek, Counselor of the Czechoslovakian Legation, who has just returned from a trip abroad. He had an excellent 10 guinea seat for the proceedings, and said they were "fine," in spite of the bad weather.

Another recently returned traveler was Mr. William K. Ryan, with a fine Haitian sunburn. He went there in January to visit Mr. and Mrs. Burke Elbrick, at our legation there, came back and returned to Haiti recently for a short stay.

Other Guests.

Lady Marler was accompanied by Miss Willa Magee, who makes her home at the legation. The latter wore a bright yellow dress with a hat to match. Others glimpsed in the crowd were the Attache of the Swiss Legation and Mme. Schlatter, Mr. Ralph Snowden Hill, Frau Scholz, with her sister, Gabriele von Schnitzler; Mrs. Sol Bloom, Mr. Paulo Hasslocher, of the Brazilian Embassy; Mrs. Fleming Holland, with Mr. Melvin Traylor, of Chicago; Miss Laura Tuckerman and Mrs. John Farr Simmons, with her mother, Mrs. Huston Thompson.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn

NOW at just the time when everyone else is thinking about packing and going to favorite summer haunts, two Cabinet families must hunt new places to live. Mrs. Oscar Underwood has returned from the South and that means that the Harry Woodrings with their three children, Marcus, Melissa and Cooper Coolidge, are house shopping again after a happy year or so spent in historic old Woodlawn.

Now comes word that Kitsy Dunlop (Mrs. William Langhorne Bond) and her child are soon to return from China and be with her family—the George Dunlops—for a time. And that means Hayes Manor, their lovely home on Manor road which has been leased by the Secretary of the Interior, Mr. Harold Ickes, will once again be their address and Mr. Ickes will be among those house hunting. Who said this was a quiet, dull season?

WHAT a glorious party it was that the Wrisley Browns gave Wednesday in their garden! The hostess was gowned in soft red-dish rose with a large black hat. In addition to delicious iced tea and numerous goodies, there were mint juleps and such tall frosted ones they were! The guests included diplomats, cavedwellers, officials and members of the restless younger set.

A very interesting person there was Katherine Carl, artist of renown, who painted the Dowager Empress of China. At first people were convinced that the gay party was all in her honor, and perhaps so, but, we feel that there were two honor guests, there in spirit but not body, because just a year ago to the day the wedding of daughter Kay to Jim Hughes, of the Navy, took place. This young couple, now on duty in China, still has a year and a half to do out there, and the senior Browns are seriously thinking of taking a trip that way within the next few months. What a joyful reunion that will be!

WINSOME Mary Senate Howes, daughter of the First Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. W. W. WELL, well, and so there is to be a marriage in the Willett family! H. T. Hathaway Willett, who has been making his home in Chicago, will exchange those solemn vows with lovely Myrabelle Kirkham on May 26 in St. Luke's Church in Evanston, Ill.

H. T.'s sister, Lillian, whose birthday is that same day, is very much upset because at just that time she will be in the midst of final exams. So will brother Bill, as a matter of fact. But that's the way with these university students . . .

Back to the little bride-to-be. Myrabelle is the daughter of Mr. Robert F. Kirkham and a niece of Mr. George D. Kirkham, of New York.

It seems out of place to start saying anything about H. T., because he and his parents, the E. Jean Willetts, are so well known here. But had you heard about the mix-up about his initials? It seems that when he was at U. C. L. A., and incidentally quite the football star, he was forever in the papers. Finally one young sports reporter became disgusted with always having to use the initials, H. T., and decided that if the young player would not tell him what the letters stood for, he would make up a name himself. And after warning H. T., he carried out his promise. So, the account of a very exciting game came out with one of the players named Horacious Timothy Willett! In reality, "H. T." stands for Harrison Tyler. Eh what?

Announce Birth of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spence of St. Louis announce the birth of a son Wednesday evening at Barnes Hospital there. Mrs. Spence, the former Miss Kathleen Talley, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Talley of Washington. Mrs. Talley will leave in June to visit her daughter in St. Louis.

THE ANNUAL Doughoregan Manor Horse Show will be held on the famous Carroll estate tomorrow, judging to start at 9:30 and continue throughout the day. The committee in charge of the show, the fifteenth in the history of the organization, consists of Mrs. Howard Bruce, Mrs. C. New Envoy Gives Dance At Uplands

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman Entertains for 150 at Her Home.

"Younger marrieds," extra men, debutantes and post-debs were in the majority at the dance given last evening by Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, Minister to Norway. The party was not an official one, in spite of the hostesses' rank, as she is entertaining again at a garden party on Sunday for Cabinet members, diplomats and Senators and Representatives.

Mrs. Harriman originally planned the party as one of her famous small gatherings of a few friends, but it grew by leaps and bounds until there were 150 present. Although the night was chillier than the hostess had hoped, the hardier guests strolled around the beautiful terrace of Uplands, Mrs. Harriman's home, and sat in comfortable chairs in the loggias at either side of the house. Uplands is on a hill and below them in the distance guests could see the twinkling lights of Washington.

There were several dinners given before the dance, but Mrs. Harriman dined quietly at home with her sister, Mrs. George Mairs, of New York and New Hampshire. The latter came down especially for the party, and will remain at Uplands until her sister sails June 2 for Oslo. Mrs. Harriman wore a gown of periwinkle blue, matching her eyes, with flowing panels of chiffon at either side.

One of the chief topics of conversation at the dance was the portrait of Mrs. Harriman recently completed by Eben Comins, Washington artist. Three-quarters in length, showing her in evening dress, it was hung in a place of honor in the drawing room.

The Diplomatic Corps was represented by the Italian Ambassador and Donna Matilde de Suvich, who themselves gave an elaborate party last Saturday; and the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Espil. In addition, there were numerous younger secretaries and attaches whom one finds dancing at most such parties in the Capital. Norway was not represented last evening, but the Minister and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne will no doubt be present at Mrs. Harriman's garden party on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Mathews Dick, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Mr. and Mrs. S. Kent Legare and the latter's sister, Miss Julie Dell Zimmerman, were present, and others there were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Coffin, Mr. and Mrs. John Caswell, Mrs. Albert Dewey, and Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Davis, with the former's daughters, the Misses Helen and Cynthia Davis.

Mrs. Studebaker Entertains At Luncheon for Mrs. Wallace

WITH Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, as guest of honor, Mrs. John W. Studebaker entertained at luncheon at the Shoreham yesterday.

Mrs. Wallace wore a navy blue crepe frock with a matching hat and a corsage of orchids. The hostess chose a rose beige frock with a large brown hat and gardenias. The table was decorated with crystal ornaments and a centerpiece of pink roses and baby's breath.

Among those who attended were Mrs. Alben W. Barkley, Mrs. Joseph C. O'Mahoney, Mrs. Guy Mark Gillette, Mrs. Fred Bierman, Mrs. Lloyd Thurston, Mrs. Casslus C. Dowell, Mrs. Edward C. Eicher and her mother, Mrs. W. R. Mount, of Washington, Iowa; Mrs. Otha D. Wearin, Mrs. Vincent Harrington and her visitor, Miss Ruth Stilwell, of Sioux City, Iowa; Mrs. Charles West, Mrs. Theodore A. Walters, Mrs. Ernest Gruening, Mrs. Frank Bohn, Mrs. David Cushman Coyle, Mrs. James E. LeCron, Mrs. Huston Thompson, Mrs. Joseph M. Gray, Mrs. Richard V. Oulahan and Mrs. Paul Appleby.

People's Mandate Committee Plans Airplane Caravan to Carry 'Good Neighbor' Message of Buenos Aires Parley to the Nation

Will Spread Doctrine of Peace and Enlighten People on Aims.

Meeting Held at Home of Rep. O'Day to Map Full Details.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

A flying caravan, starting here, will carry the "good neighbor" message of the Buenos Aires treaties throughout the United States this summer, if the plans of the People's Mandate Committee materialize. Convinced its mandate against war must be backed by enlightened public opinion, it proposes to launch a spectacular campaign of education in the instruments of peace.

Dr. Mary E. Woolley, chairman of the committee, was here yesterday to preside at the meeting at the home of Representative Caroline O'Day, when tentative plans for its campaign were announced. The Minister of Colombia, Senor Don Miguel Lopez; Dr. Leroy Stinebower, of the State Department; Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union, and members of the Mandate Committee: Miss Mabel Vernon, the director; Mrs. Raymond Clapper, secretary, and Elizabeth Stradley, of the staff, were the speakers.

Urged Study of Treaties.

The Minister of Colombia urged the study of the Buenos Aires treaties in all their implications, including that of social equality and respect for all nations, large and small. The treaties are the logical outgrowth of the spirit which has developed among countries of the Western Hemisphere, he pointed out and added that Colombia was ready to go much further and make more serious commitments in line with the "good neighbor" policy. This he explained, involves a community of interest wherein war is a crime and the nation who perpetrates it to be dealt with in the light of a criminal.

Representative O'Day, who was unable to leave her duties on Capitol Hill in time for the opening of the meeting, greeted her guests at the close of Senor Lopez's talk and re-emphasized his point of community interest which required more of a neighbor than concern for his own welfare.

Dr. Stinebower discussed the economic aspects of reciprocal trade agreements. "The export surplus of one country is generally the import need of another, he pointed out and the tendency since the depression to circumscribe and divert it into arbitrary channels results in international friction and ill will. Restrictive devices are more burdensome than tariffs themselves," he declared. "They provide a rallying point for those trying to persuade a large portion of the population to a policy of aggression."

Nations which have departed from the principle of economic equality assert it is only temporary, he added, but to re-establish it, it is necessary to forego immediate advantages for those which gain in the long run.

To Start Three Planes.

The plan of the mandate committee, as outlined by Miss Vernon and Miss Standley, is to start three planes from Washington, with emissaries who will gather here to meet the Latin-American diplomats, then go in separate directions to remote sections of the country and work back, stopping at cities and rural communities where large gatherings such as farmers' picnics, Grange meetings and summer school assemblies may be addressed, discussing the treaties and their significance as instruments for peace. Later it is hoped to continue the tour into Mexico and South America.

Dr. Inman asserted the change in the attitude of the United States during the past few years had marked "the greatest development of friendly relations between a large nation and its neighbors ever accomplished in history." Dr. Rowe emphasized the need of "the driving force of public opinion to secure ratification of the conventions."

Among those who were present at the home of Representative O'Day for the meeting were Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State; Mrs. Blair Bannister, Mme. Pastoriza, wife of the Dominican Minister; Mr. Thomas Burke, of the Department of Commerce, and Mrs. Burke; Mrs. Herbert Feis, wife of the Economic Adviser to the State Department; the Minister of Nicaragua and Senora de Brenes Jarquin, Mrs. Consuelo A. Seaone, Mrs. Morriss Cafritz, former president of the Sisterhood of Eighth Street Temple; Representative Nan Honeyman, of Oregon, the chairman of the Ecuadorian Boundary Commission and Senora de Vitieri, Dr. Izora Scott, Miss Martha Souder and Senora de Baron, wife of the Minister-Counselor of the Cuban Embassy.

Harris & Ewing.

CAPITOL HILL is not the only place where the Supreme Court issue threatens to divide the loyal Democratic ranks. At the Woman's National Democratic Club, Senator Hugo Black and Senator Sherman Minton, on separate occasions, were guest speakers and presented the "pro" in the proposal for a court change. Wives of Senators and Representatives who are opposing the President's plan wanted the other side to have a hearing, and said so. Last night the club's closing dinner was held with Gov. M. Clifford Townsend of Indiana as the speaker and, whatever he may have planned to say about the court—he didn't—for the dissenting groups had made it plain they would withdraw if further programs were devoted to support of the court plan.

POETRY is having its innings in the Capital with the advent of a whole week devoted to it. If the muse were not so elusive a lady we should no doubt have her here in person, but, in her absence, honors are being accorded the prize-winning poets of various Washington organizations, at dinners and programs. Wednesday night there was the dinner at the American Association of University Women, given by the Martha MacLear Poetry Group; last night the third poetry festival at the Arts Club, at which winners of the Charles Edward Russell Rondeau Contest were presented awards, and next Tuesday evening there will be a poetry banquet at the Hotel Roosevelt in which several poetry groups will join.

Inez Barclay Kirby, who won first prize in the A. A. U. W. contest, also took first in the competition sponsored by the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs with her poem, "Rivers," and was one of the four District poets who won in the Russell contest last night.

THE PETWORTH WOMAN'S CLUB, which had its annual spring banquet at the Kenwood Country Club last evening, claims six members who are past 80 years old—a distinction which automatically makes them honorary members. One is Mrs. Annie Baden, 94; another is Mrs. Ellis Logan, who sponsored the organization when it was formed, and is fondly called the "Club Mother" by the members. She was present at the dinner and sat at the head table as a guest of honor. Mrs. Harriet Scribner also was present, but the other honorary members (by virtue of their four-score years) did not attend. They are Mrs. Sarah Stuart, Mrs. C. E. Buck and Mrs. N. L. Dayton.

MISS MARY O'REILLY, assistant director of the Mint, who is considered to know more about Uncle Sam's money than he does himself, says the buffalo nickel is the most beautiful of all American coins. She was once told by a Frenchman that as long as a man in this country had such a nickel in his pocket, he possessed a work of art.

New Deal Topic For Townsend

Indiana Governor Speaks to Woman's National Democratic Club.

THE NEW DEAL, as it affects the State of Indiana, was the subject discussed by Gov. M. Clifford Townsend last night in an address before members and guests of the Woman's National Democratic Club at its closing dinner of the season, held at its headquarters on New Hampshire avenue. Gov. Townsend, who has been mentioned as a potential Presidential candidate in 1940, with Mrs. Townsend, was guest of honor at the affair.

He assigned the support of the Roosevelt Administration by the Midwestern States to the Midwesterner's liking for direct action and the fact that women, who have been exercising the direct franchise, "have been won to the Democratic Party, heart and soul. The New Deal has brought them, in tangible form, governmental services they can appreciate and understand," he said.

Mrs. Wilbur W. Hubbard, president of the club, presided. Members of the Indiana delegation in Congress and others from the Hoosier State were among the 100 or more guests. Senator and Mrs. Sherman Minton were there, as were Representative and Mrs. Louis Ludlow, Representative and Mrs. Compton White, Representative and Mrs. Glenn Griswold, Representative and Mrs. W. H. Larrabee, Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, Mrs. Izetta Jewell Miller, Mr. Clarence E. Gilmore, Mr. Albert Y. Woodward, Representative and Mrs. J. J. Cochran, Representative and Mrs. J. J. Dinner Held By Petworth Club Group

Annual Spring Event Is Staged at Kenwood Golf Club

90 Members and Guests Are Present; Artists on Program.

THE KENWOOD Golf and Country Club was the scene last night of the annual spring banquet of the Petworth Woman's Club. Nearly 90 members and guests were present—all of them women—for on this occasion the husbands of members are not included in the guest list, though they are entertained at other parties during the year.

Mrs. LaVerne Beales, the president, presided and presented the artists of the evening, Mrs. Nellie Chaillet, who sang, accompanied by Mrs. Cornelia Long Kinsella, and Miss Amy Veerhoff, who gave dramatic readings. The annual reports which have been heard at the banquets in other years were deferred this time until the meeting the first Monday in June, when they will be made in connection with the installation of officers. Mrs. Oscar Nelson, now serving as vice president, will succeed Mrs. Beales to the presidency.

Blue and gold, the club colors, were carried out in the decorations and in the programs at each place. Seated with the president at the head table were Mrs. Wiley, a director of the General Federation; Mrs. Edgar Meritt, a past president of the District Federation; Mrs. Lloyd Biddle, who is now president; Mrs. Ellis Logan, founder of the club; Miss Mary Frank, former principal of Petworth School, and Miss Bessie K. Lacy, the present principal; Mrs. Lloyd Morrison, chairman of fine arts for the District Federation, and Mrs. George Durno, a daughter-in-law of the president.

There were also the officers and three past presidents of the club—Mrs. W. A. Winklehau, Mrs. Horace J. Phelps and Mrs. R. E. Holm. "Harmony and good fellowship" is the motto to which the club has adhered since its formation in 1919. Its meetings are held in Petworth School.

District Seeks Mystery Woman In Keene Case

is expected to take an active part in quizzing witnesses on the stand, and is known to have had subpenaed some witnesses he wants to grill.

It was expected by authorities that the body of the missing man would have come to the surface of the lower Potomac at least two days ago, but the Coast Guard, which has been searching continuously, has been unable to locate it. This added still another puzzling aspect to the strange case.

New Evidence.

Bits of evidence turned up Wednesday were to play an important part in the hearing this morning. Among these were a chamois pouch, a leather letter-purse, and a pair of new gray gloves, found in Keene's disordered stateroom. Mrs. Keene was of the belief none of them belonged to her husband.

The chamois pouch was further described yesterday. It is small and folds in the center, with two flaps which are clasped on snaps. It is distinguished by two tiny pockets, each about the size of a postage stamp. It is the sort of pouch which would be useful for carrying jewels. Keene is known to have carried valuable rubies, pearls and diamonds. The pouch was empty.

Among the witnesses today will be Capt. Chap Posey, master of the vessel, who was a friend of the missing man for more than 35 years. Clemence Keene, the wife, was born and raised in Hampton Roads, and she and her husband traveled on Capt. Posey's boat for more than a quarter century.

It was considered significant in view of Keene's old acquaintance that he did not call upon the captain to pay his respects the night of May 13.

Beret Still Missing.

Another clew turned up yesterday was the fact that Keene's shoes were found in his stateroom, yet his brown beret, which made him a marked man on the boat, was missing. Why he would remove his shoes and leave on his beret was just one more puzzle in a series of puzzles. He owned only two pair of shoes and the other pair was at home, at the Fairfax Hotel here.

J. Frank Staley, Department of Justice attorney, will sit as chairman of a board of three at today's hearing. The other board members are from the Coast Guard and the Department of Justice. Staley, despite his connection with the Justice Department, said that agency had no intention of investigating the case as it "was purely a State matter."

No more information regarding the silent stranger who bought Keene a bottle of beer at 11 p. m. last Thursday could be uncovered yesterday, nor could the person with whom Keene was to do business in Norfolk be located.

The defendants were indicted on chrges of allegedly entering misstatements in registration of bonds before the Security and Exchange Commission in violation of the law of 1934.

Clews in Norfolk Boat Mystery

Herndon Urges Anti-Lynching Bill Passage

Aid for Share Croppers Sought by Civil Liberties.

Immediate passage of the Gavigan antilynching bill by the Senate and further Congressional action for relief of the share-crop tenants of the South were called for by Angelo Herndon, freed recently by the Supreme Court from a Georgia jail, last night at the American Civil Liberties Union dinner at the National Press Club.

Herndon, whose freedom of speech was upheld by the high court after he had been jailed for "inciting insurrection" under an old law, pointed to the antilynching bill as a preparatory step toward the end of the Negro's "plight." He said:

"Of course it will not do the entire job, but it will at least show that there is sufficient Federal recognition of the problem to start a concerted campaign against mob rule."

Citing the problem facing the share-crop tenant, Herndon warned:

"A new problem—one for the entire country—has arisen. There were 40,000 families dispossessed last year while working as sharecroppers. At the same time the others were earning such low wages that they were unable to live in security."

Truck, Train Crash At Quantico; 2 Die

Fredericksburg, Va., May 20 (AP).—Two men, a Marine and a civilian, were instantly kinned today when a Marine Corps truck on which they were riding crashed into a northbound R. F. & P. R. R. passenger train at a grade crossing in Quantico.

The dead were identified as Pvt. Willie E. Duke, Marine Corps, and Willie Stribling, about 40, of Stafford County.

Labor Head Promises A Fair Deal to C. I. O.

Richmond, Va., May 20 (AP).—John Hopkins Hall, State labor commissioner, said today that his department expected to serve workers allied with the CIO on the same basis it sought to aid members of the long established craft groups of the American Federation of Labor.

Commissioner Hall, who holds a card in an A. F. of L. union and who is past president and a leader of the Virginia Federation of Labor, said that his department would not and could not, even if it so desired, discriminate in favor of any particular branch of labor, and that it would serve all working people alike, regardless of affiliations.

Senate Group To Consider 2 Lynching Bills

Van Nuys-Wagner, Gavagan Measures to Be Dusted Off Next Week.

By Russell Smith.

A Senate Judiciary sub-committee will meet next week to consider antilynching legislation, backed up hitherto in this session of Congress behind the court bill jam.

Announcement that he will call together the sub-committee, of which he is chairman, was made last night by Senator Frederick Van Nuys (Democrat), Indiana, co-author with Senator Robert F. Wagner (Democrat), New York, of the principal Senate antilynching bill.

Before the sub-committee also will be the Gavagan bill, adopted by the House April 15 by a 270-to-119 vote after furious debate which split party lines.

Differ on States' Rights.

The two bills differ principally in the extent to which they advance the power of the Federal Government within individual States. The Senate bill is regarded by its supporters as less offensive to States' rights theorists. Some of them believe the Gavagan bill is not constitutional.

The latter would fine or imprison for as much as five years an officer who permitted a prisoner to be taken from him. It would make members of a lynching mob subject to from 5 to 25 years' imprisonment.

Van Nuys said last night he expects an early report by his subcommittee to the full judiciary committee. He also believes the latter group will recommend passage to the Senate within a short time.

"It doesn't appear that the bill will encounter as much opposition at this session as it did in the previous Congress," Van Nuys added.

"Southern members are not as much opposed to it as they were last year. I do not believe there will be any serious delay in the committee. There is no need for hearings or extensive study, since the committee has a voluminous record from hearings of the past three years, both in House and Senate."

The general view is that passage of the legislation by the Senate at this session is improbable.

An interesting aspect of the Senate fight on the bill is the declared opposition of Senator William E. Borah (Republican), of Idaho, a frequent champion of other "reformist" legislation.

At the time the Gavagan bill was passed, Borah stigmatized that bill as "a legitimate descendant of those reconstruction measures which followed the Civil War."

Woodmen Hold Meeting.

Cumberland, Md., May 20.—The district convention of the Woodmen Circle was held here yesterday with Mrs. Fannye Kolb, Washington, State president, and national presentative, Mrs. Rora L. Canada, State manager, also of Washington, and Mrs. Mary Linnenbrogger, Frostburg, district president, present.

Wallace Assures Peery Of 'Adequate' Soil Fund

Richmond, Va., May 20 (AP).—Gov. Peery received the assurance of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace today that Virginia will receive enough soil conservation funds in 1938 to provide "adequately" for the State's soil program.

The Governor received a letter from Wallace in reply to his protest against the proposed 32 per cent reduction in Virginia's allotment for next year. Said Virginia's 1937 allotment of $284,358 was the largest of any of the Southern States in Region II and had been tentatively cut to $193,363 for next year because the soil program in Virginia necessitates comparatively little terracing.

Lynchburg Is Chosen By Episcopal Diocese

Covington, Va., May 20 (AP).—St. John's Church, Lynchburg, was the choice today of the Council of the Episcopal Diocese of Southwestern Virginia for next year's meeting.

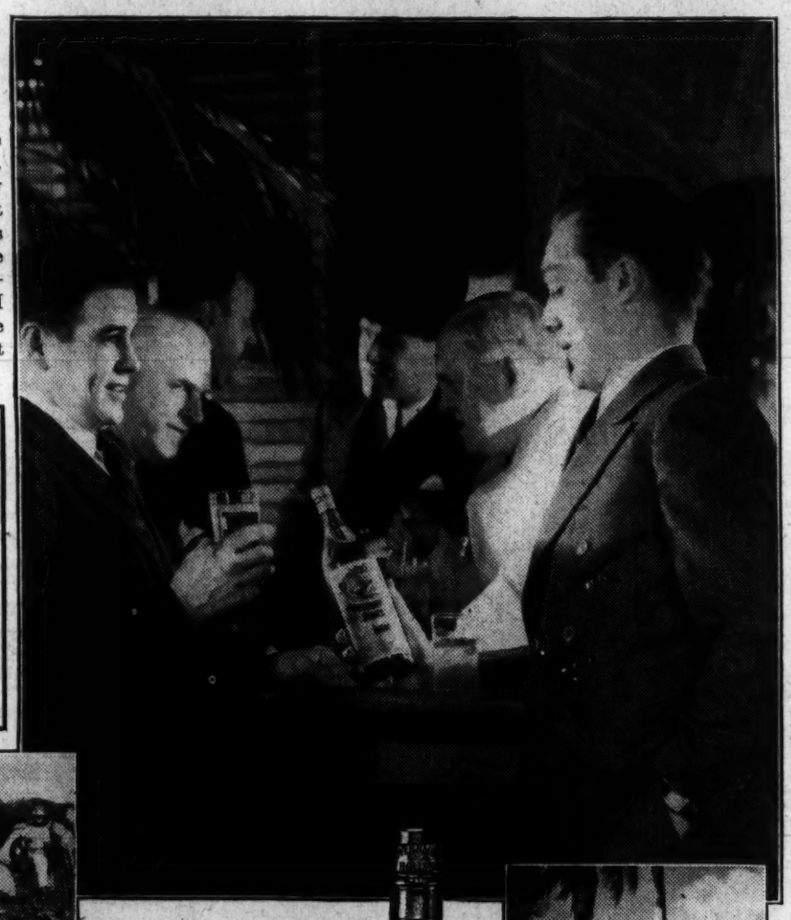
PUBLIC LAUDS NEW RUM!

FIRST TASTERS ATTRACTED BY UNIQUE BACKGROUND, THEN WON BY FLAVOR

To the right is the first group to taste Government House Rum in New York. They ordered it out of curiosity—they had heard so much about it—it's a humanitarian project as well as a beverage. And then the flavor sold them. "Swell," they say—"Mighty smooth and mellow." "I don't know how you'd describe the flavor," says the man on the left, "but I like it!" Have you tried it yet?



The Story Behind the Rum

Soon after the U. S. bought the Virgin Islands in 1917, prohibition cut off the Islands' income from their 200-year-old art of making fine rum. Low point was 1930. Destitution was widespread. Something had to be done. It was. The Federal emergency relief organization stepped in to put the Islands on a self-supporting basis, formed the Virgin Islands Company. Idea was to stop the need for growing Federal subsidies and give work instead of charity. Private capital was invited to set up a large scale distillery—was invited for 3 years—wasn't interested. Out of necessity, a distillery was bought, started operations in 1934. The idle of the Islands were called off relief rolls onto payrolls at honest work. The rum they've been making is called Government House, as fine a rum as distilling science can produce.

MADE DIRECT FROM CANE JUICE is one reason flavor is so delicious. Cane is ground soon after cutting while juice is fresh.

"YOU COULD SIP IT like a liqueur, it's smooth enough. But I'll take mine in a Collins," says Lee Francis, New York broker, passenger on ship which brought up the first cargo of Government House.

Cleveland Pounds Out 16-5 Victory Over Boston Red Sox to Take League Lead

NATS DOWN BROWNS, 5-4, ON BLUEGE'S HIT IN TWELFTH

Hudlin Wins Third Game Of Season

Joe Cronin Returns to Line-up With 3 Hits, Indians Get 21.

By the Associated Press.

Boston, May 20.—The Cleveland Indians gained the American League top place today by pounding five Red Sox pitchers for a total of 21 hits and a decisive 16-to-5 victory. The visitors used two hurlers, and when Righthander Willis Hudlin finished up he was credited with his third win of the season over the Red Sockers.

Lyn Lary opened by tripling to right field for his seventh consecutive base hit. He lashed another three-bagger later and also a double, to share the game's batting honors with Jack Heath, Frank Pytlak and Roy Hughes.

Johnny Allen started for the Indians, but was yanked for Hudlin when he ran into a four-run scoring burst in the third inning.

Every one of the ten Indians to see action got at least one hit, and all but Hal Trosky and Allen shared in the scoring orgy.

Pirates Defeat Phillies, 5 to 2, To Take Series

By the Associated Press.

Pittsburgh, May 20.—The hustling Philadelphia Phillies made five double plays today, one less than the major league record, but dropped the third and deciding game in their series with Pittsburg's soaring Pirates, 5 to 2.

While Bill Swift was limiting the visitors to six hits and fanning six batters, the Pirates blasted Southpaw Wayne Lamaster from the mound in three frames, including a second inning home run by Woody Jensen, and piled up a winning lead.

Lefty Lee's Hurling Tops Yankees, 3-1

World Champions Held to 3 Hits as White Sox Triumph.

By the Associated Press.

New York, May 20.—For the second time this season, Lefty Lee humbled the world champion Yankees, limiting them to three hits in pitching the Chicago White Sox to a 3-to-1 victory.

In becoming the only pitcher of the year to beat the Yanks twice, Lee has handcuffed the supposed heavy hitters with a total of seven safeties in two games, allowing them only four in beating them on the New Yorkers' recent Western swing.

St. Louis, May 20.—Dick Bartell's homer with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth inning gave the New York Giants a 7-to-4 victory over the Cardinals today, the league champions' second in a row over the Gashouse Gang. It was Bartell's ninth circuit clout of the year.

The extra-curricula activities in the current New York Giants-St. Louis Cardinals' series, which resulted in a fist-throwing episode during yesterday's game, continued today with the banishment of Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Cards, before the first ball of the contest was thrown.

Gallaudet Meets Eagles on Track

An old fervent intracity rivalry will be renewed this afternon at Kendall Green where Teddy Hughes' Galaudet trackmen play host to a squadron of ambitious American University runners. The affair gets underway promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Blessed with a corps of outstanding weightmen and middle-distance stars, the Blues are favored. American has yet to win this season, but has hopes of upsetting its host.

Washington Party Catches 56 Hardheads

Milton Gordon, Fred Shafferd and Edgar Baum Fail to Get Bluefish in Southwest Middles but Make Nice Hardhead Catch Off Buoy 14.

By Bill Ackerman.

On Tuesday Milton Gordon, Fred Shafferd and Edgar Baum went to the Southwest Middles in search of bluefish. Chumming and baiting with herring, there was but one strike, and that was lost at the surface, but not before it was plainly seen.

According to their boatman, this is the earliest date on which he has ever seen them on the Middles (three years ago the first catch was made on May 23). There are plenty of signs and his prediction is that they should be biting within ten days. This news as yet isn't anything to get heated up about, but still worth keeping an eye on.

ACKERMAN

Drifting off Buoy 14 in the afternoon, the party did get 56 of the largest hardheads any of them had ever seen. Many weighed close to 4½ pounds. Had they not tried for the blues so long the catch would have been far larger.

Word from Oregon Inlet says that the blues are still running small, 1½ to 3 pounds. Worth going down for, particularly in view of the fact that the channel bass are biting good and running in weight from 30 to 50 pounds. The catches are fairly good. Keep in mind the fact that the month of June in this section is usually a poor fishing period. If you can't get down within the next two weeks, wait until after July 1.

With the peak of the season still two weeks off, tops in the Venice-Nokomis Tarpon Tournament is a 142-pounder—21 better than the best last year.

The run of giant bluefin tuna is on again at Bimini. The amazing regularity with which these great fish hit in each year is remarkable. Because they are traveling fish the fight they put up in these waters is far beyond that which they display a few weeks later in the section that lies between a point about 50 miles south of Montauk and extending north to Nova Scotia.

Many local anglers who have fished with Capt. Herman Gray in Palm Beach waters will be glad to know that he will be stationed at Yarmouth, Nova Scotia, as adviser. Well versed in the ways of the big fish, it is felt that he will be a distinct addition to this fast growing big game fish section.

For those fishermen that favor the big ones, don't forget that Atlantic City and Beach Haven, only a few hours drive from your front door, supplies a brand that is hard to beat. Stop in to see Ollie Atlas and get one of the booklets of pictures (hope there are some left) that have been put out by the Atlantic City Tuna Club and the Pennsylvania Railroad.

The first blues of the season were caught last Sunday at Brielle, N. J. Smaller than usual for the first run, but large enough for plenty of fun. They averaged about 3 pounds.

On the same date was reported a large catch of big blues in south Jersey by commercial men. The sport is close at hand for that section.

Peconic Bay, Long Island, the yardstick by which weakfishing is measured from the Capes to Montauk, opened last Sunday (first day the law permitted chumming with shrimp) in a manner that portends a great season. Individual fish run up to 11 pounds 4 ounces in weight—the average about 5 or 6 and as many as 150 to the boat.

With the right kind of weather, there is every reason to believe that Wachapreague will see them this coming week in goodly numbers. Small fish have already been reported.

Rock fish in large numbers have been in the river at and above Joe Fletchers. Water is clearing and when it does, good fishing may be expected. For the smaller ones, bloodworms are the bait, and you can expect an occasional cat and depend on many of the strikes being white perch. Cut the side out of a perch and use it on a larger hook at the edge of the current for a big rock. Admittedly slow action, but when it does come look out. The play the large striper will give you in this fast water is far beyond that which he will give you in the more placid waters of the bay.

The last regular meet of the Capital Casting Club was held under conditions that favored only the sailing of the model yachts on the Reflecting Pool. A stiff northwest wind blew five-eighths ounce plugs from 1 to 3 feet off their courses and it was exceedingly difficult to make "perfects." Chuck Johnson, who usually is right up there with a score at the higher end of the "ninetys," could only manage to get an 89 in the ⅝-ounze accuracy, with Jay Reed, his nearest contender, casting an 86. The ⅜-ounce accuracy event was marked by even lower scores with "Old Man Wind" as the only alibi. Wet and dry fly events were out of the question and most of the afternoon was given over to instructing visitors in bait-casting. Many Washington anglers are visiting the Reflecting Pool and obtaining real dope on the arts of bait and fly casting. Members of the casting club are always ready to help out on any questions put to them by visiting fishermen. If you would like to try out your arm and your eye at casting at floating targets, bring your rod down to the pool any Saturday afternoon.

DeShong Will Seek 5th Straight Today

Cubs Whip Dodgers, 6-1; Mungo Loses

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, May 20.—Roy Parmelee not only did defensive work, but led the way at the plate today in pitching and hitting the Cubs to a 6-to-1 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers and Van Mungo.

Parmelee, pitching steady ball, limited the Brooklyns to seven hits for his third win of the season. Then, in the seventh, after Mungo had purposely passed Billy Jurges to get at him, he fooled everyone by belting a homer with two mates aboard to wind up the Cub scoring.

Ladies' Day Crowd Sees Pitchers Duel as Lawson Wins.

By the Associated Press.

Philadelphia, May 20. — The Detroit Tigers again defeated the Athletics, 3 to 2, today as Roxie Lawson shaded Edgar "Lefty" Smith in a pitcher's battle to win his sixth game of the season before a ladies' day crowd of 15,000.

Lawson was a bit wild, issuing seven bases on balls, but with the exception of the sixth and seventh when the A's pushed over their two runs, the Tiger hurler was effective in the pinches. The A's had 11 men left on base.

Smith got off to a shaky start in the first, the Tigers getting two runs on a walk to White, Cochrane's single and Greenberg's triple, but thereafter held the Bengals to 6 hits. Two of these, a single by Walker and a two-bagger by Rogell, came in the sixth and scored the winning run.

Cincinnati, May 20.—Five-hit pitching by Rookie James Turner and a pair of home runs by Outfielder Vince DiMaggio gave the Boston Bees a 4-to-1 victory today that enabled them to sweep the two-game series with Cincinnati's cellar-dwelling Reds.

A line drive from the bat of Outfielder Wally Berger in the fifth inning struck Wild Bill Hallahan, veteran Cincinnati southpaw, on his bare hand and forced him from the game. After first-aid treatment, he remained on the Red Bench.

One-Run Triumphs Tribute to Nats.

By Shirley Povich.

It is rather to the Washington Ball Club's credit that five of its last six victories have been achieved by a one-run margin. It's axiomatic in big league baseball that the good team wins the close games. That's when a club must be on its mettle — when that winning run is on base to be restrained there or driven home, as the case may be.

POVICH.

Thus there can be no complaint about the Nats' performance this year when the chips have been down in the late innings—when there was great demand for a run or two or some steady fielding or powerful pitching. Washington has figured in nine games that were decided by one run this season and six times the Nats have emerged triumphant.

Of late, their performance in this respect has been something remarkable. Ever since they have begun their home stand here a week ago, they have been playing games that were decided by one run. Out of the six battles staged, the Nats have won five.

* * * *

And there is no complaint, either, with Washington's extra-inning performances this year. The Nats have figured in four extra-inning battles and twice they have won.

It may come as something of a surprise, but the fifth-place Washington Ball Club actually has been in the league during the past three weeks. They left home on their first Western trip showing 6 defeats in 7 games and then won 11 of their next 18.

The team that could win only one of its first seven games is now only two games removed from the league lead, so that attests not only to the closeness of the race, but to the progress of the Nats.

* * * *

It is, indeed, a kind of crazy pennant race in the American League this season. Four teams have occupied the lead during the past eight days—the Red Sox, Indians, Athletics and Yankees. The fourth-place club at this writing, Detroit, can move to the top by nightfall if the leaders get bumped off today.

* * * *

This morning who but the Cleveland team is perched on top of the league race. And only two weeks ago Cleveland newspapers and fans alike were carping at Steve O'Neill, whooping for his managerial scalp before his mismanagement of the Indians killed all of the club's pennant hopes.

* * * *

The baseball fates are now smiling on Shanty Hogan. The hefty catcher got a cruel break in the luck three weeks ago when he was shipped to Indianapolis in the deal for Catcher Johnny Riddle.

The Washington club was not keen on releasing Hogan, but Indianapolis demanded a catcher to replace Riddle, and Hogan was the victim of that demand.

When he packed his bag in Philadelphia that night and said good-by to his Washington teammates before joining Indianapolis, Hogan never dreamed that he would ever get back in the big leagues. At his age—31—there wasn't much chance and at his weight—235—the chance was even dimmer. Shanty apparently was done as a big leaguer.

And then, another man's misfortune proved Hogan's great good luck. Riddle, who had been recused from the minors by the Nats at the age of 30, nine years after he had failed in his first big-league tryout, was discovered to own two chipped bones in his elbow. The Nats didn't want him.

So the deal was called off yesterday. Hogan came back to the Nats and Riddle went back to the minors.

Maryland University folk are making a great hullabaloo over the success of their Charley Keller, the College Park product, who is leading the International League at bat with a near .500 average in his first season in organized baseball.

* * * *

But down at Bridgewater College, at Bridgewater, Va., the folks there are hailing young Benny Huffman with even more acclaim. Huffman, in his first year in organized baseball is making good not with a minor league team, but with the St. Louis Browns.

* * * *

He was captain-elect of the Bridgewater team that took the field this spring, but Huffman didn't show up for practice. His scholarship had been cut off by college officials in a retrenchment policy, and Huffman quit school. He raised 50 bucks, paid for a course at a baseball school at Hot Springs, Ark., and enrolled.

* * * *

Rogers Hornsby, an instructor there, saw young Huffman, noted his talents. He invited Huffman to train with the Browns at San Antonio. Huffman came North as the second-string catcher of the St. Louis Club, showing so much promise that Manager Hornsby may trade Catcher Rollie Hemsley any day now.

FLAG RAISING began to improve position after three furlongs, was sent to the outside of leaders for final drive, came around with good speed and was in hand at the end. MISS ADELINE had much taken out of her racing GEMWICK into submission and weakened gradually. GEMWICK circled horses to take command in the first furlong and tired. THE SWAGMAN could not find racing room in the final quarter and showed a good effort. SEA DOVE could not keep up.

RED LABEL took command easily in the opening furlong, saved ground while being rated along with MISS PATCHES and drew out when placed to strong hand ride. MISS PATCHES, hard ridden throughout, weakened slightly in the closing stages. BARBIZON was strongly handled in the closing three furlongs and gained gradually. MISS SYMPHONY raced on the outside. The others could not reach contention.

SOUPCON ran head and head with WISE MONEY from the start, was put to pressure entering the stretch and just lasted. AUPOIN gained steadily from a slow beginning.

Harvey and Johnson Join Rippy and Hollebaugh in Manor Semi-Finals

Favorites Bow in Day Of Upsets

By Merrell W. Wittlesey.

A pair of tournament dark horses, Everett Johnson, of Beaver Dam, and J. W. Harvey, of the host club, survived a wave of upsets in the first and second match play rounds in the Manor Club Invitation tournament yesterday, and joined Claude Rippy and Russ Hollebaugh in the semifinal round.

Favorites fell right and left over the Norbeck course, Harry Pitt bowing in his morning match, 7 and 5, to the sub-par golf of Martin McCarthy, the Beaver Dam ace. In the afternoon Bobby Brownell lost to Hollebaugh, Volney Burnett, the medalist, succumbed to Rippy and McCarthy lost to the superior putting touch of Johnson. Harvey's victories over Johnny Miller and Maury Fitzgerald were both in the nature of surprises.

Rippy meets Hollebaugh today, and will enter the match no more than an even choice as the husky Kenwood member and sporting goods salesman is playing the best golf of the field. Harvey meets Johnson and as the previous performances of both were unexpected, the winner is a toss-up.

Rippy had the best record of the four semifinalists, defeating the bespectacled Baltimore player, Spencer Overton, in the first round, 2 and 1, and won with little difficulty over Burnett, 4 and 2. The national public links finalist last year was 2 up at the turn against Overton and parred the seventeenth hole to decide the issue.

Against Burnett, Rippy took an early lead, was in the van by two holes at the turn, increased his lead to three holes twice on the back nine and closed the match on the sixteenth.

Hollebaugh was never extended in beating D. E. Mattison, of Beaver Dam, 5 and 4, holding a 4 up margin at the turn. Against Brownell he started with a trio of 3s for a 2 up margin, and retained it at the turn, going out in 33 blows, 2 under par. Bobby reduced the margin to one hole on two different occasions, but flubbed an approach on the sixteenth to go 2 down and they halved the seventeenth for the match. Hollebaugh was even par for his pair of matches.

Will Harvey, the lone host club member with a crack at the championship that Manor members have held on two of the four previous years of play, was all even in his morning match at the end of nine holes, but won the eleventh and twelfth to establish a lead he held through the seventeenth.

Johnson had a nip-and-tuck match against Sam Harvey, of Argyle, and won 2 and 1 after turning all square. Harvey missed two short putts and his last one was fatal, giving Johnson the victory. In the afternoon Johnson was the under dog against his club mate, Martin McCarthy, who played the woods nine in 32 strokes against Harry Pitt, but McCarthy suffered a let down, and after fighting to overcome Johnson's 1 and 2 up leads, finally lost when he trapped his ball on the seventeenth tee and lost the hole. Johnson knocked in several long putts at crucial moments to retain his various advantages.

Frank Allan, the recent Chevy Chase semifinalist, playing in the third flight after a qualifying round of 84, was under par in two matches to easily reach the semifinals.

Line Drive Injures Hallahan's Hand

Cincinnati, May 20 (AP).—A line drive from the bat of Outfielder Wally Berger of the Boston Bees struck Wild Bill Hallahan, Cincinnati's southpaw pitcher, on the hand in today's final of the Twoba game series.

After receiving first aid, Hallahan was compelled to leave the game with the score tied 1-all on home runs by First Babeman Alburt Fletcher, of the Bees and Catcher Ernie Lombardi, of the Reds.

Central High Qualifies 19 In Big Meet

Tech's 4-Year Reign May Come to End; East Team Weak.

By John R. Vosburgh

Tech High's four-year reign as inter-high track and field champions began to stagger uncertainly in Central stadium yesterday as Central, Eastern and Roosevelt launched a concerted drive on the titleholders in the first day's events of the fortieth annual schoolboy carnival.

The dark blue of Central flew triumphant at the end of the preliminary rounds, bearing out its rating as slight favorite to snatch Tech's title. Central qualified 19 men for the finals today, Tech 18, Eastern 14, Roosevelt 8 and Western 2.

Roosevelt already has 1½ points and Central ½ a point as the result of capturing automatic fifth places. No records were seriously endangered, but the bitter struggle for the team title overshadowed all other phases, indicating a hot fight this afternoon when the schools battle down the homestretch to take this traditional event started back in the gay nineties.

The defending champs from Tech suffered costly losses in the low hurdles and the high jump, in which Central registered six qualifiers for the finals. Tech's chief strength came in the pole vault and javelin throw, placing six men in these two event finals.

It was the weakened Eastern team, however, which rallied late in the day to gain a fighting chance for the championship despite loss of its star quarter-miler, Otto Streitberger, injured in the "C" Club meet. The Lincoln Parkers, with Abe Cohen and Morris Abelman, Leslie Cooksey and Ed Kiessling doing the tossing and jumping, ran up 6 points in the broad jump and shot put, last events of the afternoon.

Roosevelt, like Central, showing a marked upswing in its track fortunes, grabbed three of the six places in the 440-yard dash final and established itself a heavy favorite to walk off with the mile relay today. Bob Kollmyer and Cleveland Stauffer gave the Rough Riders a one-two finish in the fastest heat of the quarter and Wilbert Lewis finished second in another heat.

Tech's hopes of retaining its crown rest largely on the middle-distance races in which it has Charlie Luckett, heavy choice to win in the mile, and Johnny Caspar, half-mile favorite. Central's strength in these events is distinctly limited.

Not limited, however, is Central's strength in the 100-yard dash. Coach Hardy Pearce sprang a big surprise when he brought out Val Machen, who walked off with two heats in his first track appearance of the year. Machen, a working boy, has been unable to run in other meets because of his job. Lou Chacos of Central won the other semifinal heat, both he and Machen hitting the tape in 10.4 seconds.

Eddie Vasvary of Roosevelt stepped off the fastest 220 in 23.6 seconds but was disqualified for running out of his lane and Machen was given the qualifying position for today's final.

Titlist Loses In Atlanta Golf Event

Four Reach Finals of Southern Golf Tournament.

By the Associated Press.

Atlanta, May 20.—A new champion will be crowned in the final ceremonies of the Women's 1937 Southern Golf Tournament.

Titleholder Mrs. Mark McGarry, of St. Petersburg, Fla., dropped from the contention today in the quarter final round of sharpshooting that left two veteran Texas competitors, a youthful Georgian and a North Carolinian to fight it out.

Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Greensboro, N. C., established herself as a distinct threat for the championship in eliminating Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., a pre-tournament favorite, 2 and 1.

Standing between Mrs. Page, one of the longest drivers in women's ranks, and the finals was Mrs. Frank Goldthwaite, of Fort Worth, Tex., who triumphed over the 1933 field at Albany, Ga., when playing as Aneila Gorczyca.

The other semi-final skirmish also appeared a "natural," bringing together Mrs. Dan Chandler of Dallas, Tex., the qualifying medalist, and Dorothy Kirby of Atlanta, 17-year-old thrice champion of Georgia.

Mrs. Chandler, medalist in the Southern for two years in a row, rallied on the last two holes today to conquer Mrs. McGarry. They were all square at the turn and made a nip-and-tuck fight of it until the seventeenth, where the Floridan fell victim to a stymie.

After running up a three-hole advantage through nine holes, Miss Kirby settled down to an easy pace to coast in with a 4 and 3 triumph over Miss Lilly Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., three times champion of her home State and quite a competitor for all her 103 pounds.

Ernie Dusek Wins Over Willie Davis

Ernie Dusek, one of the rough and ready Dusek clan, tossed Wee Willie Davis the Vast Virginian, after 33 minutes of hectic hugging and burping at Turner's Arena last night. A crowd of 1,800 watched the proceedings.

The high light of the match came when Davis, tossed out of the ring, clutched at the glasses adorning the nose of Sam Ugel, the official timekeeper. The glasses came off, and so did part of Sammy's nose. The injury was slight, however. There were no other casualties.

Joe Cox dumped Joe Dusek in 21 minutes of semifinal growling. Rudy Dusek and Gino Garibaldi worked 30 minutes to a draw, as did Jack Donovan and Mike Mazurki. Hank Barber flopped Wally Dusek in 20 minutes of the remaining preliminary.

REMAINING GAMES.

Tuesday—Roosevelt vs. Eastern, at Eastern.
Friday—Western vs. Wilson, at Western.

That man again, Tommy Doonis, pitched another low-hit ball game for Tech High yesterday. In fact, he pitched Western's interhigh champions headlong out of a chance for second place in the series with an 8-4 defeat at Western as Tech automatically clinched the runner-up rung.

Thomas allowed three hits to the champs—two singles and a double—to celebrate his second victory of the week. He beat Central on Monday with equal dispatch. Tech can still tie for the championship if Roosevelt upsets Eastern, Tuesday.

A dozen strike-outs registered by the right-hand Doonis slants set the Georgetowners back with rapid-fire speed after a rather disastrous first inning in which Western took a 3-2 lead. Errors, 11 of them, were as numerous as hits and figured as importantly in the scoring.

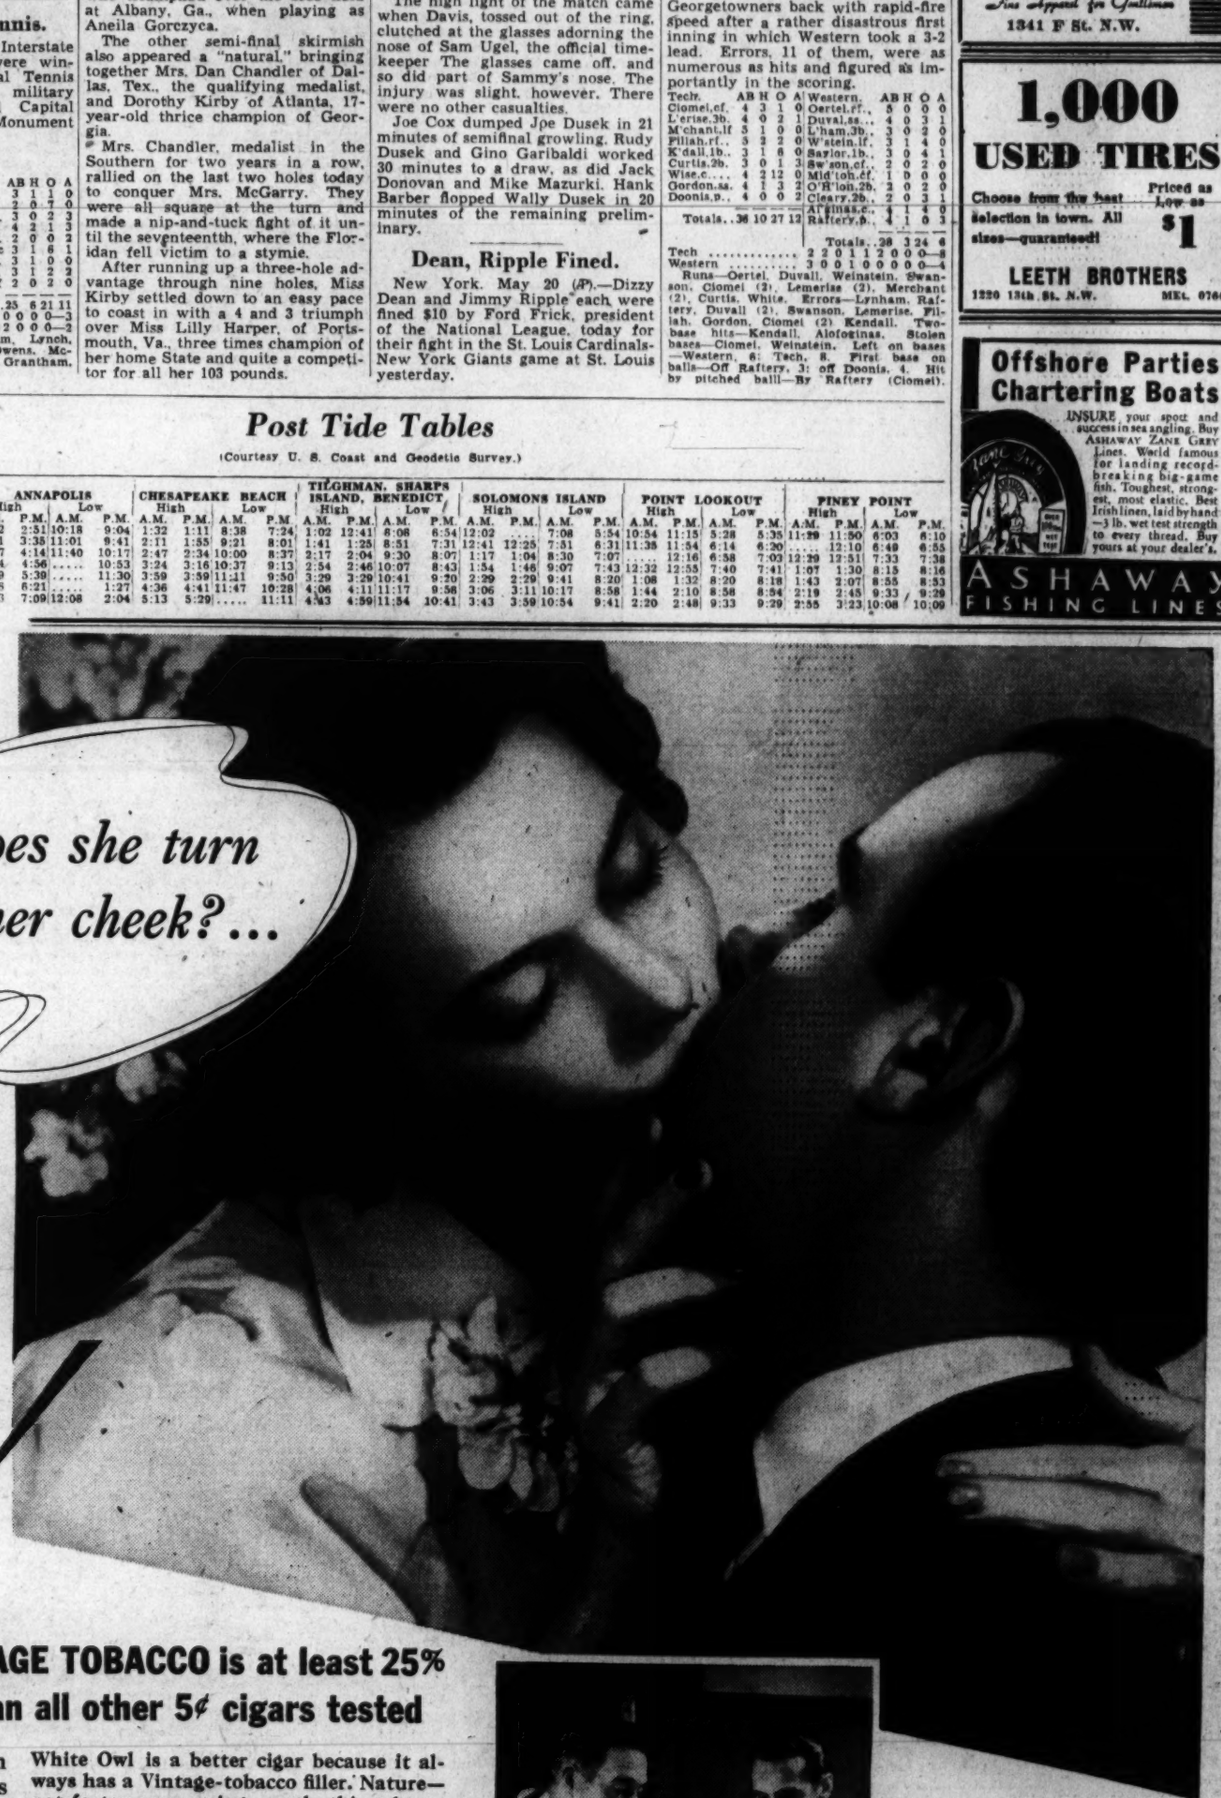
'Does she turn her cheek?...

—OR REALLY KISS you!



Smokers' test shows VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested

THERE'S not much satisfaction in "half-kisses." So why take chances of offending with a tobacco-laden breath? Smoke a White Owl and keep yourself open for a hearty reception.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor . . . disappears faster.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Change over to the milder, friendlier White Owls today. You'll get a more friendly welcome from the ladies, too.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Higher Traffic Offsets Cut in Freight Charge

Survey Shows Effect on Railroad Earnings by I. C. C. Ruling.

New York, May 20.—The effect of the loss of freight surcharges so far this year on railroad revenues is illustrated by the fact that net ton miles in the first quarter were 20 per cent above the total for the similar 1936 period, whereas freight revenues increased by only 14.7 per cent. If surcharges had remained in effect, operating revenues (and net income) would have been almost $40,000,000 greater than the amounts reported, according to the Standard Statistics Co., of New York.

In estimating probable 1937 earnings for individual roads, full consideration should be given to the amount of surcharge income lost. Some have reported this figure to stockholders, but many have not. The tabulation below shows the amount of revenues (more than $1,000,000) derived from emergency charges in 1936, indicating the extent to which leading lines are affected by refusal of the I. C. C. to extend those surcharges.

Gold Reserve Rises To 11.907 Billion

The Federal Reserve Board reported yesterday only negligible dealings in Government securities for the week ended May 19. During the week, the board listed a reduction of $180.000 in reserve system holdings of Treasury notes and an increase of the same amount in Government bond holdings.

Since it stepped into the Federal security market to exercise a steadying influence last month, the board has added about $100,000,000 to holdings of Government obligations, which now aggregate $2,526,290,000, or $96,000,000 over the same week last year.

For the week ended May 19, the board estimated excess member bank reserves at $910,000,000, a decrease of $30,000,000 for the week and the lowest total in more than three years. These reserves, or lendable funds, provide the basis for credit expansion. The board reported a $25,000,000 increase in the Nation's gold hoard during the week to $11,907,000,000. This was $1,532,000,000 over the same week last year and a new all-time record.

Wall to Speak At Convention Of D.C. Bankers

Authority on Financial Statements to Make a Principal Address.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Charles H. Doing, chairman of the program committee for the nineteenth annual convention of the District of Columbia Bankers Association at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., next week, has announced that Alexander Wall, secretary-treasurer of Robert Morris Associates, will be one of the principal speakers on the second day of the meeting.

Mr. Wall's subject will be "Financial Statements from the Viewpoint of the Banker and As Prepared by the Accountant." This is a subject of great importance to all bankers, especially those charged with the responsibility of administering credit departments of banks. Emphasis is placed by the banking fraternity on financial statements in determining the desirability of extending substantial lines of credit to prospective borrowers.

Mr. Wall is one of the prominent authorities in the United States on this subject. Recently there has been a general movement throughout the country to promote a closer co-operation between certified public accountants and bankers in the settlement of their mutual problems. Because of this, great interest has been shown by local bankers in the forthcoming address by Mr. Wall.

All three sections of the local association have been unusually active this year and will be prepared to submit comprehensive reports at the convention. The report of the auditors section will be presented by Chairman Millard S. Yeatman, auditor of Hamilton National Bank. Chairman James A. Soper, vice president and cashier of Lincoln National Bank, will make the report for the fiduciary section. The safe deposit section report will be presented by Acting Chairman Helen R. Sharpe of the Bank of Commerce & Savings.

Graduate Banking School.

The Washington bankers are planning to attend the sessions of the Graduate School of Banking at New Brunswick, N. J., next month. They are Walton L. Sanderson, an assistant cashier of Hamilton National Bank; George M. Fisher, a vice president and treasurer; Ralph Endicott, assistant treasurer, and Vincent A. Sheehy, jr., assistant trust officer, of Washington Loan & Trust Co.; Hulbert T. Bisselle, an assistant cashier; R. Earle Haycock, auditor; Kenneth F. Brooks, a trust officer; Charles T. Akre, assistant to the trust officer, and Daniel J. Callahan, jr., an assistant cashier, of Riggs National Bank.

This school is conducted jointly by Rutgers University and the American Bankers Association through its educational section, the American Institute of Banking. It is open to bank officers who are graduates of the institute, or who have had equivalent training in colleges and universities.

Enrollments in the school have reached the limit of 600. The first 200 students were admitted in 1935 and will be graduated this year. An equal number was enrolled last year and the 200 to enter next month fills the quota. Courses are attended by bank officers from all parts of the country.

Baker on A. B. A. Council.

Holmes D. Baker, of the Citizens National Bank, Frederick, Md., was elected a member of the American Bankers Association's executive council for Maryland at the recent meeting of the Maryland Bankers Association. The retiring president of the latter organization, Howard S. Ruark, was named a vice president of the National Association for Maryland and C. E. Little, of Laurel, was selected for the nominating committee, with Thaddeus Jones, of Hyattsville, as alternate.

Bond Club Slate.

The nominating committee of the Bond Club of Washington, headed by K. S. Wales, has proposed as officers for the next administrative year, the following members: Clark Brown, president; Chauncey G. Parker, jr., vice president; George M. Ferris, secretary and treasurer; Frank M. Hall, governor, and T. C. Montgomery, governor for one-year term. Election will be held at the club's annual outing at Manor Club, June 4. E. B. Olds, jr., is general chairman for the outing.

Insurance Week.

President Laurance H. Riggles of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association and General Chairman Earle W. Sapp of the association's Life Insurance Week committee are greatly pleased over the co-operation of association members in making the present life insurance sales week a success. New directors of the association elected this week are Richard W. Griswold, John E. O'Brien and Graham E. Wilson. Mr. O'Brien has been editor of the association's bulletin.

Fenner and Beane Survey.

Increasing demand for petroleum products, coupled with steady and possibly rising prices under proration, promise to make 1937 another very good year for the petroleum industry with probably at least a 33 per cent increase in profits over last year, in the opinion of the F. & B. Industries Service, an analysis of 28 industries, published periodically by Fenner & Beane, New York Stock Exchange firm. The outlook for petroleum is one of the most favorable for any industry, according to the survey.

First quarter reports indicate that last year's improvement in earnings is being extended into 1937, and several producing companies have reported increases in net of from 50 per cent to 75 per cent over the first quarter of 1936, the reports state. Combined net income of eight major oil companies for 1936 totaled approximately $128,400,000 as against $85,500,000 in 1935, a gain of 49.7 per cent.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Make Broad Advance in More Active Trading; U. S. Bonds Lower.

New York, May 20.—Stocks rallied smartly in more active trading, but other financial markets were uncertain. Government bonds continued easier and commodities were irregular. July wheat closed 1½ cents lower at 121¾ cents a bushel. Stock prices for the most part were at the best in the late dealings. Sales were around 1,300,000 shares.

Brokers credited short covering as partly responsible for the sharpness of the price advances. Numerous brokerage houses report not only considerable short selling recently in full lots, but, what is unusual, a heavy business in short sales of odd lots. The small trading public apparently had become unduly pessimistic, because of its disappointment over the failure of the bull market to continue without a break. That illustrates, perhaps, the tendency of traders to forget and for a new crop to be obliged to learn all over the lessons of the past.

Nearly all groups took part in the recovery. Steel and railroad shares were first to advance, but mining, motor, farm implements, rubbers and others soon followed. Opening prices were mostly higher, but fractionally so, and by the end of the first hour a broad buying movement got under way which turned the trading active and kept the bidding on the advance until toward noon. Midday quiet, with prices well held, was followed by a further irregular advance in the more popular stocks which sent steel back around par and brought gains of 2 and 3 points to a large list of issues.

Steel Stocks Rise.

In the list of miscellaneous stocks to rise 1 to 4 points were Steel, Smelters, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Republic, Santa Fe, Westinghouse, Cerro de Pasco, Chrysler, du Pont, Goodrich, Case, Woolworth, Simmons, Gypsum, Allis Chalmers, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Tobacco, Penny, Nickel Plate, National Steel, Douglass, Crucible, Crane, Mesta Machine, Loew's and American Can. Deere and Federal Mining jumped 5 points. General Electric was consistently strong.

Great Northern was a conspicuous railway stock, selling at a new high price for the year and Northern Pacific also advanced bravely. Ontario & Western fell on the bankruptcy petition. The rebound in the coppers was helped by the sales of metal at higher prices abroad and the further cleaning up of the mess left by the breakup in London speculative markets. Chain stores recovered 1 to 3 points of their recent losses. Utilities looked at their best for several days.

While financial markets were given a rest from the recent liquidation from abroad and while desultory observations were being made on the value of a general trade conference, further study was given to the June borrowing which the Treasury finds it will have to do. The prospect, mainly because of its uncertainty, continued to exert a softening influence on Government bonds. Meanwhile, the Treasury accounts, after two or three years of good business recovery, look worse, on close study, than they ever have.

Tax Revenues.

Despite the cheerful showing made by receipt of nearly $800,000,000 more tax revenue through May 15 than was gathered by the Federal Treasury in the corresponding portion of the previous fiscal year (thanks largely to higher income taxes, social security revenue and to a sharp rise in customs produced by normally unnecessary imports) the Federal financial statistics are gloomy. Total revenues of $4,287,000,000 for the period July 1, 1936-May 15, 1937 exceed "ordinary" expenditures, which totals $4,102,000,000 even with the inclusion of enormous items formerly carried as extraordinary and relief outlays. Recovery and relief expenditure of $2,487,000,000 remains uncovered. The recovery and relief item is after making allowance for $329,000,000 of net excess of receipts by the RFC.

The largest item in the recovery expenditure is the $1,684,000,000 spent so far this year on WPA, which is $685,000,000 more than was paid out in the last fiscal year. One reason why the ordinary expenditure is only $800,000,000 higher than a year ago is that the Treasury has skimped on sinking-fund outlays, which are $289,000,000 under those made in the corresponding period of last year.

The Day's Movements In Leading Markets

Stocks.

	Thurs.	Wed.
Advances	610	303
Declines	105	296
Unchanged	119	173
Total issues	834	772

Firm with increase in trading; volume, 1,229,080.

Bonds.

Corporate issues firm; United states loans dip; transfers, $7,338,000.

Curb.

Generally higher; turnover, 282,000.

Commodities.

Wheat lower; cotton and sugar higher; coffee lower.

Exchange.

Lower; Great Britain, $4.94¼; France, 4.46¼ cents.

To summarize, the Treasury is collecting $800,000,000 more, is spending $800,000,000 more on ordinary account, and is saving $500,000,000 on relief expense solely because it is spending repayments from RFC and Commodity Credit Corporation loans.

Boardroom Sweepings.

Simmons spurted two points or so. The rise doubtless will aid in the public offering tomorrow of that portion of the convertible bond issue of $10,000,000 which stockholders left with the underwriters. Conversion price is 60 . . . Buyers were bold, as the saying goes, in Celanese and the stock moved above 40 in a manner to suggest the advance that was in full swing before the recent unpleasantness wrecked all plans . . . The stock sold at a new high price for the year . . . The stock market is not entirely friendless in Congress. Representative Merritt, of New York, proposes an amendment to the securities and exchange act to provide for 35 per cent margins. If that were to be the maximum it would please Wall Street . . . Exercise of the Ball option in Graham Paige seems to have heartened the stock. It was one of the most active issues today and tried to get somewhere in many sale blocks of 1,000 to 3,000 shares at above $4. The Ball option was for 50,000 shares at $3 a share.

Harmful Tax.

"Taxation continues with increasing emphasis to provide a major uncertainty in business management," notes President Teagle in the yearly report of the Standard Oil Co. "If the surtax on undistributed earnings remains as a part of the same law which, in addition, levies all the old direct corporate taxes," he says, "then the following results appear to be inescapable.

(1) Corporate earnings will bear an excessive and a larger share of the tax burden than any other kind of income. (2) Returns on corporate invesements will be penalized and new capital for private enterprise will be more and more difficult to obtain. (3) The time honored and customary securing of working capital by loans or bond issues will cease, because such debts cannot be paid out of future earnings without prohibitive tax penalties. (4) A company with no backing or inadequate reserves will be hurt first; those with greater reserves will be vitally affected when capital needs have absorbed their available cash resources. (5) It is an economic fallacy to compel a company to pay out in the form of dividends each year money it needs as a working surplus only on penalty of sacrificing a sizable percentage of it through surtax. Rehabilitation or expansion programs, adequate reserves for loss periods, the continued activity of employment for workers, and the beginning or development of new industries, will all suffer."

Paul H. Primm Heads D.C. Life Underwriters

W. G. Batchelder, 1st Vice President; V. W. Holleman, 2d Vice President.

The board of directors of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters' Association has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, Paul H. Primm, The Mutual Life Insurance Co., of New York; first vice president, Winthrop G. Batchelder, manager of the Connecticut General Life Insurance Co.; second vice president, Vernon W. Holleman, general agent, Home Life Insurance Co., of New York.

The following three directors were elected to the board in addition to Thomas R. Crowley, Vernon W. Holleman, Winthrop G. Batchelder, Earle W. Sapp, C. L. U., Charles W. O'Donnell and Paul H. Primm, already members: Richard W. Griswold, John E. O'Brien and Graham E. Wilson.

The new president, Mr. Primm, attended George Washington University and graduated from Georgetown University in 1917. He has been active in the Underwriters' Association since entering the insurance field about 16 years ago. He has been associated with his present company a little more than 13 years and for the last 11 years and 8 months has a sustained record as a consecutive weekly producer. He is a member of the Board of Trade, a past president of the Life Insurance Club and a former chairman of the board of trustees of Calvary Baptist Church.

Mr. Batchelder has been a writer and lecturer on various insurance subjects. Since coming here about three years ago he has served as registrar of the Life Insurance Institute and vice chairman of the National Membership Committee.

Mr. Holleman was chairman of the managers' section of the association last year and was a former president of the Mississippi Life Underwriters' Association before coming to Washington. He is secretary of the law and legislation committee of the National Association of Life Underwriters.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, May 20.—Indications of higher freight and passenger rates encouraged strength and active trading in home rails on the stock exchange today. Minor losses predominated in the transatlantic group. Mining issues and industrials were about steady. Gilt-edge stocks were quiet. German bonds had a firmer tone.

Paris.—The bourse closed irregular today. International issues continued firm. Banking shares were in demand. Government bonds were easier. Suez Canal closed with a gain of 430 points and Bank of France advanced 55 points.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures closed easy, ¼d to 1d lower after early firmness. Influence of yesterday's strength in North America was overcome by increased weekly shipments of Argentine and Black Sea wheat, July liquidation and small miller's demand. In a pre-holiday market, cotton futures closed quiet and steady with net advances of 3 to 4 points. Bombay straddle buying and local support were induced by extension of the United States soil conservation act. Demand more than offset hedging against Russian cotton.

Colonel Dodge Will Be Buried In State Today

Aged Superintendent of Mount Vernon Paid High Tributes.

Burial services for Col. Harrison Howell Dodge, 85, superintendent of Mount Vernon, will be held this afternoon at Pohick Church, only five miles from George Washington's estate which he had supervised for more than half a century.

After funeral services at St. John's Church at 2 o'clock this afternoon, the body of the resident supervisor, who died suddenly late Wednesday, will be carried in state through Mount Vernon's grounds, and then laid to rest near the church that once numbered Gen. Washington among its parishioners.

The man who had been in charge of Washington's home since 1885, and who was host to more than 25,000,000 visitors to the National shrine, was stricken by cerebral hemorrhage May 1, and taken to Garfield Hospital. He had shown a slight improvement several days ago. He had been allowed to sit up in bed, and use his arms and legs. He suddenly suffered a second attack, however, and died almost immediately.

Well known throughout official Washington, and a personal friend of President Roosevelt, Col. Dodge was first appointed resident superintendent of the Virginia estate by the Grand Council of the Mount Vernon Ladies Association at a special meeting in Philadelphia, June 26, 1885. He had been reappointed annually by unanimous vote and had served as Mount Vernon superintendent far longer than the combined terms of his two predecessors in that position.

Enlarged Estate.

Under his administration, the estate has grown from 200 acres to slightly more than 476 acres of the original 8,000-acre tract. Filling in of what was known as "Hell Hole," a mosquito-infested swamp on the estate, and rebuilding the screen and Ha-Ha walls, the sea wall and the boat landing were among restorations completed during his administration.

When he first took charge—52 years ago—he insisted upon improvement in fire protection of the home itself. Today, kerosene lamps and open fires have been replaced by electricity and a heating plant.

It was he who brought about the restoration of the famous Houdon bust of Washington. Considered the most precious possession at the Washington estate, the bust was found to be cracked. Col. Dodge had the bust carefully packed and, in 1908, arranged for its restoration.

Commended by President.

Three years ago the white-haired colonel—his title was part of the tradition of his position—was given a banquet by Washington historians upon his fiftieth year as superintendent at Mount Vernon. Although President Roosevelt could not attend, he sent a personal letter of regret, adding that "All our lives Mrs. Roosevelt and I will cherish the close friendship we have had with you these many years."

Col. Dodge's speech at the banquet was typical of the modesty with which he described his work. "After all," he said, "what have I done? * * * It is to Miss Anne Pamela Cunningham, the woman who, frightened at Mount Vernon's rapid disintegration, in 1853 conceived and carried out the preservation of Washington's home as a national shrine, and to the women who have succeeded her as regents of the Mount Vernon Association, that all honors should go."

A native of Georgetown, where he was born March 31, 1852, Col. Dodge was educated at a private school there, later graduating from Columbian University, now George Washington University. He worked for a few years in a local bank, later holding various Government positions.

In 1875 he married Elizabeth Knowlton, who has been ill for several years. Other survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Elvin R. Heiberg, of 1620 R street northwest; Mrs. William Strong Cushing, wife of the head of Groton School, Groton, Mass.; 11 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren.
